U. S. FOILED CRISIS: HOOVER

ROOSEVELT HITS PRESIDENT FOR U. S. EXPENSES

Declares He Libels Nation's Credit.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
(Pictures on Back Page)

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith took turns tonight in smiting President Hoover and the Republican administration.

The two old pals of New York politics, who fell out but who recently made up again after a year of coldness, put on a great show before a packed house of Brooklynites in the Academy of Music.

Gov. Roosevelt went early into the big issues of the day and he condemned President Hoover for having "libeled the credit" of the nation, for having failed in his promises of governmental economy, for having "deliberately misrepresented" the issues of the campaign, even to misquoting himself.

Smith's Vein of Satire.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," and he told of the Republican promises of 1928 and what has happened to those promises in 1932.

Al also picked up the Hoover statement that unless the Republican régime is continued "grass will grow in the streets of a hundred cities" and the Smith comeback to that was this:

"What do you think I did about that? Why, I immediately made arrangements for a putting green at Fifth avenue and 34th street!"

Roosevelt and Smith Arm in Arm.

The thousands who packed this historic old music hall to its rafters fairly stampeded when Roosevelt and Smith walked onto the stage, Smith's arm linked round the governor's, with the governor's son, Elliott Roosevelt, holding his other arm.

A broad smile was flashed on Smith's face, and he waved his hand to the audience with enthusiasm. Gov. Roosevelt laughed happily as he, too, waved to the cheering assemblage, and as he and Smith advanced to greet the veteran white haired John H. McCooey, the Democratic boss of Brooklyn.

It's Brooklyn's Big Night.

This is Brooklyn's night of nights, politically speaking, with almost all of the candidates on the Democratic ticket—from the top of the slate, Roosevelt, through the state candidates and down to the lowest assemblyman, present to state their cases.

Gov. Roosevelt, introduced by Mrs. William H. Goode, co-leader of the Brooklyn democracy, was well received by this audience of New Yorkers. It was really the first test of whether the Tammany adherents of the big city will forgive the governor for his treatment of their one time idol, the former mayor of New York, Jimmy Walker. In his first appearance before a strictly political group Gov. Roosevelt was cheered and applauded vigorously.

The governor started out by condemning the "thousands of words of bombast, of evasion and of deception" in the Republican platform and then he went into an earnest assault upon President Hoover's assertion, made in Des Moines, that the United States had almost been forced off the gold standard.

Calls It "Reprehensible."

"When I think of the innumerable people I have seen in this campaign patient, steadfast, though bitterly hurt by the collapse of our economic life," said Gov. Roosevelt. "I feel that to take advantage of their situation to spread among them a gospel of fear is about the most reprehensible act of a campaign that has yielded many examples of unscrupulous appeal for votes.

"The business men of the country, battling hard to maintain their financial solvency and integrity, were told in blunt language in Des Moines, Ia., how close an escape the country had some months ago from going off the gold standard. This, as has been clearly shown since, was a libel on the credit of the United States.

ST. LOUIS HEARS HOW PANIC WAS MET AND LICKED

BULLETIN.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 5 (Saturday).—(AP)—The train bearing President Hoover from St. Louis to Madison, Wis., and St. Paul, Minn., passed through the outskirts of Springfield shortly after 1 a. m. today.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover traveled tonight toward a second day of strenuous campaigning in Wisconsin and Minnesota, leaving behind him, he hoped, an Illinois, an Indiana, and a Missouri preserved for the Republican party and inoculated by Republican oratory against the blandishments of Roosevelt Democracy.

At St. Louis tonight the President cited as the supreme examples of his administration's effort to meet and beat the depression, the rescue of Gen. Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank and Trust company of Chicago and the negotiation of the moratorium.

He held these up before an audience of 10,000 persons in the St. Louis coliseum as his answer to what he called a Democratic campaign based on "misrepresentation" and "colossal falsehood," on "false promises, vague promises, and shifty position."

Attacks Stand on Repeal.

And for the benefit of the city with so mellow and malty a tradition, he flung in an attack on the Democratic stand for repeal of the 18th amendment, calling it "evasive" and "misleading," since, he said, the Democrats knew that their southern brethren would never permit outright repeal.

Amid a somewhat pall-like silence, he reiterated his own prohibition stand as being still that of his acceptance speech, in which he advised repeal but with saloons barred and dry states adequately protected.

The St. Louis speech closed a day of travel through Illinois towns and plowed lands, of greeting and being greeted by huge crowds at Joliet, Peoria, and other cities, and which came to its climax, so far as Illinois was concerned, with the President's afternoon address at Springfield.

Speaking in the armory at the Illinois capital, the President invoked the memory of the martyred Lincoln and besought the country to vote in this critical time of peace as it had voted in 1864's critical year of war and uphold the policies and the power of a Republican administration.

Denounces His Opponent.

In his St. Louis speech the President denounced his Democratic opponent for appealing to discontent and "capitalizing the sufferings of the people for political purposes."

In vigorous language the President defended his administration from the charge that it was in any way responsible for the depression, taking up Democratic statements one by one and answering them in detail.

Then, shifting to an attack, he called on Gov. Roosevelt to make known his own position on a number of questions. Would his opponent, he demanded, oppose the Goldsborough bill for a managed "rubber dollar" currency? What tariffs would he lower? Would he oppose or applaud the La Follette system of doles? Would he go along with radicals like Norris, Wheeler and Huey Long? Did he approve the Hearst 5 billion dollar construction program at public expense?

What About the Bonus?

He charged that Gov. Roosevelt had not made plain his position on the payment of the bonus, and added ironically that if he waited for a Democratic congress to balance the budget and build up a surplus to the required $2,300,000,000 the rest of the bonus would never be paid.

All charges that the Republicans had been responsible for the depression Mr. Hoover hurled back. It was not the task of Washington to build up a dictatorial machine to halt speculation in 1928, he said. If that was anybody's business it belonged to the governors of the states "and particularly to the governor of New York."

Insull Is Ill; Greece to Put Him in Clinic

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 4.—Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, who was arrested by Greek police today at the request of the United States legation, is a sick man. The American authorities are seeking to secured the extradition of Insull to Chicago to face charges of larceny and embezzlement in connection with the bankruptcy of his utilities companies.

Two physicians for the Greek prosecuting attorney completed a physical examination of Insull at 10:30 o'clock tonight at the Athens police headquarters, where Insull is being detained, and found his heart in bad condition, signs of a paralytic condition in his cheeks and also diabetes.

Spends Night in Jail.

Insull, however, will spend the night at the police station in a cosily improvised room in Assistant Director Ebert's office. The doctors' reports must be signed and countersigned before they constitute documents on the basis of which Insull can be removed to a hospital for attention.

This will take place tomorrow, and Insull will be taken to Aretelon clinic in Kephisia street, not far from his former hotel, where he will be confined under guard until the extradition hearing decides whether he is to be returned to Chicago.

Insull had hopes until tonight that he would not spend the night in jail. He looked worn when the doctors had finished the examination. He would not see any one but his burly, faithful interpreter, Peter Vanech, who left him about 11 o'clock. Police excluded all other visitors from Insull's room.

Will Stay at Clinic.

Insull will spend the rest of his time in Greece in the clinic pending decision of the court. If he is extradited, he probably will be taken from the clinic a couple of days in advance and confined in jail at the port of Piraeus pending the sailing of a ship for the United States.

This was a tense day for Insull and, through his attorney, Cristos Ladas, and Interpreter Vanech, he contested every step of his arrest, which he took stoically.

"I don't mind this and I don't worry," he said, "because if I worry I will not be able to think. I am disturbed, however, about the effect it will have on my wife and son, who is on the seas on his way back to America."

On Nov. 1 ratifications of the Greco-American extradition treaty were exchanged in Washington. On Nov. 2 American Chargé d'Affaires Leland B. Morris asked the Greek foreign office to extradite Insull and provisionally arrest him. Yesterday Undersecretary of Justice Bournias instructed the Athens prosecuting attorney to request the Appeals court here to issue a warrant for Insull's arrest. This warrant was sent to the police late last night.

Then what happened was this:

Chief of Security Police Coutsomaris at 11:40 a. m. today called at the Petit Palais hotel to serve the warrant. The old man had remained in his room all morning. An hour later Cristos Ladas appeared on the scene and the battle to keep Insull out of jail began.

Pleads Old Age.

Insull, accompanied by Vanech and two policemen, hastily went to the office of the prosecuting attorney. This

EXPERT BLASTS CHARGE AGAINST SWANSON'S KIN

Grand Jury Quizzes Judge Fisher.

Herbert J. Walter, nationally known handwriting expert, yesterday pronounced the purported indorsements of Albert Swanson, brother of the state's attorney, and Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy on checks drawn by Herman J. Goldberg, convicted tax fixer, to be forgeries.

The checks are the only documentary evidence submitted to date in support of Goldberg's charges that Albert Swanson and Clancy participated for two years in the profits of his tax fixing racket. The charges of Goldberg were read Wednesday before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court by Robert Isham Randolph from an unsworn statement of "information and belief," which he later admitted to the grand jury had been prepared by Judge Harry M. Fisher, who was Chief Justice Prystalski's predecessor.

Fisher Before Grand Jury.

Judge Fisher spent two hours before the grand jury, after he had been required to sign an immunity waiver. The jury spent the day investigating the Goldberg-Fisher-Randolph charges, and a number of Goldberg's assertions were given the lie direct by witnesses summoned to appear before the jurors.

Goldberg's trial and conviction two years ago on charges of tax fixing were preceded and followed by a long series of continuances and stays. He has never gone to prison, being at liberty at present on bond pending an appeal. Of his stays, Judge Fisher, while he was chief justice, entered a number, delaying disposition of the case for nearly six months.

Goldberg charged Clancy and Albert Swanson, who is also an assistant state's attorney, with conniving in his tax fixing and accepting 10 per cent of his fees as a reward. The checks examined yesterday by Mr. Walter were made out by Goldberg to currency. He asserted that he gave them to Swanson or Clancy, and in proof of his assertion pointed to their purported indorsements.

Throw Down Other Charges.

Goldberg charged also that he took Albert Swanson and Clancy to the Liberty Trust and Savings bank and identified them there, that they might cash the checks. Another of his charges was that in April he took some of the checks to State's Attorney Swanson and made his charges against the prosecutor's brother and Clancy. Goldberg said that he was accompanied on that visit by Attorney Lee La Rochelle, a former assistant state's attorney. All three of these assertions were disputed yesterday by grand jury witnesses.

Mr. Walter appeared as an expert for the government in the income tax trial of Al Capone, and his identification of Capone's signature, frequently of aliases, played an important part in the government's case. He examined Goldberg's checks yesterday, compared them with signatures of Albert Swanson and Clancy, and declared that there was no doubt in his mind that the signatures of the two had been forged. Mr. Walter will be called before the grand jury this morning to testify regarding his findings.

Expect Report Today.

The grand jury worked until 6 o'clock last night trying to conclude the investigation, but was unable to do so, and recessed until this morning. Besides Walter, Albert Swanson and Clancy will be called today. The jury is expected to finish the inquiry before evening and report on its findings.

Harry Wierama, former vice president and cashier of the Liberty Trust and Savings bank, was a grand jury witness yesterday. His initials appeared approving six of Goldberg's checks, and thus, preaumably, he would have been the official to whom Goldberg claimed he introduced Albert Swanson and Clancy. He said he did not remember Goldberg, remarking that his bank had many depositors by that name. But as to Swanson and Clancy he was positive. He never had seen them before in his life, he said yesterday when they were pointed out to him at the Criminal Courts building.

BOMB HOME OF STATE EMPLOYE OPPOSING SMALL

A bomb of terrific power was exploded early this morning near the front porch of the home of Bernard A. Weaver, 1741 Cullerton street, chief factory inspector for the state.

All the windows of the house and of other residences and stores for nearly a block were shattered. Weaver, his wife, and their five children had retired and were shaken by the blast. Damage was estimated at $500.

Asked if he knew any motive for the bombing, Weaver replied: "Politics. I have been allied with the Barrett organization among the Republicans and have been active in behalf of State's Attorney Swanson. Political enemies are after me."

He added that he believed those who had tossed the bomb at him were supporters of Len Small. According to his report, he and his wife saw two men jump into a car across the street and about five minutes later the bomb went off. The Weavers live on the second floor and the family of Marion Janowsky on the first.

ITALY OBSERVES ARMISTICE DAY; MUSSOLINI PRAYS

ROME, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Italy today celebrated Armistice day with prayer. Premier Mussolini and Crown Prince Humbert attended mass in St. Mary of the Angels church, where the Philharmonic Orchestra of Rome played.

Italy observes Armistice day one week before the other allies, because its war against Austria ended seven days before the armistice on the western front.

Premier Mussolini today unveiled the marble obelisk in "Mussolini forum," which he hopes will perpetuate his memory in the manner of the ancient Pharaohs. The obelisk is a single Carrara marble weighing 313 tons and standing 54 feet high. "Mussolini" is carved in huge letters on the marble. After the unveiling the premier witnessed the first gymnastic demonstration in the forum stadium.

Reporters Form a Half of New York G.O.P. Rally

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—When only twelve persons, including six newspaper reporters, appeared at a meeting at the Jamaica High school tonight, at which former Gov. Nathan Miller and Representative Robert L. Bacon had been announced as Republican speakers, the rally was called off.

Youth's Death Bares School Liquor Party

Police of the western suburbs learned yesterday that the death of Edward Book, 24 years old, whose body was found in the forest preserve beside Salt creek in La Grange Park, had been preceded by a Halloween gin party in which thirty high school students and young alumni participated.

Find Body Below Bank.

When his body was discovered by a garage man yesterday it was doubled up in the position that would be assumed by a person playing leap frog. It was only a few feet from the creek bank near Brainard avenue and Monroe street. Above the body was a high bank. The theory of the police and Coroner's Physician Kearns is that Book fell or jumped off the bank early Tuesday morning, knocked himself unconscious, and died of exposure.

The only alternative theory was murder. However, there were no marks on the body to indicate that he had been slain.

Book was last seen alive by his mother, Florence, early Monday evening. He borrowed 25 cents from her to purchase cigarets and announced that he was going to a party.

Find Gin Plentiful.

This party, it was learned yesterday, was held in the Log Cabin barbecue stand, operated by Joseph Perkins and his wife at the east end of Hinsdale on Ogden avenue. Book went to it with William Sieling, alumnus of Lyons High school, living on Plainfield road in the township; Sieling's sister, Llewellyn, and two other youths, Bob Showbert and Lester Buisnick.

According to Sieling, they were liberally supplied with liquor when they arrived at the barbecue stand. Mrs. Perkins was even more explicit on this subject.

"Arrangements for the party had been made in advance," she said. "Miss Marian Smith of 4020 Grove avenue, Western Springs, had ordered the dinner. She used to go to Lyons Township High school and she told me the Halloween party was for students and ex-students.

Guests Bring Gallons of Gin.

"We don't serve drinks, but when the young people came it looked like every one had a bottle or two. There were gallons of gin and they drank heavily—at least most of the boys did. There were some fights. Book and a boy in a leather jacket passed some blows, but Miss Smith and a waitress separated them.

"They all left at a little after 1 o'clock. They had been so intoxicated and so disorderly we were glad when they went."

What happened thereafter was related by Sieling. With his sister and the other youths he took Book into his car. They had ridden part of the way to the Youngblood home when Book became quarrelsome and insisted on getting out. He was left on the roadside in the 300 block of Waiola avenue, La Grange Park, not far from the spot where the body was found. Sieling said that during the evening Miss Smith, who had tried to tone down the party, wanted to take Book home in a taxicab, but he would not go.

Police to Quiz Guests.

Prof. Youngblood said his stepson was not a habitual drinker and that he was surprised to learn Book had been intoxicated at the party. He added that he himself had made a search of the forest preserve on Wednesday, fearing some harm had befallen the youth and had passed near the place where the body was found, but failed to see it.

Acting Police Chief Edward Jones of La Grange Park said that he would question all the members of the tragic Halloween party before the inquest, which is set for today.

the truth of Goldberg's assertion that he had made his charges against the prosecutor's brother and Clancy to Mr. Swanson in April.

"Goldberg is a liar," said Attorney La Rochelle, as he waited to appear before the grand jury. "I never went with him to see State's Attorney Swanson. He came to me at one time and showed me a lot of checks, threatening that if some one didn't do something for him he would make a stink.

"I told him to go ahead and make his charges, and that if they were true, indictments would follow. Goldberg showed me the checks. I looked at them and saw that they were made out to currency and bore no indorsements. I told him, 'You haven't got any evidence here. All these show is that you went to the bank and drew some money for yourself.'"

"I never had any meeting with Goldberg and Attorney La Rochelle," said State's Attorney Swanson, who also appeared before the grand jury. "I met Goldberg just once in my life, when he came to me before his trial and pleaded for leniency. I told him that if he were guilty that was his misfortune, and that if he were innocent the jury would find him so."

Judge David's Charges.

Assistant State's Attorney Homer Dodge, who prosecuted Goldberg, said that when the case was before Judge Joseph B. David the latter in open court charged that Democratic committeemen were trying to influence the court. Dodge, it is reported, told the jury, the entire history of the case.

"After the indictments were returned, Goldberg and his associates took changes of venue from every Republican judge, then in the Criminal court building," said Dodge. "The case was left between Judges David and Fisher. It went to Judge David, but he refused to try it, saying that 'too many Democratic ward committeemen had called him up.'

"Judge Fisher being acting chief justice at the time, assigned the case to himself. We did not want to try the case in his court. We waited until the return of Chief Justice McGoorty and then obtained new indictments, which put the case back again in Judge McGoorty's court. He assigned it to Judge Sabath. Judge Fisher when he discovered this wanted to know how the case was taken from his courtroom."

Judge Fisher before the jury yesterday, it is reported, denied that he had any recollection of the Goldberg case. He never saw Goldberg and no one ever talked to him about the case, he said.

Prosecutor Dodge said he tried to get the case to trial and never agreed to any continuances, except on several occasions when he was engaged in the actual trial of other cases.

Fisher Delays Appearance.

Members of the grand jury appeared to be irked yesterday by Judge Fisher's failure to appear until nearly two hours after they had convened. When he did go before them a long wrangle followed as to whether they could require him to sign an immunity waiver. After members of the jury had consulted Chief Justice Prystalski, Judge Fisher signed one.

He was before the grand jury for two hours. When he emerged he refused to say what he had told the jury, but submitted to an interview on the case. The queries put to him by newspaper men and his replies follow:

Q.—Would it have been better to have held Goldberg's charges until after election, to free the case from any stigma of politics? A.—I didn't owe any duty to withhold any information which came to me. It is my belief, however, that political matters should not be discussed before the grand jury but from the public platform.

Admits Writing Statement.

Q.—Is it true that you gave this material to Randolph and wrote the statement which he read? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why didn't you bring it out to the grand jury yourself, or tell the chief justice of the Criminal court? A.—I thought it perfectly fair to bring this matter into open court through Randolph in retaliation for Swanson's bringing Randolph before the grand jury as a result of his original charges against the state's attorney's office. As I said before, political charges should be made from the public forum, not in the grand jury room. I hope after this no state's attorney will bring political charges into the grand jury room until after the campaign.

Q.—Did you advise Randolph? A.—I advised nothing beyond the preparation of the statement. Of course, I understood that it was to be presented to Chief Justice Prystalski. The chief justice wanted that done.

Q.—Is it true that you called him and apprised him that Randolph was coming out here? A.—O, no; O, no.

Fair to Randolph.

Q.—Do you think it correct for a judge to have prepared those charges and instead of making them himself to have Randolph make them in an unsworn statement? A.—Simply because I am a judge I couldn't be put in that position. I thought the charges should be presented through a citizen and that it was fair to Randolph to let him do it in view of what Swanson had done to him.

Q.—When you say that political charges should not be taken before the grand jury do you infer that Randolph should be allowed to charge employés of the state's attorney's office with the crime of accepting bribes, and that Mr. Swanson should then let the charge go unchallenged? A.—No, not unchallenged. Why didn't he make his own investigation without involving the grand jury? He could have talked about that from the public platform.

Q.—What about allowing Goldberg stays for 180 days, which kept him out of jail? A.—I know nothing about that except this: The man was convicted before Judge Sabath and he was out on a motion waiting for Judge Sabath to decide the case.

Q.—Why didn't Judge Sabath enter his own order? A.—He wasn't sitting in the Criminal court at the time.

Q.—Well, is it true that Judge Sabath could have entered such an order if he had wanted to, even though he wasn't sitting in the Criminal court? A.—I assume he could. But it would have meant sending a clerk downtown to his court. I did this just as a matter of routine.

Q.—Did anybody ever approach you in this case? A.—Never, except when the attorney once asked me to reopen the case and I refused.

Q.—At one time when this case was before Judge David he refused to hear it, saying that ward committeeman had called him up to try to influence him. Did any of them ever call you up? A.—You ought to know that any ward committeeman would know better than to call me up. The records show that prosecution of the case by the state's attorney was not very diligent.

Q.—Do you consider that your court and your fellow judges were showing diligence when you allowed Goldberg stays over a period of two years? A.—This court simply entered the orders as a matter of routine while the case was pending in another court. I never knew Goldberg, never saw him before he came to me a week ago with his charges. He says he met me once before, but I don't remember it.

Goldberg himself spent some time before the grand jury. He arrived at the Criminal Courts building about 10 minutes after Judge Fisher, accompanied by two city policemen who he said were bodyguards assigned to him because he had been "threatened."

SWANSON HITS AT FISHER IN POLITICAL TALK

Says Courtney Approved of Attack on Brother.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson, delivering a political speech yesterday noon in the Erlanger theater, vigorously denounced Judge Harry Fisher, former chief justice of the Criminal court, for what he termed "character assassination." He also attacked the judicial record of Judge Fisher.

The prosecutor added his belief that the attack made on the Swanson régime Thursday by Robert Isham Randolph was instigated and approved by Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic nominee for state's attorney, as well as by Judge Fisher.

"The people," Mr. Swanson said, "have been given an insight into the corruption and ruthlessness of the ring backing my opponent. They have overplayed their hand. They never believed that Isham Randolph would be foolish enough to reveal to the grand jury the hand of Harry Fisher as the instigator of a plot to strike at me by striking at my brother."

Refers to Fee Fraud Charge.

This reference was to the Secret Six charge that Albert Swanson had conspired with tax fixers and obtained large fees from them. Mr. Swanson then went on to relate how easy it was to forge indorsements on the backs of checks made out to currency, and to state that no vindication could repay his brother for the suffering he had undergone as a result of the making public of false charges.

"If Harry Fisher, whose mind is as clean as an open sewer, sat in a cell the rest of his life," the prosecutor cried, "he could not atone for this plot. His motives are: First, that his overlord, A. J. Cermak, was on the Insull preferred list, and second, that I got the evidence and laid it before the grand jury. If I am reëlected Insull will be returned to Chicago for trial.

Sanitary District Case.

"Little 'Arry Fisher was the fellow who, as chief justice of the Criminal court, assigned the sanitary district case to himself. Cermak and his prime minister, Fisher, did not want the sanitary officials convicted. But somebody promised Tim Crowe an acquittal and they brought all sorts of pressure on me to make the trial a sham battle.

"At last, when they couldn't move me, and after Judge David refused to hear the case, the matter came before Harry Fisher, who was chief justice. Gossip came from the city hall that Fisher was going to assign the case to himself.

Prepare a Protest.

"Under the rules of the Criminal court we prepared a petition of disqualification on the part of Harry Fisher in which we set out that he would be prejudiced in favor of the defendants because of his relations with them and the business connections of his relatives."

Later, Mr. Swanson said, Judge Fisher called in "two honest judges," John Prystalski and James J. Kelly, to hear the case with him. "We were able to call 700 witnesses to the stand and somebody fell down on the promise to Crowe that he wouldn't be convicted," continued Mr. Swanson.

CHAUNCEY REED CALLS RIVAL'S CHARGES FALSE

State's Attorney Chauncey W. Reed of Du Page county, Republican candidate for reëlection, issued a statement last night branding as libel the campaign statements of his Democratic opponent, Joseph S. Perry. Perry alleged Reed had been derelict in his duty and as a consequence was being supported by bootleggers and criminals.

"The shortest way would be to brand my opponent a plain liar," read the statement of Prosecutor Reed.

"Crooks keep out of Du Page county because it is not healthy for them. We have few unsolved major crimes. Gangsters seldom dump bodies in our county, for fear of the consequences."

He then said Perry poses as a dry in some sections of the county, wet in others, and that Perry has declared himself for Hoover and against his own party candidate.

"This statement is not a defense of my conduct as state's attorney," Reed continued. "Many organizations that may not approve of me because I am not a dry and admit it, have indorsed me because of my fair prosecutions."

LEAVES FUND FOR WIVES OF POORLY PAID PRESIDENTS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP)—It might be a wise thing for mothers to raise their daughters to become future "first ladies of the land" if a provision in the will of Henry G. Freeman Jr. is upheld.

The will, disposing of an estate of $2,000,000, provides a "pin money" fund of $1,200 a year for the wife of the President of the United States, after the death of other beneficiaries, "because," Freeman wrote, "I feel that the President receives such a miserable pittance for a man holding the greatest position on earth."

Parents of a grandnephew of Freeman's are contesting the bequest.

Nampa, Idaho, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Lack of cash doesn't prevent Charles Chadwell, Walker Ferry fisherman, from providing his family with food and clothing. With steaks from a 250 pound sturgeon he caught in the Snake river, Chadwell traded for ten pounds of butter, eight boxes of apples, a slab of bacon, two hams, a quantity of fresh meat, a pair of shoes, a sweater, gasoline for his motor car, and $2.40 cash.

CIVIC BUREAU ASKS GATEWAY ACT'S PASSAGE

The board of trustees of the Civic federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency recommended yesterday a vote of "yes" on the proposition to adopt the so-calld Gateway Amendment to the constitution of Illinois. This amendment, if approved, will enable the legislature to submit amendments to as many as three articles of the constitution to the voters at one time. The present limit is submission of an amendment to one article at each session.

According to the trustees the Gateway amendment will remove obstacles to improvements in the tax laws and promote simplification of government in the state. It was pointed out that a majority of all who vote Tuesday is needed to make the amendment effective, and that failure to vote on the proposition is in effect a vote against it.

GANG BIG SHOTS, HEADS OF TRUCK RACKET, FREED

CRIMINAL COURT.

Henry Segreti, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory; Ralp Cianci, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Rony Pickels, murder, sentenced to 35 years in the penitentiary; Peter Pickels, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary; Frank Piunti, murder, sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary; Willis Molden, rape, sentenced to 1 year in the penitentiary by Judge John J. Sullivan.

Eight of Chicago's most notorious gangsters, said to be the controlling powers in the newly organized trucking racket, were released from the detective bureau on bonds last night. They had been confined there for more than eighty hours.

William (Klondike) O'Donnell and Charles Fischetti, the latter a former chauffeur of Alphonse Capone, were charged with conspiracy, vagrancy, and carrying concealed weapons. Their bonds were fixed at $20,000 each. William (Three Fingered Jack) White and Murray Humphries, the alleged bosses of the $40,000 a month association known as the Trucking and Transportation exchange, were charged with conspiracy and carrying concealed weapons and let out on bonds of $10,000 each.

Charged with Conspiracy.

Four of their associates, Marcus (Studdy) Looney, Samuel Alex, a safeblower; William Martin, and Charles Sullivan, were held only on the conspiracy charge. Their bonds were fixed at $5,000 each. Two men arrested with them in Sullivan's office at 1 North La Salle street on Tuesday were allowed to go without booking. They are John O'Brien, office boy, and Joseph Moreno, contractor, who convinced the police he was not associated with the big gangsters.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker indicated that the conspiracy charge would be based on allegations that the eight men have been able to terrorize the coal dealers of Chicago and the drivers' unions and force both capital and labor to pay tribute to their organization.

Pleas for Writs Fail.

Their release came after applications for writs of habeas corpus in their behalf had failed. Judge Rudolph Desort in the morning had indicated that he was in no hurry to let them go, and their attorneys, W. W. Smith and Tyrrell Richardson, threw them on Chief Schoemaker's mercy.

The chief had been of the opinion that they could not get bonds at once and would have to remain in jail for a day longer and possibly until Monday. But William Markheim of the Public Indemnity company appeared as soon as they were charged formally and produced acceptable security.

The eight big shots, who had been forced to undergo a second time the indignity of a police showup with ordinary criminals, did not appear as dapper as usual when they left. Their expensive clothing was wrinkled; they were not shaved. When they reached the bureau on Tuesday two of them—White and Humphries—had sent out for silk pajamas. These garments were not found practical, as the only bed in the cell was the floor. It was softened with $3 worth of newspapers purchased by Humphries each night.

Story of Their Racket.

How this crew is double crossing union workers, levying on coal merchants, and raising the price of fuel in Chicago was told yesterday by a coal dealer. The story goes:

Originally George [Red] Barker, since killed, seized control of the coal teamsters' union and then started giving orders to coal merchants. He and Alphonse Capone built up the Trucking and Transportation exchange, and White, Looney, O'Donnell, Humphries, and Fischetti, and possibly Frank Nitti, are now running it.

First they forced all but a few coal dealers to become members of the exchange. The initial payment is $10 a truck, and soon the gangsters forced material men and other users of trucks to join. The present "membership" comprises 40,000 trucks, which put $400,000 as initial fees into the pockets of the machine gun hoodlums, and the membership continues to pay $40,000 a month.

The coal dealer pays his union drivers $8.50 a day. If he joins the exchange he can cut the pay to $8, thereby saving $13 in a month of 26 working days, minus the $1 a month he pays as dues per truck. This is possible because the hoodlums representing the exchange forced the union, which they also represent, to sign a contract with a wage scale of $8—the union driver thereby losing $13 a month to the racketeers.

But the coal dealer doesn't make the profit which might be indicated by his saving on wages. He agrees to hire all extra trucks from the exchange and to it he pays 90 cents a ton for hauls of less than five miles. The charge by others is 60 cents a ton, showing that the exchange makes a large profit. Dealers say their own hauling costs them 20 or 30 cents a ton, but they have to pay 90 cents to White, Looney, O'Donnell, Humphries, and Fischetti.

Levy Fines on Members.

On top of this there are fines of up to $1,000 for any infraction of real or imaginary rules of the exchange. Price cutting might be considered a violation of rules and punishable by a fine.

Through the power of calling strikes on the coal dealers the hoodlums forced the dealers to join. This power makes the racketeers the masters of the coal business, with a sideline of bootlegging, gambling, and a bit of vice.

Fischetti was taken from police custody by the government, for a few minutes yesterday, and then was ordered to appear before the federal grand jury on Nov. 10 for questioning in a Mann act investigation.

TRAVELER'S PONCHO FAILS TO SAVE HIM FROM CUSTOMS MAN

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Michel Sarwicki is a barber in Chicago most of the time, but there are periods of rebellion when he is a wanderer.

When the liner President Coolidge docked today he came down the third class gangway. He was dressed in an old straw hat, a blue shirt open at the collar, overalls such as the farmers of Illinois wear daily, and an enormous poncho.

"It is rather chilly," said Sarwicki. "Do you think it will rain this morning?"

A customs inspector replied that he did not, and would the passenger be so good as to emerge from the large awning in which he was hiding?

Eventually Michel did emerge. In the privacy of the customs shack on the pier prying fingers brought forth all manner of things from his coat, among them sixteen bottles of liquors.

CANADIANS SET FIRE TO PRISON; ATTACK GUARDS

Mounted Police End Convict Riot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 4.—Hoping to escape in the confusion caused by the flames and to effect the release of more than 1,000 convicts, fifteen prisoners in the St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary on the Island of Jesus set fire to the prison tailor shop at 10 o'clock this morning. The rebellious convicts clubbed down the guards who tried to extinguish the blaze.

The convicts were led by a Negro named Crossley, who refused to leave the burning building when it became evident that his plot to escape had been frustrated. He remained on the top floor of the four story structure as the flames crackled about him. When the roof collapsed guards leaped into the ruins and dragged him out.

Fire Brought Under Control.

At 2 p. m. the fire was brought under control and Crossley was removed from the institution. He was unconscious but is expected to survive.

The disturbance began as though by signal. The convicts in the tailor shop suddenly dropped their tools and attacked guards with knives and clubs. Several set fire to the tailor shop.

There were screams and curses and soon the entire penitentiary was a shrieking mass of convicts. Prisoners from other shops gathered around the burning building in a menacing mob.

Guards Aube, Jacques, and Forest were struck down and severely injured as the convicts cut the hose line.

Warden Calls for Aid.

Col. Pluze, warden of the penitentiary, telephoned to Montreal and fire apparatus sped over the nine miles from the city.

Then came automobiles loaded with Royal Canadian mounted police. They entered the institution and the sullen convicts slunk back to their cells.

At 2:15 p. m. the warden announced that the 1,105 inmates were safely under lock and key in their individual cells. The property damage was estimated at $500,000.

Spain Calls Off Sale of Gunboat to Colombia

MADRID, Nov. 4. — (AP) — Negotiations for the sale of the Spanish gunboat Dato to Colombia have been suspended temporarily. It was thought that the government acted to avoid protests from other South American countries.

BOSTON IS FACING LARGEST DEFICIT IN HISTORY OF THE CITY

Boston, Mass., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The largest municipal deficit in the history of Boston will be reported at the end of the fiscal year, Dec. 31. It may reach $16,000,000. But officials who are cognizant of the financial condition of the city hope that it will not exceed half that sum.

They bank upon heavy payments of 1932 taxes prior to Dec. 15, when a penalty of 8 per cent, interest upon all unpaid bills of more than $200, and retroactive to Sept. 15, will be imposed.

Regardless of tax payments, it will be necessary for the first time since 1925 to resort to temporary borrowings during the final months of the year in order to meet current bills and pay rolls.

Akron Faces Crisis.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The city of Akron, O., has no funds available to meet its debt service in full this month and next, following default in October, bankers were advised here yesterday by E. C. Gallcher, director of finance, who offers holders of the city's obligations part payment. The city's plight, he explains in a formal statement, is due to "rapid growth, short maturities, and inability to pay taxes."

"IT'S ELEPHANT'S JOB" SONG BRINGS SUIT FOR $10,000

That rousing campaign lyric, "It's an Elephant's Job," threatened yesterday to become a burning issue in the presidential campaign. Eric A. Karll of Milwaukee, who says he wrote it, filed suit for $10,000 in the Circuit court against Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee; former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, director of publicity, and David Hopkins, assistant director of the speakers' bureau at Republican headquarters.

In his bill, filed by Attorney Urban A. Lavery, Karll asks a writ of attachment to tie up $10,000 of the Republican campaign funds on deposit in the Continental Illinois National bank, pending disposition of his suit.

Karll charges that he wrote two songs, "It's an Elephant's Job" and "Let's Be Thankful," and presented them to the Republican campaign directors. They accepted the elephant song, he charges, promising him $3,000 for 100,000 copies and additional royalties for radio use of the ditty. Despite use of the song for campaign purposes, he has received no payment, he charges.

THREE ARE SLAIN AS BERLIN POLICE FIRE ON STRIKERS

Mobs Stone Street Cars and Buses.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Two men and one woman were killed and 20 were seriously injured by the police today in disorders arising from Berlin's transportation strike in which 23,000 men are participating. Barricades were erected in the streets and trolley cars and buses were wrecked by the strikers when authorities attempted to resume operation of traffic after the government forbade the walkout. Dr. Franz Bracht, the Prussian commissioner, tonight ordered police to fire on rioters.

The Socialist labor unions have advised their members to return to work, but communists and Hitlerites are carrying on the strike. As a result, the few street cars and buses which ran for a short time this afternoon were stopped this evening to prevent further clashes between the strikers and the police.

Only 3,000 workers returned to work today. The strikers picketed the depots or banded together in militant squads to stone street cars or buses which Socialists dared to pilot into the streets.

Police Fire Into Mobs.

The strikers are so furious at their moderate former leaders, the Socialists, that when a truck loaded with Socialist newspapers arrived at a depot, they wrecked the truck and beat the drivers until the police fired, killing a Hitlerite customs official. In the afternoon the police again fired on the mob, which tried to wreck street cars, killing a man and a woman.

Four hundred persons were arrested since the strike began yesterday morning for resisting the police and damaging public property. The arrests would have been greater if the population in many districts had not helped strikers to escape.

The arrests included 52 communist leaders who will be tried for high treason. Authorities charge that they are trying to extend the strike to the water, gas, and electricity works.

All Lines Tied Up.

The strike, which has tied up the capital's street car, bus, subway, and elevated lines, began when the operating company cut wages by half a cent an hour. An attempt to arbitrate failed and the company announced that men who failed to appear for duty after 2 p. m. today would be automatically discharged.

Chancellor Franz von Papen, speaking over the government controlled radio, tonight uttered dire threats against the strikers as well as against his opponents. He attacked Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, and at the same time tried to lure the Nazis back into "a national front to destroy bolshevism, whose false prophets must be annihilated wherever they appear in Germany."

Von Papen appealed to the voters "to revive the same spirit of comradeship which animated them in the days of the world war and to cooperate with Von Hindenburg in a new Germany."

Student Faces Deportation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLOGNE, Nov. 4.—Gerald Holmes, until recently a student of philosophy at Cologne university, will be expelled from Germany as a result of his alleged participation in the communists' election campaign. Cologne authorities accused him of being the leader of communists who pasted up illegal election propaganda.

Surround a Swamp to Trap Mississippi Bank Robbers

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Coast guards with machine guns, deputy sheriffs, and a posse of 200 have tonight surrounded two bandits in a swamp. The bandits robbed a Pascagoula, Miss., bank of $12,000 after kidnaping the cashier and a customer. The pair was released near the swamp.

HIGH COURT RULES ARMORY RENTALS BELONG TO STATE

Decision the Result of Taxpayer's Suit.

Rentals paid by promoters of athletic events to armories of the Illinois National Guard hereafter must be turned over to the state treasury, according to a decision of the Illinois Supreme court handed down yesterday. Heretofore such receipts have not been turned in to the state but deposited in the regimental funds.

The decision was the outgrowth of a suit filed by Attorney James J. Glassner on behalf of Edwin A. Green, 1309 East 50th street, a taxpayer, against Carlos E. Black, adjutant general of the militia, and Col. Charles C. Dawes, commander of the 202d Coast Artillery and superintendent of state armories.

Follows Embezzlement Trial.

The filing of the suit followed the prosecution in federal court of Col. Dawes' predecessor, Charles J. Kraft, who was found not guilty of padding pay rolls and embezzlement of funds at the Broadway armory. Federal investigators charged that $100,000 was lost by the government in padded pay rolls and that the state's loss was almost as great. No action was taken by state authorities and no court martial was called by Maj. Gen. of Militia Roy D. Keehn, the guard's commanding officer. Kraft was permitted to resign with his rank of colonel.

The suit brought by Green alleged that funds obtained from renting the armories for various commercial enterprises, chiefly athletic contests, were turned over to the regimental funds and used for dances and other entertainment for the regiments, the taxpayers receiving no benefit from the renting of state property.

State Pays for Heating.

It was further pointed out that the state is put to an expense by such activities, since it pays for heating and lights and labor required for the setting up of seats.

In the prosecution of Kraft it was charged by the government that part of the receipts at the Broadway armory were not even turned in to the regimental fund and that men were employed on state and federal pay to do private work for Kraft.

Gene Tunney Denied Right to Vote; Not Registered

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, who has been campaigning for the Democratic ticket, today lost his fight to vote in Stamford. Judge Frank P. McEvoy of Superior court refused application for a mandamus to permit his name to go on the roll of registered voters. Tunney who was ill in New York when registrations closed, contended the statute failing to provide for illness was "discriminatory."

BAR PRESIDENT STRESSES NEED FOR FIT JUDGES

Citizens Urged to Vote on Small Ballot.

Charles P. Megan, president of the Chicago Bar association, issued an appeal to citizens yesterday not to forget to vote on the small ballot for judges of the Municipal court when they go to the polls Tuesday. The fact that the municipal judicial candidates are placed on a separate ballot from the national, state, and county candidates has in past elections caused many voters to cast aside that ballot without marking it, Mr. Megan said.

"Twelve Municipal court judges—one-third of the bench—will be elected next Tuesday for terms of six years," Mr. Megan stated. "The Chicago Bar association recommends seven Republicans and five Democrats. Two years ago we recommended five Republicans and seven Democrats.

Pay Attention to Ballot.

"The Bar association's problem is to get citizens to pay attention to the separate judicial ballot. If the whole Republican ticket of judges is elected it will be a misfortune, for there are unfit men on that ticket; and if the whole Democratic ticket of judges is elected it will be a misfortune, for there are unfit men on that ticket.

"When you have a case in the Municipal court what difference does it make what the judge's attitude is on farm relief, or the tariff, or international relations? If citizens will go to the polls next Tuesday, take the bar association's marked ballot with them and vote accordingly they will be doing a great day's work for Chicago.

"The Municipal court is a great, a powerful court. Above all, it is the first and only court with which the vast majority of our citizens ever comes in contact. There they form their opinion of the kind of government we have. If the people allow political leaders to fasten themselves onto the court there is worse to come. Next June the entire Circuit court of Cook county—twenty judges—will be elected. A victory for good judges now will hearten citizens for the tremendous fight, which is coming next spring, to keep the courts clean."

Bar Recommendations.

The bar association recommendations for the Municipal court are: Democrats—John J. Rooney, Robert Jerome Dunne, Eugene Holland, John Gutnecht, and Cecil Corbett Smith. Republicans—Samuel H. Trude, Edward B. Casey, Samuel Heller, John A. Sbarbaro, George B. Holmes, Freeman Leroy Fairbank, and Robert E. McMillan.

For two vacancies on the Superior court, on the large ballot, the bar association recommends the two Republican candidates, City Judge Craig A. Hood of Chicago Heights and Municipal Judge Theodore F. Ehler.

Mr. Megan urged citizens to call on the bar association for copies of its marked ballots.

SEEKS ANNULMENT

OLIVE BORDEN SPECTOR.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Olive Borden, movie actress, brought an action today for the annulment of her marriage with Theodore Spector, to whom she was married at Harrison, N. Y., on March 28, 1931.

Testifying at a hearing today before Referee John M. Tierney, Miss Borden said that at the time she married Spector he was already married and that she learned only last April of the other wife, Pearl Marie Haworth Spector, who divorced Spector last July, more than a year after her own marriage to him.

A deposition by the former Mrs. Spector was read into the record of the hearing. It stated that she had married Spector in 1919 in Buffalo when she was 15 years old. He left her a number of years ago and she did not know until early this year of his marriage to Miss Borden, the deposition stated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The British government has no intention of seeking a postponement of next month's war debt payment of $95,550,000 to the United States. This was learned tonight. At the same time there are stronger indications than ever that the government plans to draw to the attention of the United States its difficulties in meeting the annuities. The chief objections are the decrease in British exports to the United States and the fall of the pound sterling.

HORNER SHOWS SMALL IS CIVIL SERVICE ENEMY

Judge Replies to Rival's Whispered Charges.

Len Small was denounced as "the proven enemy of civil service" last night by his Democratic opponent, Judge Henry Horner, as the campaign for the governorship drew toward its conclusion. Judge Horner accompanied the denunciation by a recital of Small's record on civil service legislation.

The judge made his principal addresses last night at massmeetings in the Oak Park Elk's club, at Boulevard hall, 55th and Halsted streets, and at the Savoy ballroom, 47th street and South Parkway. At the latter meeting he addressed a large crowd of Negro voters.

At least 6,000 men and women were inside the ballroom, while hundreds of others, unable to gain admittance, stood outside. The turnout was gratifying to Judge Horner and his friends, who regarded it as a break in the Negro organization which had been built up by Small.

Small Spreads Rumors.

The Democratic candidate declared his opponent's "animosity toward civil service protection for public employés has been so open, and his record in that respect while he was governor so notorious, that I would not take the time to recall it except for the fact that during this campaign he [Small] has seen fit to have circulated underground rumors, all totally false, to the effect that I was an enemy of civil service, that I favored curtailment of the tenure and pension rights of our school teachers, our police and firemen, and our other public employés."

"I am in favor of teachers' pensions as now provided by law and shall oppose any attempt to interfere with them. My position on the teachers covers my stand concerning the civil service rights of all other public employés, including our police and firemen."

Will Defend Rights.

Judge Horner promised not only to protect the tenure and pension rights of all public employés but to extend the merit system as far as possible. The Democratic Cook county members of the legislature, he added, have all backed his position in that respect.

Having given his own views on the matter, Judge Horner desired to "make you voters acquainted with the record of my opponent, who is circulating these underground attacks."

"He had hardly assumed office as governor," the judge declared of Small, "when he sent a special message to the legislature advocating the notorious Wheeler bill, which would have removed thousands of state employés from the operations of the civil service laws and thrown open thousands of jobs to the spoils system.

"The bill passed the lower house, but public indignation became so strong that there was a revolt in the state senate and the bill was defeated by a narrow margin and the civil service rights of thousands of honest public servants were saved."

Judge Horner concluded by declaring that "Len Small's underhanded attack hasn't fooled very many people. They know my opponent, they know his record, and it revealed him as the proven enemy of our civil service laws and the friend of the vicious spoils system."

DRAWS $2,500 FINE

[Acme Photo.]

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Jerome B. McCutchan, former St. Louis insurance company organizer, was sentenced to four years in Leavenworth federal prison, and Darby A. Day, former Chicago insurance company executive, was fined $2,500 by Judge Albert L. Reeves in federal court here today for using the mails to defraud.

They were convicted by a jury last week in connection with the affairs of the Chicago Fidelity and Casualty company.

In addition to the $2,500 fine, Judge Reeves placed Day on probation for one year. Day paid $1,000 on his fine and was given one month to pay the balance.

McCutchan's attorneys filed notice that they would ask for a new trial.

HIRAM JOHNSON MAKES PLEA HERE FOR ROOSEVELT

Assails Hoover for 'Pollyanna Platitudes.'

Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican of California, in a speech for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night, declared that President Hoover's philosophy of government "is predicated upon the divine right of big business to exploit the people."

The Californian, who was running mate of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 on the Bull Moose ticket, addressed an audience of 6,000 at the Aragon ballroom. He argued that Hoover has a "promoter's mind" stocked with "Pollyanna platitudes," and that the opposite theories of government in this campaign are "exactly the same which led to the glorious Progressive Republican adventure of 1912."

Introduced by Ickes.

The meeting was under the auspices of the Roosevelt-Progressive Republican committee. Harold L. Ickes, Bull Moose state chairman two decades ago, introduced Senator Johnson as "America's greatest two fisted fighting politician." The address, which was broadcast, was started at 10:30, and Johnson, who had listened on the radio to President Hoover's speech earlier in the night at St. Louis, referred to some parts of it as "bedtime stories."

Tonight Senator Johnson is to speak at Rockford, where President Hoover is to make a rear end platform speech this morning.

Charges that employers are bearing down on their workers in a "campaign of fear" were recited in a resolution adopted by the meeting, which indorsed the request of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska that a senatorial investigation be made of accusations that "coercion is being employed to force voters into support of Hoover."

Assails Hoover on Rum.

President Hoover's attitude on prohibition was assailed by Senator Johnson.

"There is no subject," he said, "which so plainly mirrors the President's mind as prohibition. To the drys of California he is dry, and to the wets of New York he is wet. He faces both ways, and is equally complacent which way he turns. The amusing thing about it is that men who in ordinary times bleat most about the horrors of the present situation, forget in their blind partisanship in a political campaign, their fierce denunciations of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

"Time has laid its devastating hand upon both and the existing conditions demand their abrogation. Mr. Hoover wrote the platform. He found it unsatisfactory to the east and he tried to revise that platform in his acceptance speech, and his revision was like many of his cryptic utterances, meant to be read both ways.

"Mr. Roosevelt is clear cut and none misunderstand him. He stands for repeal and immediate modification, and his is the only logical position in this campaign."

"In this campaign are two clashing philosophies of government," he said. "The one represents (and this is Hoover's) the divine right of big business and of the international bankers and great corporations to maintain, operate, and conduct our government. The other represents, and it is Roosevelt's, the right of all the people, high and low, big and little, rich and poor, to share in the blessings of government.

"It is Hoover's philosophy of government which has caused him instinctively and naturally to gravitate to the Mellons and the Vares and the Insulls and power trusts, the Morgans and Millses and the international bankers. It is just that philosophy of business which has conducted our affairs as if there were a divine right in 'big business' to exploit all the rest of us."

Charges Promises Broken.

Senator Johnson called the Hoover administration three years of "bewildered vacillation, false prophecies, and broken promises."

"The attitude of the administration," he said, "has been the attitude of the promoter who has bemused and beguiled a gullible public, inducing it to embark in his undertaking, and then, when losses or ruin face the deceived, unwary purchaser, the promoter sings his siren song of salesmanship and unctuously says it might have been worse."

In the category of "bedtime stories," Johnson placed President Hoover's "fanciful tale at Des Moines, which was at once challenged, of how we just escaped going off the gold standard."

The firm reported that it had $400,000 to place at 4 to 1 that Gov. Roosevelt is elected, $300,000 at 3 to 1 that he carries New York state, $50,000 at 5 to 6 that he carries New Jersey, $150,000 at 2½ to 1 that he wins California, and $50,000 at even money that he carries California by 175,000.

Another house reported having placed a wager of $1,000 to $5,000 that Gov. Roosevelt will carry New York state by 500,000. The firm said it had another $5,000 to bet at these odds.

G. O. P. TO CLOSE CAMPAIGN WITH COOLIDGE TALK

Hoover May Use Plane in Trip West, Rumor Says.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Calvin Coolidge is to make the final speech in the Hoover campaign. The Republican national headquarters in the Palmer house announced last night that the former President will speak over the air from his home in Northampton, Mass., on Monday night on the same radio program with the President.

The place from which Mr. Hoover will address his final appeal to the voters has not been determined. There were conjectures during the day that he might fly from St. Paul, where he speaks tonight, to Palo Alto, Cal., where he is to vote in his home precinct on Tuesday. Traveling by train the President would not reach Palo Alto until some time Tuesday, and the plans have been for him to pause at some city en route Monday evening to make a radio talk.

Rumor Hoover May Fly West.

Yesterday reports from St. Paul were that inquiries had been made by some Washington officials concerning possible airplane facilities, which at once led to rumors that the President might fly part of the way home for his final speech, somewhat after the fashion of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in flying from Albany to Chicago last June to make his acceptance speech before the Democratic national convention.

At headquarters, however, no information concerning the matter had been received last night from Washington or from the Hoover presidential train.

One report—unofficial—from Reno, Nev., was that President Hoover might make his closing talk of the campaign at Elko, Nev., the train halting there for the broadcast.

Tells Plan for Coolidge Talk.

The time for the final speeches has not yet been fixed by the party management, but headquarters said last night the President is to speak first on the program and Mr. Coolidge is to have the final word. Everett Sanders, national chairman, said:

"Ever since Mr. Coolidge delivered his Madison Square Garden speech on Oct. 11, national headquarters has been deluged with requests to 'get Coolidge to talk again.' With the tremendous swing to President Hoover in the last two days, these appeals to hear from Mr. Coolidge have been multiplied by the hundreds.

"The former President will deliver the final appeal in the Republican campaign for the reelection of President Hoover. He will speak from his home at Northampton, Mass., on election eve on the same program in which President Hoover will deliver his final message to the voters."

Claim States for Hoover.

At G. O. P. headquarters claims were made that Iowa, North Dakota, Minnesota, Colorado, and Washington now show an "irresistible Hoover sentiment" that cannot be checked. Of Iowa the report said: "The steady and rapid gains now going on in Iowa for President Hoover clearly show the greatest turnover in public sentiment that has ever taken place in the history of Iowa politics. This is based on detailed reports from over 2,000 precincts. A smashing victory for Hoover is assurred."

Of Minnesota a headquarters bulletin said: "Predictions for a Republican victory from district and county chairmen turned overnight into definite assurances when word was received that the President will speak in Minnesota."

A. G. O. P. Tabulation.

An unofficial tabulation of the states which are being claimed for Hoover by some of the leading prognosticators at Republican national headquarters is as follows, the figures showing the electoral votes:

California	22	New Jersey	16
Colorado	6	New York	47
Connecticut	8	Ohio	26
Delaware	3	Pennsylvania	36
Idaho	4	Rhode Island	4
Illinois	29	Utah	4
Indiana	14	Vermont	3
Iowa	11	West Virginia	8
Kansas	9	Wyoming	3
Maine	5
Massachusetts	17
Michigan	19	Total	294

This Republican claim includes most of the states north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi and some others. In addition, the Republican chiefs insist that Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Oregon, Minnesota, South Dakota, and Washington are all doubtful, with Hoover having better than an even chance in the last four mentioned.

After listening over the radio to the Hoover reception at the state arsenal at Springfield and to reports of his welcome at the towns where he stopped en route from Gary to St. Louis, the Republican leaders at headquarters last night set up a general claim that Hoover has more than the necessary 266 electorial votes "now in the bag." "Tuesday will see a Hoover landslide," they said.

AUTO DEATH IS UNSOLVED.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a finding that Louis Konizewski, 24 years old, 1539 Noble street, was a victim of manslaughter by persons unknown. Konizewski died Sunday after being thrown from an automobile in front of 3031 Armitage avenue.

HERE'S PEEK AT EVENTS ABOARD HOOVER SPECIAL

Day Crammed with Tense Activity.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—There is tension on the presidential special as it speeds across the nation. Tension in the lounge cars where politicians huddle in groups and discourse endlessly amidst blue clouds of tobacco smoke and in the drawing rooms and compartments of the nine Pullmans where typewriters and mimeographs click.

But there is tension most of all in the closely guarded private car at the end of the train where a gray haired man with troubled eyes labors with a corps of secretaries and stenographers.

For a few hours today this observer rode with the Hoover party. He was assigned to ascertain what life on a presidential train is like.

Scenes on the Inside.

Hundreds of thousands of citizens have assembled in scores of towns and cities to watch the imposing string of cars pull in. They see the President on the observation platform for a few minutes. They see a face or two at the windows.

A few newspaper men drop off and count the crowd, then pop back into the coaches. Telegraph messenger boys scurry to and from the train. The special pulls out. What the President and his party do the rest of the time remains a mystery to the public.

Here, then, is one day on the special. It is a day of bustle and confusion, of worry and frenzy. Over the whole train hovers that atmosphere of strained excitement which strikes the visitor almost with the force of a blow when he first boards the train. Even the porters and the waiters are not carefree but go about their duties uneasily.

Correspondents pound their typewriters, secret service men lurk about the private car anxiously. Minor politicians who clamber aboard the train at every stop, all a-twitter with importance, soon lose their assurance and chew their cigars nervously.

Activity Begins Early.

Activity on the train begins early. The President, an early riser, is stirring at 6 a. m. He and Mrs. Hoover, his personal physician, Capt. Joel T. Boone, and Mrs. Stark McMullen, a friend of Mrs. Hoover, occupy the four staterooms in the rear private car. In addition to these staterooms, there is a private dining room, kitchen and observation sitting room in the private car.

In the eight Pullmans ahead are the President's four secretaries, his band of stenographers, the twenty newspaper correspondents, the crew of secret service men headed by Richard Jervis, a staff of railway detectives, three publicity men, porters, waiters and other members of the train crew. One or two secret service men are always on guard in the President's car.

President Breakfasts at 7.

The President eats at 7 a. m. a breakfast prepared by a private chef and his assistant. He has his own waiter and his own valet. He eats heartily and swiftly, downing sausage and wheat cakes with gusto. Immediately thereafter the secretaries and the stenographers descend upon him. The whole train is awake at 8 a. m. The typewriters and the mimeographs begin to click. As the President works upon his next important speech, messengers carry the completed drafts to the stenographers and mimeographed copies are made ready for the newspaper men. A stream of persons scurry back and forth between the private car and other Pullmans.

This excitement gradually becomes more intense as Gary, Ind., the first important stop of the day, is reached. A crowd of 15,000 is assembled. The President emerges on the platform in the crisp morning air. He says the greeting extended him by the crowd is "heartening and encouraging." He speaks of the "three long years" of national crisis," and predicts that the turn has come. A stenographer takes down these extemporaneous speeches, and, half an hour later, copies are distributed to those on the train.

Delegation Comes Aboard.

Senator James E. Watson and a delegation of Chicagoans, led by Franklin Stransky, Silas H. Strawn, and others board the train. The lounge car is crowded with whispering politicians, waiting their turn to speak with the President.

Some get an audience, others don't.

The railway men on the train are among the most nervous. They tell how they ran this special train from Baltimore to Chicago and back merely to see that everything was in proper order. Pilot engines have gone ahead to test the rails. A railroad would feel itself disgraced if anything happened to the Presidential special. The railway men perspire slightly as they contemplate such a possibility.

The train is switched in the Gresham yards in Chicago. A few hundreds gather there, but the President appears only for a moment. The special skirts Chicago and heads for Joliet.

At Joliet, the thousands assembled cheer lustily and the President's face lightens as he speaks a few words. Men close to the executive say that he is greatly stimulated by applause. Color comes into his cheeks and the wind whips the thinning hair which has whitened only in the last three years.

Secret Service Men Busy.

The secret service men are no less under a strain. At each stop they scurry forth and surround the train. If there is a speaking platform, they search beneath it and around it. Jervis, the head of the service, stands always at the President's side. When the train moves again, the secret service men relax with sighs. They do not like these presidential tours.

At La Salle, Ill., where thousands again are massed, there is a hitch. Some booing and heckling is heard in the crowd. The President had been prepared to speak for a few moments, but the order is given to start the train. The shortened stop makes Gov. Louis Emmerson miss the train.

Between stops the President works on his speeches. He greets the politicians who get on at one town and ride to the next stop. The atmosphere of strain and worry does not lighten. The politicians mutter and pun furiously. The newspaper correspondents with afternoon deadlines haunting them, scribble and type madly. The stenographers dash up and down the train. The mimeograph girls whirl their machines. The presidential special, in the words of a grumbling porter, is "just a travelin' madhouse."

Philippines Enact Bill to Prevent Foreign Dumping

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The territorial legislature today enacted a bill to prevent dumping of foreign products in the Philippines and another measure repealing the statute limiting duties to 100 per cent.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Judge Henry Horner will carry Illinois by a plurality of 500,000 next Tuesday, Irvin Rooks, president of the Iroquois club, predicted yesterday.

The candidacy of John E. Northup, Republican nominee for attorney general, was indorsed yesterday by Sumner S. Anderson of Charleston, one of the board of governors of the Illinois States Bar association.

The United Depositors' association, which, according to Roland W. Erickson, president, represents 1,000,000 depositors of closed banks in Illinois, yesterday endorsed State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, Democratic candidate for auditor. "We believe," said Erickson, "that Mr. Barrett is freer from embarrassing political entanglements than his opponent."

Judge John A. Sbarbaro, Republican candidate for reelection to the Municipal bench, was endorsed yesterday by former Chief Justice Harry Olson, for 24 years head of the court.

Agnes Nestor, president of the Women's Trade Union League of Chicago, yesterday indorsed Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney. She especially approved his legislative record, she said.

Col. George G. Seaman of Taylorville, chairman of the Illinois Hoover-Curtis committee, handed President Hoover on his train at Gary a map claiming 59 of the 101 downstate counties for the Republican presidential ticket. "Illinois is safely in the Hoover column," he said.

Municipal Judge George B. Holmes, Republican candidate for reelection, has received the endorsement of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, the Cook County Wage Earners' league, the Calumet Joint Labor council, and the Chicago Fur Manufacturers' association, he stated yesterday.

"Only two weeks ago," said Congressman Dieterich, Democratic candidate for senator, last night at a massmeeting on the south side, "Mr. Hoover was telling the people that 'things might have been worse' but for Republican 'agencies,' 'instrumentalities' and 'economic strategies' during the last two years. Since then things have been worse for agriculture. Wheat and hog prices have dropped, and if Republican administration of the affairs of this nation continues for another four years every indication is that things will get much worse."

Former Mayor Carter H. Harrison, five times Chicago's chief executive, declared yesterday that the opportunity to elect Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic candidate for governor, "can best be described as a kindly act of a beneficient providence."

Evanston Police Recover 90% of Stolen Property

More than 90 per cent of property stolen in Evanston during the first nine months of 1932 has been recovered by the Evanston police, a report of Chief of Police William O. Freeman revealed yesterday. A total of $68,845 in valuables was stolen, the report said, and of this sum $62,523 was recovered. There were 26 robberies, and 14 were cleared up by the arrest of the robbers. Of 173 burglaries, 156 were cleared up.

HITS OPPONENTS FOR THEIR PLAY TO DISCONTENT

Campaign of Avoidance, He Charges.

"From the congressional elections in 1930 down to the present moment the strategy of the Democratic party has been an effort to implant in the unthinking mind through deliberate misrepresentation the colossal falsehood that the Republican party is responsible for this world-wide catastrophe.

"They then appeal to distress, hardship, and radicalism by nebular and inconsistent promises. These are the reasons they give why the Republicans of the country should desert their party and why the nation should abandon a constructive program with its accomplishment already demonstrated in overcoming the crisis.

"There is not a campaign of issues; it is a campaign of avoidances, and I propose tonight to discuss the nature of their campaign, its false premises, its vague promises, its shifts of position; and I shall also touch upon their destructive actions which have delayed recovery.

No Program Forthcoming.

"Despite the fact that Democratic leaders announced after the congressional elections two years ago that they would have a real program to end the depression, they produced no program, then or now, although the crisis at one time rose to a degree which endangered the nation.

"Instead of a constructive program the Democratic leaders passed a number of bills through the Democratic house of representatives designed to appeal to discontent and sectional cupidity and indeed of the type that would have destroyed the very foundations of our American system.

"Its threats to confidence set recovery backward. Their candidates have sought constantly to distort the facts as to the depression they have sought to minimize the measures by which the administration saved the United States from a generation of chaos. They fail even to mention the effect that these measures are having day by day in the steady recuperation of our economic life.

"Their leaders have taken no patriotic satisfaction in the fact that a million men have returned to work since the malign influence of the Democratic house and their allies was removed by adjournment of congress and the Republican measures and policies had an opportunity to work.

"The whole campaign has many aspects parallel with a campaign which took place in a former depression, of which I will read you a short description from a journal published in Washington during that time. That journal said more than half a century ago:

"'The circumstances on which the Democratic party base their hope of success in the present campaign is unquestionably the hardness of the times. Their expectation is that Republican voters will quit their party or at least remain at home on election day because they find themselves in straitened circumstances.

"'Even the ravages of the grasshoppers, damages to the crops by drought in some sections and excessive moisture in others are to be traced by some mysterious process to the maladministration and extravagance of the Republican party.'

Review of Expenditures.

"Later on that journal reviews the discussion of expenditures of the Republican administration during that distant period of depression, pointing out that the house of representatives was Democratic, as it is at present. It stated that 'there had rarely been such ignorance joined with a stubbornness more foolish than that which characterized the action of some of the leaders of that body.'

"And that—

"They likewise today repeat their promises of economy in the face of the attempts of the Democratic house last winter to fasten 3 billion 400 million dollars of added expenditures upon the government. The country wisely supported the Republican party in that election and made rapid recovery.

"A circular placed in my hands since coming to this state, issued by the Democratic national committee, says this depression was man made, and that the man who made it was myself personally. They express no gratitude that in my manufacture of this world crisis I have let this country off easier than Russia and western Europe and South America.

Appeal to Discontent.

"In this campaign of 1932, also despite overwhelming proof to the contrary but in order to make unceasing appeal to discontent, the present Democratic candidate and his corps of orators repeat down to the last 24 hours their unceasing statement that the Republicans are responsible for this depression and all that has happened in it.

"In the earlier part of this campaign the Democratic candidate held up the horrors of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act and of the stock market boom as being the sole causes of this world catastrophe. At Des Moines, Detroit, and Indianapolis, I established the complete absurdity of his tariff argument and the governor has since, at Wheeling, Baltimore, and Boston, uttered such confused changes in his tariff views that he can no longer consistently or conscientiously state that the tariff had anything to do with the world wide catastrophe.

"If he will make his contradictory statements on the tariff consistent it will have the disastrous political effect of requiring the deletion, so my statisticians tell me, of over 10,000 eloquent words from what he has said upon this subject.

"In order to continue the false premise on which the Democratic campaign continues to be based—that is, that the Republican party brought on the depression—he is now thrust back on his sole remaining explanation, to the boom of 1928. He argues now that if there had never been a boom there never would have been a slump; and if there never had a slump in the United States there would never have been a depression in the world.

"If by maintaining the prosperity of the country over a long term of years the people become so overconfident of the future and thus overoptimistic the Republican party might be praised at least for the period of prosperity. The collapse of the boom brought about great losses, but I beg to submit that some of the greatest leaders among the boom promoters of that period belonged to the Democratic party, and the Democratic candidate himself assisted actually in promotions during that period which he now so warmly denounces.

"I do not criticise his acts. He was merely participating in the prevailing mood, like the former Democratic candidate who undertook the construction of the tallest building in the world at the same boom time.

Stopping the Boom.

"Of more importance, the governor in his speeches conveys the impression that as President I should have stopped the boom. He does not describe the method by which I should have stopped it. Of course there is no constitutional nor statutory authority to Presidents to stop booms. If the President should have attempted to stop the boom one of the persons he would have needed to warn is the present Democratic candidate.

"The only way I can see that a President could even tilt with a boom would be to turn himself personally into a blue sky law and go on the stump analysing balance sheets and stock market prices and proving to the people that their investments were overvalued. I have little taste for this proposal that the White House should be turned into a stock printer's office.

"I earnestly object to the idea that such form of dictatorship should ever be set up over the American people, even if they do get overoptimistic. Even the Democratic platform does not seem to accord with the governor, for it says: 'We condemn the action of high public officials designed to influence stock market prices.'

Federal Control of Booms.

"This type of reasoning led the governor to propose in this city that the presidential influence shall be used 'in municipal finances. He said: 'If necessary they must be compelled to walk in the way of municipal honesty and efficiency,' and added: 'This is what I propose to do toward the credit represented by the 17 billions of municipal bonds.'

"It occurs to me we should need to revise our whole form of government and the constitution in a dozen places if the President is to supervise mayors and municipalities.

"The governor seems to have some idea of creating a federal blue sky law to prevent booms and control the issue of all sorts of securities. The full constitutional authority for action of this kind rests of course in the states, and I am advised that this is not within the constitutional authority of the federal government.

"In any event, I doubt whether the people in any state in the union would like to have another board in Washington, distant from their own close inspection and understanding, dealing out certificates as to issue of securities and thus controlling the industries of their states. In any event, his plan would be centralization of government beyond anything we have hitherto witnessed and does not seem to accord with the forgotten Democratic theory of state rights.

Not Tried in New York.

"All of this has been within the power of New York state, not only to protect its own citizens, but the citizens of other states, and the governor seems to have forgotten it until this campaign.

"Many years ago the Democratic party undertook to remedy this whole question of booms and slumps by the creation of the federal reserve system. That was the new discovery of its founders and, far from wanting the President to do this job, they stipulated that this board should have these powers entirely independent of the President by making the board bipartisan.

"It was indeed promised by Democratic leaders at the time the federal reserve system was created that they had found the solution to prevent booms, slumps, and panics. I could quote from a multitude of speeches at the time of the passage of the act and further from the assurances given in political campaigns as to this enormous accomplishment of their party.

Quotes Democratic Leaders.

"I find in speeches of President Wilson, Secretary McAdoo, Senator Carter Glass, and other leaders of their party the recurrent idea that through the control of interest rates and other authorities the federal reserve system would prevent booms, and consequently slumps and panics. A few of their expressions are of interest:

"'We shall have no more financial panics.'

"'Panics are impossible.'

"'Business men can now proceed in perfect confidence that they will no longer put their property in peril.'

"'Now the business man may work out his destiny without living in terror of panic and hard times.'

"'Panics in the future are unthinkable.'

"'Never again can panic come to the American people.'

"The whole country went along for years with much confidence in these statements, and although no one can say with certainty it is likely that this confidence contributed to the building up of the boom which led to the crash.

Relation to Federal Reserve.

"The governor will discover his errors in connection with responsibilities for this boom if he examines its relation to the federal reserve system. That system did loyally endeavor to restrain speculation. Many months before the collapse it issued warnings to the banks about loaning money for speculative purposes and gave these warnings to the public. It placed restrictions on rediscounts and they did force up the interest rate for speculative money to 15 and even to 20 per cent.

"But that did not stop the manias for speculation. I do not criticise the federal system. I believe in it. All the point I make is that using its utmost powers it failed in the face of a great mass movement.

"Now the blame is to be transferred to the Republican party for having failed to do the job which they promised would be done by the panacea of their own institution.

"Gov. Roosevelt also in a recent speech in defending his boom argument said that when our boom collapsed all but 20 per cent of the people of the world were in a state of prosperity. If he will examine carefully a statement of the national bureau of economic research, whose authority no one denies, he will find that the booms of the following nations had already collapsed:

"Germany, Australia, Japan, Mexico, Turkey, Rumania, Bolivia, Brazil, Indiana, Poland, and Bulgaria, embracing 600,000,000 people, and that coincidentally eleven other nations had been affected by those collapses—that is, the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, Hungary, Italy, Argentina, South Africa, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Peru, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Spain—had begun to decline, if he will check up the portion of the world included in those nations, he will find he has been misinformed about 800 per cent.

Says War Was to Blame.

"As a matter of fact, if the Democratic candidate actually wants to put the true causes of this situation before the American people, he should withdraw all this multitude of conflicting, confusing, and misleading statements and disclose to the American people that the most tremendous fact in modern history was the great war and its aftermath.

"It would be only fair to point out that the difficulties we are now struggling with even domestically in the United States consist to a large degree of the tremendous increase in public debt, the foreign war debts and liquidation of war inflation, the necessity to maintain a larger army and navy to protect ourselves in a greatly disturbed world.

"This war having come on during a Democratic administration, and they having spent the money, they should not have forgotten that the undertakings of that period are why create a multitude of the difficulties of this country today. They ought frankly to recognize the problem with which the American people are faced. The should not be appealing to discontent on a basis that ignores their full participation in the real causes.

Ignore Real Causes.

"If they wish to find solutions for the guidance of the American people through these times, they should not continue to ignore these great burdens imposed upon the United States nor the effect on the world, ourselves included, by the enormous blotting out of lives in foreign nations by the world war, the fabulous waste of their property, the fabulous increase of their debts, and the fabulous increase of armaments, and the continued friction and hate that have arisen among them out of harsh treaties.

"The Democratic candidate should not continue to ignore the panics which overtook these nations when their citizens recognized the fact that all property and material wealth must be readjusted in values from war consequences. He should not overlook the frantic attempts of their governments to reduce the expenditures of their people by reducing the import of goods, the scramble of their citizens to turn what property they could into gold, the ultimate results in dictatorships and upsets in governments.

"He should not continue to ignore the effect of these things upon the United States and the dangers which so accumulated that we became the last fortress of world economic stability, and at one moment we held even that by the narrowest of margins.

Tariff False Premise.

"He should recognize the effect of the stoppage of the import of goods by these governments, not out of tariff reprisals to the Hawley-Smoot bill but out of their public necessity. He should recognize the effect upon our credit system of the foreign withdrawal of $2,400,000,000 of credits and gold from the United States.

"He should recognize the fears which these events produced in our own citizens, causing them to draw out $1,600,000,000 and put it into hoarding. And he should cease to ignore the fact that we were faced with a crisis of such dimensions that unless strong action had been taken in the passage of a bill for which Democratic members of congress voted, with the full knowledge of the facts, we could not have held the gold standard.

"And he should recognize that unless we had taken other strong and unprecedented measures we could not have prevented the collapse of our insurance companies, our banks, the foreclosures on millions of homes and farms, the strangulation of credit which would have brought about almost total unemployment.

Vote Betrays Knowledge.

"It is true the Democratic members voted for the measure giving increased authority to the federal reserve system, creating the Reconstruction corporation, the support of mortgage banks, and if they did it without a knowledge of these facts of which they now appear to be so innocent they are an easier group to persuade into legislation than I have hitherto believed.

"They now fail to admit that these measures which we have put into motion have begun to bring about stability and prosperity in the United States, of which there is one great word of proof.

"That is that since the adjournment of the Democratic house of representatives last July down to the present moment over 1,000,000 men have gone back to their normal jobs. They are going back at the rate of 300,000 a month unless they are intercepted by a change in policies.

Sums Up Argument.

"Now, all of this statement that I have given to you has importance in four respects:

"1. Because it proves the falsity of the foundation of their campaign.

"2. Because it shows their utter confusion of mind, and either their insincerity or their utter lack of grasp of the forces loose in the world, and consequently the danger of placing men who have such a lack of penetration into the control of the government of 120,000,000 American people.

"3. Because the continuous broadcasting of misinformation, although it is daily of conflicting character as to where this calamity came from, indicates an irresponsibility which does not promise well for the government of these same 120,000,000 people.

"4. Because they should, as a responsible political party, cease to appeal to unthinking people for votes based upon their suffering by misleading them as to its causes.

Farm Relief Evasion.

"Having again disposed of the futile misrepresentations and evasions of the origins of this depression and the false basis of their appeal, I shall now consider some of their other evasions which have developed in the campaign. The Democratic candidate, in his speech of acceptance, says he will leave no doubt or ambiguity as to where he stands on any question of moment now before the country.

"Notwithstanding this disarming promise, the people are still unable to find the method by which he will execute his six point program for farm relief. It is one of the great mysteries of this campaign. It is a certainty that there will be six doors of exit from this attractive house, although he refuses to disclose the other specifications and the walls have not yet been built.

"The people have yet to learn what he proposes to do in respect to the soldiers' bonus. He seems to think that a cash sum of $2,300,000,000 to be paid 13 years hence is no different from cash, but he says he intends it should be paid when there is a surplus in the treasury with which to pay it. That means a surplus of $2,300,000,000. I assure the veterans that so long as there is a Democratic congress there will never be a surplus of $2,300,000,000.

Promises of Economy.

The people deserve to know more of his promise to take $1,000,000,000 off the expenditures of government, and before they can even start figuring on this question they must know whether he repudiates the Democratic proposals for $3,500,000,000 additional expenditures in the last session of congress. Does he repudiate the pork barrel and other expenditure bills?

"The people deserve to know why, even at this late date, the Democratic candidate has not disavowed the bill passed by the Democratic house of representatives to issue more than $2,000,000,000 of greenback currency, which bill, so far as Mr. Garner is concerned, remains upon the calendar as unfinished business of the Democratic house.

"The people deserve to know why he has not yet stated his position on the proposal to put the government into personal banking as provided in the bill passed by the last congress under Mr. Garner's leadership which I vetoed.

"The people deserve to know his views on the rubber dollar provided for in legislation passed by the last house of representatives.

Reservations on Tariff.

"The people deserve to know what all his phrases and reservations about the Hawley-Smoot protective tariff mean. He condemns it on every occasion. He gives one hundred per cent support to the competitive tariff for revenue. He gives nebular implications at Wheeling, Baltimore, and Boston that he will protect certain groups.

"Now the tariff is composed of different schedules. If he is sufficiently informed on the tariff law to debate its merits he must be sufficiently informed to say at once which schedules are too high. If he will do so we will at once have them examined by the tariff commission as to the truth of his assertions, and we can give quick remedy. His only answer seems to be that we should do away with the tariff commission.

"The people deserve to know whether—as he proposes to negotiate reciprocal tariffs—he will omit the agricultural commodities from these agreements.

"The people deserve to know whether the Democratic state committee of Oklahoma has his authority for their promise to secure federal legislation which will pour into that state 150 million dollars for liquidation of long since repudiated Indian claims at the expense of the federal taxpayer.

Reclamation Program.

"The American farmer deserves to know whether he is going to withdraw from the Shearon letter the proposal vastly to expand reclamation of land and thereby increase their surpluses, despite his assurances that those surpluses must be reduced.

"The people deserve to know whether he will support or repudiate Messrs. Wheeler, Norris, Huey Long, W. R. Hearst, and others in their long continued efforts to put government into large business undertakings.

"The people deserve to know more details of the promise set out in the Shearon letter that the whole of the unemployed in the United States will be at once given a job by the government.

"Are the people to assume that he does, or does not, endorse the system of national dole advocated in congress by his present supporter, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin.

"The people deserve to know whether he has accepted the proposal of his supporter, William R. Hearst, for a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for nonproductive public works to be paid for out of the treasury.

"They deserve to know if he joins with the same William R. Hearst in his opposition to the disarmament conference now in progress. Does he join with Mr. Hearst in his opposition to the promotion of peace by the Kellogg pact.

"The people ought to know if he still holds to his promise to solve the foreign debt problem by permitting foreign nations to sell goods in this country with which to pay sums owed our government. In other words, are we, by giving up part of our market at the expense of our own workmen and our farmers, to furnish our debtors with profits necessary to make payments to us.

"He has been very emphatic on the provision of distress relief. That is also perfectly safe, because the government has provided for loans to the states in need of help to provide such relief.

Stand on Prohibition.

"The evasions and misleading character of the campaign of the Democratic party are not less evident in their program for dealing with the 18th amendment than in the other questions they have discussed. They know that their own Democratic strongholds in the south, if none other, will not accept the proposal for outright repeal of the 18th amendment with the consequent return of the saloon and its resultant lack of protection to dry states.

"I stated in my acceptance speech what I believe is the only practical common ground with adequate protection on which this whole question can reach solution. That statement was the result of three years of intensive study and responsible experience with this problem. It was delivered to probably the largest audience of the radio and press ever gathered together in the United States. It is known to you. It is a matter of public record.

"Our Democratic opponents are trying to make another false issue over supposed coercion of voters by employers. In the first place the ballot in the United States is secret, no one can coerce a voter. In the second place the interest of employer and employé is identical in securing business upon which they mutually live. The Republican employer has the same right publicly to express his opinion on this election as has the Democratic employer and the Democratic orator.

"It is with sadness that I see attempts to mislead the people and avoid the real issues at an hour which demands a campaign of the most serious character.

Tells of Constructive Measures.

"I do not have time tonight to present the whole great constructive measures of the administration by which we defended the American people from acute danger of a generation of chaos from this world disaster. These measures are now placing us upon the road to recovery. They are vast and complicated. I think perhaps I can best illustrate the working of two only of them by short examples.

"I would like to have you picture a group of gentlemen sitting in the board room of the federal reserve bank in one of our important cities a thousand miles from Washington. Another similar group is seated in the board room of another federal reserve bank in a city some 900 miles from Washington. A group of advisers is seated with the President of the United States.

"Both of the city groups included governors of the federal reserve banks, directors of the Reconstruction corporation, together with the leading bankers and merchants of these two cities, embracing men of both political parties. It was Sunday afternoon and all had been summoned on a few moments' notice to meet a grave emergency. These three groups were continuously in communication by long distance telephone.

Banks Under Pressure.

"During the preceding week there had been a general run upon the banks in one of these important cities. All of the banks had felt the pressure of these unreasoning withdrawals. On Saturday morning the situation had become critical in the extreme.

"The financial districts were thronged with excited crowds of frightened and hysterical depositors. They filled the lobbies of the banks and stood in long queues upon the sidewalks. When the doors were closed for the day, there were still crowds demanding their deposits. Throughout Saturday evening and Sunday panic increased and began to spread like a contagion to the whole district.

"The banks were under heavy pressure because of the frightened depositors and the inability of the banks in the midst of the crisis to make a quick sale of their long term securities without such tremendous sacrifice as to imperial all of the depositors, up in turn to force the payment of notes of an army of borrowers without in turn forcing them to sell their homes and business at half price.

"It was found that one of the banks in one of these great cities had been weakened more than the others by these panic stricken depositors. Without assistance that bank would be unable to open on the following Monday morning.

"The failure of this bank in condition would have added to the panic which threatened to bear down on other banks in that city and spread in turn to other cities and involve many trust and insurance companies. The immediate problem was to provide before Monday morning a sufficient sum of money to quiet unreasoning fear and give absolute assurance that funds were available to pay every depositor in full without question.

"In the course of inquiry into the condition of the bank it was found that they had ample securities which in normal times could have paid out their depositors, leaving a large margin. But the securities could not be instantly sold at any price or at least at a price which would produce sufficient to pay all depositors and they could not collect instantly from the notes.

Many Small Depositors.

"In the inquiry into the condition of the bank it developed they had 122,000 depositors, of whom 105,000 were savings depositors; that the average of the savings deposits was only $140 each, many of them working women and children; that the safety of these depositors could not be separated from the other depositors of the bank.

"It was found that there were 17,000 commercial depositors, most of whom were men and women engaged in small businesses, whose deposits represented the money necessary to meet their pay rolls, the purchasing of their materials, and the discharge of obligations to others incurred in the course of business. Jeopardy to them meant that many thousands of men and women in factories and stores would be discharged into untold hardships.

"But these were not all who were dependent upon the maintenance of this bank. It was found that among the 17,000 commercial deposits 755 were country banks, the great majority of them in towns of less than 2,000 people. If this bank should fail many of these country banks must fail.

Widespread Influence.

"In the complex system of our economic life things that on the surface seem unrelated are in fact under the surface inextricably tied together. A farmer in a small town in an agricultural state might feel no concern for the safety of this important bank in a great city. The widow with a small deposit in a small bank of a town of another state might know of no relationship between her bank and the city bank.

"But the farmer in one state and the widow in another, even though they did not know it, had a direct financial stake in the fate of this city bank. For the country banks must conduct business with the city banks in the ordinary conduct of trade, and must carry their reserves with the city banks in order that they may draw interest upon them, which they in turn pay to their depositors.

"Now, it was found on examination that these 755 depositing banks had 6,500,000 depositors scattered over fifteen states. But that is not all. There were 21,000 other banks scattered throughout the country which had deposits in the 755 banks depositing with this particular city bank, and in these 21,000 banks were more than 20,000,000 depositors, and they involved widows, orphans, workers, insurance companies, manufacturers, and merchants.

Mass of Borrowers Involved.

"And in addition to all this there was the position of the borrowers from all this mass of banks. If this city bank should fail there must be immediate demand for the payment of the money due from its borrowers.

"If any of the banks dependent upon it should fail their borrowers in turn would be compelled to make immediate payment of money due and to realize upon their property at a time when property could not be turned into cash at anything like its real value.

"In this city bank and in the 755 banks who carried their reserve deposits in this city bank there was 695,000 men and women and institutions owing money on their notes. They were scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land. They were on the farms, in the cities, the villages and hamlets. Most of all, these groups of people were unaware of their danger. They were in their homes and in their churches, concerned with their own affairs—but they were not being forgotten.

Working Against Time.

"The men who had conducted this bank over a great number of years were men of high esteem in the whole community. To their credit be it said that their chief concern was the preservation of these hundreds of thousands or millions of people from disaster. They were not asking aid for themselves.

"The investigations and the conversations occupied many hours of continuous communication from these two cities to Washington and back again. Remember, this was on Sunday when the normal processes of business were difficult to conduct. Countless difficulties were encountered and solutions worked out. They were working against time.

"Finally, at 3 hours after Sunday midnight, the task was completed. The assets had been valued by the examiners of the Reconstruction corporation. The banks of the two cities joined in lending assistance and the Reconstruction corporation agreed to furnish a sufficient sum to assure that this bank could open without fear and meet every demand of its depositors.

"At 10 o'clock on Monday all these banks opened for business as usual. Public announcement was made that ample funds were on hand to pay every depositor. As had been anticipated, immediately excitement and panic subsided and confidence was restored. The crowds melted away—deposits began to return. The situation was saved, not only in this bank, but in the other banks which had been subject to heavy withdrawals.

"The loans offered by the cooperating banks and the Reconstruction corporation were never fully called for and have since been largely repaid, and every danger in connection with that episode is now over."

Gives Praise to Dawes.

"The central human figure of that bank was a man who had served his country for 40 years in many high capacities, who in recent years had been absent from the country in a position of first importance to the American people.

"That is the story of the Dawes bank in Chicago. You know the use our political opponents have made of this incident. They ignore the fact that Gen. Dawes resigned from the Reconstruction Finance corporation three weeks before, on his first news that attacks were being made on the bank with which his name had long been associated. He resigned to try to save that bank without call on the Reconstruction Finance corporation, of which he had been a director.

"He knew and appreciated the use that would be made in this campaign of such calumny. He sought to avoid it.

"And you should know that when that Sunday meeting started, Gen. Dawes stated that he could not bring himself to ask for assistance from the corporation in which he had so lately been a director.

"But it was upon the insistence of the two Democratic members of the Reconstruction Finance corporation board, sitting in the Federal Reserve bank meeting in Chicago and, upon the insistence of the leading Democratic banker of Chicago, who was then mentioned as a candidate for the presidency of the United States, and upon the insistence in New York City of the leading Democratic banker and a leading Democratic manufacturer, also mentioned for the presidency, upon insistence of the other Democratic members of the Reconstruction Finance corporation that this was no case of the personal feelings of Gen. Dawes or the effect upon my administration, that it was solely a case of national necessity and those men then and there jointly offered to take the full responsibility for the action.

Acted as Loyal Citizens.

"These men acted not because they were Democrats or Republicans but because they were loyal citizens of the United States. The situation demanded broad vision and comprehensive understanding of the problem, instant decision, bold and courageous action. Only by this was a major disaster averted. And I may tell you that not only were these loans adequately secured, but in the ordinary course of business they are being paid off.

"The constant misrepresentation of this episode for political purposes by Democratic politicians is a slander upon men of their own party as well as a cruel injustice to Gen. Dawes. It is a characteristic example of the character of this campaign. It is an insult to the American people to substitute this sort of political action for competent discussion of the grave issues which lie before our country.

"And I may tell you that this is but one of six similar episodes in great financial centers in the United States, the direct result of the shocks and fears which we received from the collapse of foreign nations.

Not Limited to Big Cities.

"But such action by our government agencies has not been limited to great financial centers. In over 5,000 towns of populations under 25,000 the Reconstruction corporation has had to intervene to save their banks under similar circumstances.

"Beyond that they have made loans to insurance companies with 15,000,000 policy holders, loans to 736 building and loan associations with over a million and a half members, loans to several hundred farm and home mortgage companies, agricultural credit associations, live stock credit corporations, all of them for the purpose of preventing the loss of hundreds of thousands of homes and farms and the destruction of their family life. The totals today aggregate millions of men and women who were not forgotten.

Made on Adequate Security.

"I may also remind you of one thing in respect to these loans. The law requires that they should be made on adequate security. The loans have been so made. Large amounts have been repaid. It is not a burden upon the taxpayer. But it is the salvation of millions of jobs to men and women.

"I have gone into this matter at such length to illustrate to you by actual example what the operation of the Reconstruction corporation has meant. This is an example of the meaning of my oft repeated phrase about the use of the federal government of the full power of its credit in time of great national emergency for the protection of millions of families.

"The Democratic candidate for President has since the beginning of the campaign been going up and down the country criticizing the Reconstruction corporation and maintaining that its actions have been for the benefit of large corporations and not for the benefit of the ordinary citizen.

Are Charges Sincere.

"Can he honestly believe that in the incident I have described to you and in the countless similar cases, the action was taken for the benefit of the bank and not for the depositors and borrowers. If he does not so believe, then I say in all solemnity that his action in fostering a spirit of discontent in a political campaign by the use of erroneous information merits just condemnation.

"One of his first utterances to this effect was immediately challenged by a prominent citizen of his own state, a former superintendent of banks, who addressed a letter to him setting before them the real facts and requesting a retraction. Weeks have now elapsed and that request has been met only by silence upon the part of the candidate.

"Now I wish to picture to you another episode in this supreme battle to protect the American people, the last fortress of stability in the world, but at the same time to extend a helping arm of assistance to another great nation.

Difficulties of Germany.

"In the latter part of May a year ago Ambassador Sackett made an emergency journey from Berlin to see me to present to me the desperate situation of the German people. His evidence showed that under the burden of unbearable debts and the cost of war, that Germany was rapidly disintegrating and the people desperately discouraged. They had made a courageous effort to meet these obligations, but their discharge was inexorably undermining their whole economic and social structure.

"In desperation those who had fought manfully to comply with the obligations imposed upon them had lost all heart for the future and were steadily coming to the conclusion that nothing short of a revolution such as that which had taken place in Russia offered them any hope of deliverance.

"Moved by the ambassador's picture of what was happening to the common run of men and women in that country, I took up that problem, not alone from the interest of this great mass of humanity but knowing that if that nation should fall the reactions upon the rest of the world and the United States would be irreparable.

President von Hindenburg knowing of Mr. Sackett's visit sent me an appeal of a character between heads of nations without precedent in diplomatic history. That appeal was, for preservation of a great people, that I should use the good offices and prestige of the United States for their rescue.

Moratorium Proposed.

"In order to give a year in which the world, particularly European nations, could come to a comprehension of what this disintegration was doing to civilization itself, I proposed the postponement of all international debts of one year.

"This was not easy to accomplish. The bitterness of war hates and nationalism, still rampant in Europe, made its acceptance doubtful. In order to make sure that it would be accepted in our country, I interviewed the leaders of both Republican and Democratic parties, and upon display to them of what was transpiring, secured their approval in sufficient number to assure that we could complete the measure on our side.

"I then resolved upon a bold course. I published the proposal within 24 hours after communications to the other countries in order that politicians of the world might not thwart it through processes of diplomacy.

"Immediately after this act, for the first time in the history of the world, I made personal, hourly use of the newly installed trans-Atlantic telephone and talked with our ambassadors in the presence of the leaders of the nations.

Accepted Quickly Abroad.

"I received wholehearted and immediate response from Signor Mussolini of Italy, the same sympathetic response from the prime minister of England. Furthermore, the governments of Belgium and Poland, which you might think would have retained more bitterness from the war than any other nations, responded instantly.

"The arrangements were not easy, as existing contracts were complicated in their relationship between many nations and it involved unequal sacrifice. Day after day, night after night, I was in communication first with one ambassador and then another, proposing methods to meet difficults which arose, building up adjustments amongst different nations, until finally that year of postponement was secured.

"And it was not merely a postponement of a year in the payments on debts for which I was seeking. I was seeking for a year in which Europe could solemnly consider the situation into which she was drifting. I was seeking to remove from the mind of the world the fears of debacle in civilization which were breaking down all security of credit and to bring to their attention the healing powers of international cooperation.

Changed Drift of Europe.

"You yourselves are familiar with the history of the year which followed. I know that the proposal of the moratorium diverted the entire current of thought and changed the history of what otherwise would have been a tragedy to the whole of civilization. It brought to new understanding the realization of the burdens under which Germany had been laboring.

"Under the impulses of these agreements and the recognition at least of the peril in which they stood, there came out of this agreement a great measure of redemption to the German people a sense of greater security to the world from the agreements at Lausanne.

"That agreement and the humane sympathies which were evoked by that new understanding of the post-war difficulties in the world has served greatly in the healing of the wounds of the great war.

"There lie in many events of the last three years great dramas, great tragedies. I have told of but two of them. But overriding all these incidents, the world has witnessed the courage of men and the willingness to place their fate and their political future at stake for the world's progress.

"No man can go through these episodes without belief that there is a great regeneration in the courage, confidence, and intelligence of men for the guidance of this world back toward stability and common interest in the development of human welfare."

HOOVER PLANS SCORE OF STOPS BETWEEN ST. PAUL AND COAST

Aboard Presidential Special, En Route to St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 4.—(A)—A definite itinerary, with nearly a score of stops between St. Paul and the west coast, was announced tonight for President Hoover's final dash home to vote in California.

The more important stops include Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, Ogden and Sacramento, with arrival at Palo Alto, Cal., at 1:15 p. m. on election day.

Radio engineers tonight informed members of the President's party that the projected broadcast of his election eve speech from the Nevada desert would involve many technical difficulties.

Tentative arrangements were made to have the broadcast made from some Nevada town en route. An hour's stop is scheduled at Elko, Nev., starting at 7 p. m. Pacific time, Nov. 7, and it has been tentatively decided that the broadcast will be made from there.

STEEL FIRM AD ASKS VOTES FOR HERBERT HOOVER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The Allegheny Steel company printed a full page advertisement in the Valley Daily News at Tarentum, addressed "to the employés of the Allegheny Steel company" and urging them to vote for Hoover.

One paragraph dealt with possible developments if Hoover is defeated. It read:

"Knowing that it had been repudiated by the people and was soon to go out of office, the Hoover administration would not feel justified in carrying forward until March 4 policies designed to accelerate economic recovery."

The advertisement then continued:

"Then, after March 4 it would be at least four or five months until the new administration was settled and in position to put into force any of its policies. Too, with an untried and untested man in the White House business would be strongly inclined to hesitate about planning developments or attempting aggressive policies."

HOOVER BARES STORY OF FIGHT ON DEPRESSION

the President, if he wanted the cause of the depression. He averred that both Democrats and Republicans were equally responsible for the boom and its aftermath of financial destruction.

Taking up directly the challenge that favorites had been played when the Reconstruction Finance corporation advanced millions of dollars to the Central Republic Bank and Trust company of Chicago—headed by former Vice President Charles Gates Dawes—the President told dramatically how the failure of the Chicago institution would have spread woe over the country.

He said that Melvin A. Traylor and Owen D. Young, both Democrats, approved and even urged, over the reluctance of Gen. Dawes, the making of the loan. That loan, he said, was made to save millions of depositors everywhere.

The President arrived in St. Louis after a busy day in which he had delivered talks at many points in Indiana and central Illinois. His speech here was comprehensive. He was 40 minutes late starting and the last part of his remarks was cut off on the radio when his time expired.

Speaks at Springfield.

To the harrassed farmer of the midwest, he renewed his pledge to help agriculture.

To the citizens of this section of Illinois, where Lincoln lies buried, he pointed a parallel between the situation of 68 years ago and of today. The solution of that situation, he declared, was the same now that it had been then—to maintain a Republican President in power.

Another ten thousand Republican loyalists were forced to stand jammed in the street outside, for want of room within the hall. Another ten thousand had gathered at the station to greet the President's arrival.

From the station, again in true old fashion Republican style, the President went to Oak Ridge cemetery to lay a wreath on Lincoln's tomb.

Then to the arsenal.

Given Rousing Welcome.

His appearance was the signal for pandemonium to break loose. The crowd whooped it up, sending out to the midwest the news that in Illinois anyway, there were plenty of faithful Republicans ready to shed their cheers for the G. O. P.

It was a demonstration that brought gladness to the hearts of those directing this last campaign swing through the midwest. They saw in it confirmation of the optimistic reports on which they have been building their hopes of wresting the disaffected central states away from Roosevelt.

Greeted by Crowds.

They saw in it a fitting conclusion to a day which the President spent in travel across Indiana and down through Illinois to the state capital. In the crowd at Springfield, they found a fitting complement to the crowds that greeted Mr. Hoover at Joliet, La Salle and particularly at Peoria, where a crowd estimated at between 40,000 and 50,000 turned out to hear the President speak from the rear platform.

The one sour note in the general harmony was Len Small, Republican candidate for governor. It was because Small was on the ticket that the President had kept away from Illinois for so long.

Today Small was very much present. He boarded the train on its arrival at Springfield, to greet Mr. Hoover in the presidential private car. He preceded the President into the arsenal. His picture adorned the flag hung walls.

He sat next Mrs. Hoover with her huge corsage of orchids and the two chatted together with a show of cordiality.

According to careful arrangement, which should keep Small just far enough away from the spotlight, Judge Stransky introduced Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and Gov. Emmerson introduced first Mrs. Hoover and then the President.

It was the first time in the campaign that Emmerson has sat on the same platform with Small.

Among others on the platform was Senator Otis F. Glenn. The senator somehow seemed to find a seat which placed Representative William E. Hull, lame duck congressman from Peoria, between him and the former governor.

Gov. Emmerson introduced Mrs. Hoover as "that distinguished and loveable lady who now presides over the White House." Then he introduced the President.

It was to the farmers that the President addressed the first part of his speech. He promised a pickup in farm prices. With a million men returned to work since congress adjournment a resumption of buying, an improvement of farm prices would soon be felt he declared.

Then the cheers subsided into seriousness as President Hoover swung into his analogy between the present economic crisis and the war time crisis of 1864.

Both Crises Came Suddenly.

Though their onset was perfectly apparent after the event, both crises, he said, burst open the nation suddenly; in both the turning point that led to eventual victory was long hidden behind the further battles necessary to push that victory to a conclusion; in both discouragement swept over the country at the very time that the march to a triumphant end was in progress

And in both crises, the President declared, it was the Democratic party, with its resolution advocating a cessation of hostilities, adopted at its Chicago convention in August, 1864, and with its present demand for Gov. Roosevelt's "new deal," which sought to recede from the tried course in favor of a change of leadership and a change of policies at Washington.

The President referred to the secret memorandum in which Lincoln wrote that even if he lost the election he was ready to keep on, for the Union must be saved before the new party came into power.

Again the audience applauded.

As the Union in 1864 voted to retain the leadership of Lincoln and the Republican party, so ought the nation in this peace time crisis, said the President, cling to him and his administration.

"In spite of the hardships, privations, and other difficulties of the time," President Hoover declared, "the nation in 1864 refused to be swerved from a course that had turned the retreat into an advance. It supported the policies whose value had been tested under the fiery strain of the struggle.

"By its election mandate it directed those to whom it had intrusted leadership to go forward with the campaign strategy whose results already were in evidence. It declined emphatically to turn aside to untried policies and experimental leadership."

Same Alternatives Now.

The President saw the voters faced in the present political struggle with the same alternatives which confronted them 68 years ago. Even the election day, he noted, fell on the same date—Nov. 8—in both years.

"My fellow citizens," Mr. Hoover proclaimed, "can we doubt what the choice will be?"

The "constancy of the Republican party," said he, had preserved the Union and was now leading to a solution of another great national crisis.

"The turn in the tide of the civil war was made at Gettysburg," the President said. "The turn in the tide in this crisis was made in the last winter. And just as after Gettysburg long months of continual battle were required to bring about the saving of the Union, in the same manner we must continue the fight today to recover our prosperity and to preserve the social and political principles for which Abraham Lincoln stood."

Tribute to Lincoln.

At the commencement of the speech the President made reference to Lincoln's tomb at the Illinois capital. He gave thanks, he said, for "the privilege of renewing contact with this shrine."

Then he launched into his recapitulation of the 12 proposals for the rehabilitation of agriculture which he made at Des Moines a month ago. He began with the tariff.

"Since that speech," said President Hoover, "the Democratic candidate has made further statements as to which he can only confuse the public mind and from which I do not believe American agriculture will secure much conviction."

On their tariff record, he said, the Democratic party and Democratic candidate were "scarcely the party and the candidate upon whom the Republican farmers of Illinois should depend for their protection."

Mr. Hoover said the Democratic strategy was to preach continued protection in the west, while holding out lower tariffs to the east. Farm prices, he admitted, were "distressing and heartbreaking," but a Democratic revision downward would cause a still further decrease. He cited soy bean oil, butter, and wheat as products which would suffer.

He recalled how he had spoken at Des Moines of two million cattle waiting to come in from Mexico at $2.50 a hundred to compete with American cattle selling at $4.50 a hundred.

President Hoover said this illustration had worried the Democrats who "have concluded that these cattle must be bony, skinny, and seventh class cattle." They were not, he said, but even if they were, how about the even greater differential between Canadian and American cattle, and between Argentine beef at $7 per hundred and American beef at $12, with only the tariff wall between?

He declared "the Democratic candidate" had spoken only vaguely concerning waterways; had offered vague promises concerning credit and farm taxes; had omitted reference to foreign marketing loans through the Reconstruction Finance corporation; had been hazy on the farm mortgage situation, and had omitted reference to farm representation at the coming international economic conference.

War Debts to Aid Farmers.

The President reiterated his Des Moines promise to use war debt payments to assist in the expansion of agricultural markets. Gov. Roosevelt, he said, wanted to lower the tariffs in order that foreign nations might flood this country with goods and so earn the money to pay the debts.

"The result would be to place the burden of these debts upon our workers by putting them out of employment and on our farmers by forcing their products to rot on their farms," said the President.

As for the advancement of agricultural prices, the President predicted that they would soon begin to move upward.

Contrasted with his own "earnest desire to rebuild agriculaure," said the President, the Democratic candidate "has developed one of the greatest mysteries of this whole campaign in his proposal for relief to agriculture." Instead of stating the method by which he proposed to restore agricultural prices, Gov. Roosevelt, the President said, has "stated with great care six methods by which he can escape from any demand that he make good on his mysterious proposal.

"And he could add two other doors of escape not mentioned," Mr. Hoover said. "First, that it should be constitutional; and second, that it should not violate the laws of practically every country in the world against the import of commodities produced as the result of subsidies.

"It seems to me cruel," the President went on, "to hold out hope to a suffering people by a vague plan, the most specific parts of which are the ways of escape from putting it into action. The only thing we know of the plan is that he is unwilling during all these many weeks to submit it to debate."

HOLD 3 TO JURY IN BOMBING OF McGOORTY HOME

William McDaniels, 5923 South May street, and three other men arrested in connection with the bombing on Sept. 20 of the home of Judge John P. McGoorty at 939 East 45th street, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Frank M. Padden in total bonds of $50,000. McDaniels was bound over in bond of $25,000 on charges of conspiracy to transport dynamite and bringing dynamite into the state.

Oscar and Norman Ball, brothers, of 1042 West 59th street, and George Gustafson, 1116 West 59th street, were held on charges of conspiracy to transport dynamite. Bonds of $10,000 each were set for the Ball brothers, and bond of $5,000 for Gustafson.

All of the defendants have denied knowledge of the bomb explosion in which Lee Wilbur Koeppen, 17 years old, was permanently blinded and a young woman injured. The prosecutors made no mention of the bombing and presented evidence concerning 13 sticks of dynamite found in the home of the Ball brothers. Gustafson, who testified for the state, said that he and the Ball brothers had buried the dynamite.

SCANDALS FILL EIGHT YEARS OF SMALL REGIME

Charges Against Several Appointees Recalled.

Len Small's own honesty was under constant attack in the interest cases for the first six years of his service as governor, but eight of his appointees also faced serious charges during that period and the remaining two years of his own two terms.

Some of these eight have been mentioned from the campaign platforms, but the references were sketchy. Examination of the records shows that when each of them was exposed there was much publicity reflecting chiefly on the state administration. The eight who have been referred to are W. H. H. Miller, Frank L. Smith, Will Colvin, Chauncey Jenkins, Thomas J. Houston H. U. Bailey, Julius Johnson, and Ben Newmark.

While these disclosures were current Small himself was subjected to further criticism for his own actions Among a number of accusations were charges that he used for campaign purposes an appropriation for the repair of civil war flags, that he paid his personal attorney $10,000 out of his contingent fund for "clerical services," that he permitted the Ku Klux Klan to use horses and other property belonging to the state.

Charge Mansion Stripped.

Then, at the close of his eight years during each of which there had been large appropriations for maintenance of the executive mansion at Springfield, the incoming governor, Louis L. Emmerson, found the mansion stripped of many of the fine furnishings that had been there two weeks before.

Rugs, draperies, linen, dishes, and other equipment were said to have been carried through the back door of the mansion at night and loaded on trucks that carried them to Kankakee. These charges were printed at the time—almost four years ago—and not until a few weeks ago was there an attempt at a public denial. This belated move was considered an attempt to stop circulation of the facts during the campaign.

It also was shown in 1928 that the money for the pay roll for the executive mansion employes was drawn in one check for a lump sum. The custom before and since the Small régime was to place the individual names of the employes on a mansion pay roll and pay them by separate checks.

Convictions of W. H. H. Miller.

"Colonel" William Henry Harrison Miller of Champaign, Small's running mate for lieutenant governor in 1920, was the first member of the cabinet to get into trouble. About a year after he was in office he was indicted and convicted of conspiracy to traffic in state licenses. The evidence covered licenses in medicine and pharmacy and checks used in payment for advance information concerning examinations. Miller was indicted in April, but was not removed by Small until August.

After his ouster Miller did not desert this field of activity. In 1929 he was convicted as a member of a ring dealing in bogus licenses for the practice of medicine, medical school diplomas, and similar documents. He was sentenced to the Cook county jail and, at last accounts, was still there.

Between his two convictions came the Small campaigns for renomination and reelection in 1924 and Small's unsuccessful primary campaign of 1928, in all of which Miller was listed as one of his supporters.

Case of Frank L. Smith.

From the standpoint of national and international publicity the case of Frank L. Smith aroused more attention than any other involving a member of the Small official family.

Smith was one of Small's first appointees. As a campaign pledge, Small had promised to abolish the state utilities commission. What he did was to change the name of the commission and increase the number of commissioners and assistant commissioners. Smith held the chairmanship of both the old and the new commissions.

While chairman he ran for the United States senate in 1926 and was elected. But before he was seated there was a senate investigation which disclosed that Smith, while largely controlling the actions of the state in the utility field, had accepted utility company contributions to his campaign fund totaling some $203,000. The contributions included $125,000 from Samuel Insull.

Rejected by the Senate.

Before the first session of the new congress, the incumbent whom Smith had defeated for renomination William B. McKinley, died. Small appointed Smith to the short term vacancy. He was rejected for both this short term and for his full term by the senate. Then he resigned his certificate of election, Small called a special election to fill the place, and Smith was beaten in the primary of 1928 by the present senator, Otis F. Glenn.

Pardon and Parole Scandals.

In Illinois and to some extent outside the state there was considerable furor all during Small's previous terms over unexplained generosity in the issuance of pardons and paroles, particularly pardons for serious offenders.

Charges that large sums of money changed hands in connection with many instances of executive clemency were made, but two of Small's appointees, Chauncey Jenkins, director of public welfare, and Will Colvin, chairman of the pardon board, under Jenkins' supervision, always "held the bag" when they were called to the witness stand. They did not involve Small in any of their business.

Under demands from two grand juries and from Attorney General Carlstrom Small agreed to remove Colvin from office. He did so eventually, but immediately appointed him to another place on the pay roll, that of assistant commerce commissioner. Small refused demands that he also remove Jenkins. Both of these former appointees are active now in his campaign in Sangamon county, where Colvin is said to be his manager.

Small's insurance division caused him trouble during most of his eight years in office. The first of it came during the service of Thomas J. Houston of Chicago as insurance commissioner. A tide of resentment against Houston's actions, which were supposedly dictated by Samuel A. Ettelson, grew until at the end of two years Houston was asked to resign and did so, saying he withdrew gladly from a difficult situation. His resignation checked an imminent scandal of large proportions.

Toward the close of Small's second term he appointed as insurance commissioner H. U. Bailey of Princeton one of the downstate men on his pay roll, who already held an assistant commerce commissionership.

A storm centering on Bailey's handling of insurance companies in receivership or liquidation, which included a generous distribution of the assets of the defunct companies among relatives and political associates, forced the new commissioner to resign in a hurry.

Charges in the Legislature.

One of the first of the Small scandals in the legislature occurred during the first session under his administration in 1921. Serious charges were made from the floor of the house.

Small's own bill to destroy state civil service was up for action when Representative John A. McNeill of Olney assailed the small lobbyists operating on the floor in violation of the rules. His and others' charges were that Julius Johnson, secretary of the utilities commission, had sought to obtain votes for the raid on the merit system by bribery.

It was charged that two Springfield representatives had been promised that if they would vote for the bill a provision in the omnibus bill restricting permanent improvements at the state fair grounds would be "killed." Another representative, Truman A. Snell of Carlinville, a Democrat, was offered an assistant commerce commissionership at $5,000 a year.

Small Retains Johnson.

There were demands that Johnson be fired. Instead, when the utilities commission was replaced by the commerce commission—chiefly through a change of title—Small named him secretary of the "new" commission, a capacity in which he served until the end of Small's second term.

Ben Newmark's connection with Small first received attention when that "investigator" was suspected of tampering with the jury in the Small criminal case at Waukegan, was sentenced to jail for contempt after refusing to answer questions before a grand jury, and was pardoned by Small.

There were many other scandals in Small's eight years in the governor's office, some of them involving him and others involving only his appointees. Those described are considered the more important ones.

ROOSEVELT'S SON ASKS CHANGE IN U. S. LEADERSHIP

James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, last night pleaded for a change in national leadership, in asking support for his father at the election Tuesday. He spoke before the Illinois Young People's Democratic league at the Medinah Athletic club.

He charged the Hoover administration with failure to face the economic problems of the country, with making every effort to hide the facts and avoid an honest accounting, and with ignoring the relief measures of a bipartisan house of representatives.

The Democratic platform, with its offer of a cure for the economic troubles of industry and agriculture, has brought the country into the movement for change against the Republican policy of lending more and more money, he said. The Democratic platform, he added, does not advocate such a lowering of tariff walls as would open the gates to unfair competition, but does favor adjustment to bring back trade.

Says People Want Change.

"The American people want a change," said Mr. Roosevelt, "because they realize, through bitter experience, that a President must be trained in the science of government, and have realized President Hoover is not trained to handle a friendly, let alone a hostile, congress; not trained to withstand the tremendous pressure of lobbyists or special interests; not trained to coordinate the complicated functions of government. In other words, he is unable to get things done.

"Only under a new leadership will the burden of taxation be lowered. History shows the party which has built up and is responsible for the overworked, overbureaucratic government is never the party to do the job of cutting. Only under the Democratic party can a reorganization of bureaus and departments be made, so that federal expenditures can be reduced at least 25 per cent."

Candidates Are Speakers.

Floyd M. Kenlay, president of the Illinois Young People's Democratic league and son-in-law of Mayor Cermak, presided at the meeting. Other speakers were Mayor Cermak, Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor; W. H. Dieterich, candidate for senator; Thomas J. Courtney, candidate for state's attorney, and Judge Otto Kerner, candidate for attorney general. Mr. Roosevelt left the gathering to be introduced at a massmeeting in the Aragon ballroom, and then departed for New York, where he will speak this evening.

RUDDY ASSAILS RECORD OF KANE CO. PROSECUTOR

Declares Carbary Has Failed in Duty.

Clarence J. Ruddy, Democratic candidate for state's attorney of Kane county, speaking yesterday at Aurora, said that his opponent, State's Attorney George D. Carbary had failed to fulfill the duties of his office which require the prosecution of all actions, civil and criminal, in which the people of the state or county may be concerned.

Ruddy cited the prosecution of the "Butke case" as an example of the neglect of his official duties by State's Attorney Carbary. Fred Butke, who was auditor of Kane county, committed suicide on May 4, 1931, after embezzling $75,000 from the county. Shortly before his suicide he established a trust fund in practically the amount of his embezzlements, his wife being the beneficiary.

File Suit to Recover Funds.

Suit was filed by the county to recover the money from the trust fund but in the seventeen months that have elapsed, Carbary has appeared in court only once in this case, and then to move for a continuance, Ruddy stated.

"The entire work in this case was delegated to an assistant," Ruddy told his audience. "Carbary appeared before the board of supervisors and said he did not need assistance on this case. Had Carbary been on the job and recovered this money it would have fed 2,000 destitute families through the winter.

"Although Carbary professes to be greatly overworked, he took time a month ago to go from Elgin to Seattle, Wash., and a couple of weeks later went to New York City, merely to bring back some criminals. Deputy sheriffs could have done that job and should have done it as the law says the state's attorney shall prosecute criminals, not apprehend them. If he had stayed home he could have devoted the time to the Burte case."

A Vigorous Campaign.

Ruddy, an attorney and a vigorous man in the prime of life, is stumping the county in an effort which his friends say will be successful. He lives in Aurora, was born in Batavia, in the same county, and his family are old residents of Kane county. It is predicted that he will carry the city of Aurora by upwards of 7,000 votes.

Ruddy referred last night to Carbary's unpopularity in that section, because of the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King by dry snoopers who invaded the De King home under Carbary's orders. That has been Carbary's policy, he charged, to harass home brewers and raid private homes seeking liquor while a $10,000,000 liquor conspiracy was under way in the county and later exposed by government agents.

Actress Asks $100,000 of Financier for Auto Injury

1,000 TURN OUT FOR FINAL RALLY OF G. O. P. WOMEN

Listen to Broadcast of Hoover Speech.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

A gay atmosphere radiated yesterday from the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. One thousand Republican women voters, ward workers, and poll watchers, concentrating there for their final massmeeting before election, talked over the important details of Nov. 8, but the afternoon was far from being a routine business session.

Party clothes and political chatter blended successfully with the special program of campaign songs and the radio broadcast of President's Hoover's speech at Springfield. And after the items of instruction on election day proceedings had been given, everybody, including the numerous candidates, who were presented but not given time to make addresses, rallied around the tea tables.

Senator's Wife Is Guest.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Wyle Sherman, who then turned it over to Mrs. William Severin, chairman of the women's division of the Cook County Republican Central committee. Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of Senator McNary of Oregon, was present as the guest of Mrs. Bertha Baur, who was hostess for the occasion in her capacity as national committeewoman from Illinois.

About the time the last chair in the overflowing balcony had been appropriated by late comers, a trio of girls from Joliet made the hit of the program with a parody on "Over There." The singers were Helen, Eileen, and Adele Jensen.

Business Women Meet.

Business and professional women of Chicago trooped into the same room again last night, for a massmeeting that was one of 20 held in as many towns and cities of the state under the direction of Miss Jessamine Hoagland, state chairman of that business women's group for the Republican national committee. Miss Jane Magan of Chicago presided and introduced the speaker, Miss Marion McClench of Detroit, national chairman of the business and professional women's division of the G. O. P.; Mrs. James W. Morrison of Groton, Conn., and Mrs. Mabel C. Reinecke.

Hollywood Dog Runs Wild; 8 Persons Taken to Hospital

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Eight persons, including a small child and a 73 year old man, were under treatment at the hospital tonight for bites inflicted by a dog which ranged savagely over an area of several blocks. The animal was killed by motor police. They said it was a young police dog of apparent pedigreed stock. A rabies test was ordered.

RUSSIA BOOSTS ARMY AND NAVY PAY UP TO 100 PCT.

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Increases in pay ranging up to 100 per cent in some cases were ordered tonight for the army and navy as soviet Russia's fifteenth anniversary present to the nation's fighting forces.

All classes, from the lowest grade soldier to the highest ranking officer benefit by the order, which was made effective Nov. 1. Increases of 100 per cent went to the crews of warships. For officers of all branches of the two services, the pay rises ranged from 42.9 per cent for a chief of squad [corresponding to an American army captain] to 83.3 per cent for the chief of an aviation brigade.

The actual pay of officers was not made public, but the common soldier will receive six rubles a month under the new scale, and a senior sergeant the highest noncommissioned grade, will get 30 rubles [the nominal value of the ruble is 51½ cents].

WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE FROM W. V. O'BRIEN JR.

Miss Mildred Diane O'Brien yesterday filed suit for divorce from William Vincent O'Brien Jr., son of the proprietor of the O'Brien Art Galleries at 673 North Michigan avenue. The bill, filed in the Superior court by Attorney Preston Boyden, charged desertion. The couple were married on June 8, 1929, and separated, according to the bill, on Sept. 17, 1931. Mrs. O'Brien asked no alimony. Her husband is said to be living at the home of his parents, 1210 Astor street. Mrs. O'Brien formerly was Miss Mildred Ross, daughter of Mrs. Frank Pierce Ross of Oak Park.

Court records yesterday also included a suit for divorce filed by Mrs. Clara H. Cary Thompson against Robert Haviland Thompson, former president of the Moffett photograph studios. She charges desertion. Mrs. Thompson is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Cary.

sertion. And I might add, Senator Glass made a devastating challenge that no responsible government would have sold to the country securities payable in gold if it knew that the promise, yes, the covenant, embodied in the securities was as dubious as the President of the United States claims it was.

"Of course, the assertion was unsound. In the reiterated apologies for it that have come from the administration, many words have been added like a leech to suck from the original statement its deadly meaning. But this administration is not content with adding words to make a bad case look good. It also knows how to take words away to make a bad case look better."

Then answering the Hoover charge that the Democratic policy would destroy the soundness of the currency, Mr. Roosevelt said the President "is seeing visions of rubber dollars." The governor repeated his affirmance of the Democratic platform, which advocated a sound currency "to be preserved at all hazards," and then he quoted from several speeches to show that he always has held for sound money.

"So I am going to recall to your mind tonight," he said, "a few of the promises of 1928 and a part of the performance in the four years from 1928 to 1932.

"The government today is costing the people of this country more than it ever cost them at any peace time since the civil war. Now, the sin of it is that no attempt was made to bring it about. It could have been done.

"The governor tonight spoke about the overlapping and the duplication of effort and the waste and the extravagance that comes from this vast machine we call the federal government. That could have been attacked; that could have been cured. Not only did nothing happen but, Hoover himself, with the aid of a Republican congress, further bedeviled the situation by creating in four years thirty-five new departments and boards.

Charges Deficit Is Concealed.

"The worst thing that you could possibly do in government occurred in the last four years, and that was to conceal a deficit.

"What would you think of an employé in your particular line of business who would withhold from you the information that you were in financial distress and keep it from you until such time as it came back to plague you? That is exactly what happened. Out with him? I say 'Out with him twice.'

"Well, here is a good promise—tax reduction, and they said it with such a sober countenance that there was not the evidence of a smile when tax reduction was promised in 1928. But in 1932, at a time when the American people can least bear it, they are being borne down to the earth by the heaviest taxation ever imposed upon this country."

Turns to Foreign Debts.

Mr. Smith turned to the discussion of foreign debts, saying:

"When the time came, however, for the payment, the President was obliged to declare a moratorium on the payment, and when congress convened, they O. K.'d it, but they said at the end of the bill, 'It is all right this time, but don't do it again.'

"And let me say this in passing, that the present estimates of revenue for this fiscal year contain an item of $270,000,000 supposed to be paid to us by the nations across the sea. Not a single one of them except England has made any provision in their budget, and we are kidding ourselves that we can get that money. I will take that back. We are not doing it; Washington is."

Mr. Smith said regarding the liquor issue:

"There is a section of that platform devoted to law enforcement. And they spent a half a million dollars to have put into type what everybody of ordinary intelligence in the United States knew. And when the report was presented to the President he said, 'All right, we will keep it, anyway,' like as if it was something that was intended to come back and plague them.

Put Little Thing in Platform.

"Without much reason for it they put a little thing in the platform that made me sit up and think. It has to do with campaign expenditures. And here is what it says: 'Economy, honesty, and decency in the conduct of political campaigns are a necessity if representative government is to be preserved to the people and political parties are to hold the respect of the citizens at large.'

"As far as the 1928 campaign is concerned I can say nothing about the economy because I know nothing about it. But as to its decency and its honesty, the Republican party for as many years as I have lived, in my opinion, has forfeited the respect of the people of this country."

The latest report is that Mr. Hoover is making fourteen speeches a day, with a hurried trip across the continent to the palatial castle at Palo Alto. Is that the way you say it?" Mr. Smith added.

Feels Ground Slipping.

"What is the reason for it all? He feels the ground slipping under him. He feels the force and the impact of the Democratic campaign based upon honesty, and based upon sincerity. President Hoover wouldn't have to make fourteen a day if, in the beginning of his term, he talked a little plainer to the American people: if he had come down off that pedestal and used this apparatus here that talks to the whole country and told them what he really thought about it. It is a matter of cold fact that for one solid year no news came from the White House except a discussion as to where Mrs. Gann was to sit when she entered a dining room.

"Now then, you feel compelled to kind of hand it a little bit to a wise fellow. Mellon was a wise fellow. He took to the tall timbers before the crash. And listen: Incidentally, you don't hear anybody saying any more that he was the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton, although we are all ready to concede that Mills is the greatest secretary of the treasury since Mellon.

"Now, there were a number of friends of the President that called on him on Monday and according to the paper as I see it, it says: 'They asked him if he would sign a bill legalizing light wines and beer if the forthcoming session of congress voted such a bill.'

Friends Call on President.

"Now, listen: That was a friendly act, that was the least that you could ask a man to do. They were really asking him if he would accept the expressed opinion of the people of this country through their representatives. They were trying to find out what he would do if the American people, through their representatives, spoke.

"And what did he say? 'I am in receipt of your telegram stating that representations are being made since my acceptance speech that I have changed my position on prohibition. I would be glad if you would reply to any such misrepresentations that my position is unaltered.'

"What else could he do? What else could he say? He is unable to deny the assertion that I made early in the campaign that he is the leader in this country today of the dry party.

"Now, let us hope that the American working man, after the experience of the last four years, is not going to be foolish enough to fall for that. What have we had? A campaign upon the record? An appeal for support upon the performance? Why, not at all. It has been a campaign of fear, of threat, and of intimidation."

Mr. Smith then turned to a discussion of New York state issues.

ROOSEVELT SUMS UP CAMPAIGN IN BROOKLYN

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Following is the text of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's address tonight in Brooklyn:

"I have returned to the state of New York to spend the last four days before election among my neighbors, and it is to me a happy homecoming. I have visited thirty-seven states, traveled thousands of miles, and I cherish with a deep feeling of apreciation the courtesy and enthusiasm with which literally millions of my fellow Americans have greeted me.

"I have returned with the first hand knowledge that the nation is every part is stirred by a great human crisis. The outpourings of humanity in the great cities and in the agricultural communities brought to me an even deeper realization of the responsibility I face.

"Because of what I have seen, I have been scrupulously careful to make no idle promises, to raise no false hopes, and at the same time to engage in no personalities, no unfair innuendoes, no baseless charges against the President of the United States.

The Way Out of Disaster.

"In simple terms I have attempted to say to the people of this country that the way out of disaster and depression is a battle to be fought by the people; that the task of rebuilding must come from the resolute action of millions of men and women who belong to all parties; but at the same time that leadership is essential to provide for them plans of action and to keep vividly before them the definite objectives.

"Leadership looking to action is the greatest issue to be decided on election day. If the voters of the United States are content with the President's slogan, "It Might Have Been Worse," they will give him the opportunity to pursue his present policy of merely preventing things from getting worse. If, on the other hand, they are unwilling to stop there, and believe that vigorous leadership and planned action will make things better, then the Democratic national ticket will receive an overwhelming mandate in every section of the land to proceed with the task.

"I have built, as the weeks have passed, a program of action for the federal government—no utopia to delude us again with the thought of magic things still hidden—just around the corner—no glittering generalities to make us believe that all has been done that could have been done; and above all, thank God, no gospel of fear and panic to sweep away the fine patience and sane courage that I have seen everywhere.

Model for Brevity and Clarity.

"Instead, I have offered the practical common sense of the Democratic platform, a document which will live in history as a model for brevity and clarity—a document which by contrast with the thousands of words of bombast, of evasion and of deception in the Republican platform, set the keynote for the whole campaign and started four months ago the surge to Democracy which will result in a victory that will be heard around the world on Tuesday next.

"I have pointed out and driven home by straight argument, based on undisputed facts, that the administration of government under the present leadership in Washington has been distinguished by destruction, delay, deceit and despair.

"When I think of the unnumerable people I have seen in this campaign, patient, steadfast, though bitterly hurt in the collapse of our economic life, I feel that to take advantage of their deprivation to spread among them a gospel of fear is about the most reprehensible act of a campaign that has yielded many examples of unscrupulous appeals for votes. The business men of the country, battling hard to maintain their financial solvency and integrity, were told in blunt language in Des Moines, Ia., how close an escape the country had some months ago from going off the gold standard. This, as has been clearly shown since, was a libel on the credit of the United States.

Insists Glass Answers Hoover.

"No adequate answer has been made to the magnificent philippic of Senator Glass the other night, in which he showed how unsound was this assertion. And I might add, Senator Glass made a devastating challenge that no responsible government would have sold to the country securities payable in gold if it knew that the promise, yes, the covenant, embodied in these securities was as dubious as the President of the United States claims it was. Of course, the assertion was unsound. In the reiterated apologies for it that have come from the administration, many words have been added, like leeches to suck from the original statement its deadly meaning. But this administration is not content with adding words to make a bad case look good. It also knows how to take words away to make a bad case look better.

"One of the most commonly repeated misrepresentations by Republican speakers, including the President, has been the claim that the Democratic position with regard to money has not been made sufficiently clear. The President is seeing visions of rubber dollars. This is only a part of his campaign of fear. I am not going to characterize these statements. I merely present the facts.

"The Democratic platform specifically declares, 'We advocate a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards.' That is plain English.

Favors Sound Money.

"In discussing this platform on July 30 I said 'Sound money is an international necessity; not a domestic consideration for one nation alone.'

"Far up in the northwest, at Butte, I repeated the pledge of the platform, saying "Sound currency must be maintained at all regards.'

"In Seattle I reaffirmed my attitude on this question. The thing has been said, therefore, in plain English three times in my speeches. It is stated without qualification in the platform and I have announced my unqualified acceptance of that platform.

"So much for that misrepresentation!

"I cannot take the time to give adequate attention to the entire range of the President's panic-stricken recital. It would be a dreary though amazing record. We are able, however, to determine the quality of a candidate's representation to the country by the process of sampling. I have given you one sample. I shall add another.

Charges Hoover Misquotes Self.

"The President at Madison Square Garden on last Monday night not only misrepresented me, but misquoted himself. The President stated:

"'In my acceptance speech four years ago at Palo Alto is stated that:

"'In America today we are nearer a final triumph over poverty than in any land. The poorhouse has vanished from among us; we have not reached that goal, but given a chance to go forward we shall with the help of God, be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation.'

"'Our Democratic friends have quoted this passage many times in this campaign. I do not withdraw a word of it . . .'

"No more surprising statement has been uttered by a man occupying the highest office in the gift of the American people. No Democrat has ever quoted that passage because no such utterance was ever made by the President in his acceptance speech at Palo Alto.

Quotes from G. O. P. Book.

"Democrats and many others have quoted the statement made by the President in his acceptance speech four years ago as it appears in the Republican campaign book of 1928, and also in the book entitled 'The New Day,' which contains the campaign speeches of President Hoover.

"As officially presented in these official source books, the President said:

"'We in America today are nearer to the final triumph over poverty than ever before in the history of any land. The poorhouse is vanishing from among us. We have not yet reached the goal, but, given a chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years, and we shall soon with the help of God be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation.'

"I beg you to observe how the President has misquoted himself. First, he has eliminated the word 'yet,' which indicated that the millennium soon was possible.

Eliminates Word Soon.

"Second, he has eliminated the word 'soon,' which gave to the people the hope that his election would accomplish its arrival.

"Third, he has eliminated the words 'with the policies of the last eight year,' which were then used to indicate that the arrival of the millennium would be thought about only by a continuation of the policies of the Republican administrations preceding him.

"Certainly, I subscribe, and all citizens will subscribe, to the ideal expressed by President Hoover in his speech at Madison Square Garden Monday night. But we do not subscribe to the absurd promise of Candidate Hoover in 1928, nor can we understand how the candidate has in this amazing way misquoted himself.

Calls Facts Misinterpreted.

"I cannot completely recount the extent to which this administration has misinterpreted the facts in order to retain its power. I pointed out the fallacious and ruinous business administration that has characterized its budget transactions. After the President the secretary of the treasury had purported to answer my argument, a staid and impartial business journal, the Annalist, justified what I had said in the following words:

"'Specifically and foremost, the federal burget is in a shocking state. The Washington administration knew quite well that it was not even "substantially" balanced when congress adjourned last June. The actual deficit for the current fiscal year, amounting now in the middle of the fourth month to seven hundred millions or more, has been concealed as far as possible by the administration. Returns from new taxation have discredited practically every forecast made by the treasury.'

"This conservative and dependable journal likewise speaks of the unreliability of the President's utterances with regard to other subjects. It says that in his eleventh hour campaign he has made 'loose, if not completely misleading, references to recent and current records.' It speaks of inaccuracies in his statements with regard to building contracts and freight loadings; moreover, it challenges the assertion of the federal reserve bulletin about a decrease of hoarding, and finally, it publishes an article with something close to editorial indorsement, which sadly upsets the sweeping assertion that the depression began abroad. This feeble alibi I destroyed in my Louisville speech. So far as I know, the administration has failed to controvert me.

"I have said that the present administration has abandoned even the historic principles of the Republican party.

"What, for example, would William McKinley, James G. Blaine, or William Howard Taft, if they were alive today, say to the insistence of President Hoover that reciprocal tariffs are unworkable, and unsound?

"I note once more that the President ridicules a tariff commission set up in harmony with the principles laid down by President Theodore Roosevelt, and enacted into law by President Wilson. I proposed that kind of a tariff commission in my Sioux City speech six weeks ago; and I wonder if President Hoover has ever read the address of President Roosevelt at Sioux Falls on Sept. 3, 1910, where President Roosevelt proposed as a way to end tariff log rolling in the congress, the very measure that President Hoover now declares will encourage log rolling.

Demand Slashes of Taxes.

"I wonder, too, if the President thinks that the country is satisfied with the present method of operation of the tariff commission?

"During two long years, President Hoover's tariff commission has investigated the duties upon only 73 commodities—73 out of many thousands; 18 schedules were reduced and 13 were increased, and it is worth noting that among the articles investigated the tariff commission has busied itself with pipe organs, peppers, eggplants and bicycle bells. A careful estimate shows that at the present rate of progress President Hoover's tariff commission will complete its examination of schedule and report upon them by the year 2006.

"At Pittsburgh I stated that there must be a reduction in the cost of government and set forth in detail the means by which it could be accomplished. In reply the President states it cannot be done. The people of America demand a reduction of federal expenditure. It can be accomplished not only by reducing the expenditures of existing departments but it can be done by abolishing many useless commissions, bureaus and functions, and it can be done by consolidating many activities of the government.

"The people of the state of New York well know the efficiency that can come through reorganization of government departments. The long fight of Gov. Smith with a Republican legislature ended in a constitutional amendment which brought about this end. The same kind of reorganization ought to be effected in Washington. Many bureaus overlap that should be merged or consolidated.

"It is not necessary to create a new commission to secure the information necessary for this reform. Such information has been in the process of collection in Washington for 22 years. What is needed in this, as in many other things, is the will to do. There is no need for delay in this matter. The President has power under the law to recommend to congress the abolishment of bureaus and the absolute power to consolidate certain specific bureaus. He has done nothing.

Apply Lessons of Economy.

"In the process of consolidation I propose to apply the lessons of economy and efficiency that we learned so well in the state of New York and through the striking experience of reorganization in other states of the Union. I am convinced that through such reorganization there can be a very substantial reduction of expenditures.

"While I am on the subject of government, I want to repeat what I have suggested before—that of late years, and especially during the administration of President Hoover, the relationship between the federal government and the state governments has been almost wholly forgotten.

"I know from practical experience as governor of the most populous state of the Union that in many instances a different attitude on the part of the President would have brought about much closer coöperation between Washington and my state capitol, and this without any interference with the rights of the states.

"It is entirely possible and entirely practical for the President to solve and to simplify many governmental problems by contact and discussion with the governors of the several states.

Coöperation of Effort.

"For the last four years I have also been a member of the executive committee of the conference of governors. And the thought of many of my fellow chief executives coincide with mine—that great opportunities for constructive action, for coöperation and mutual effort have been overlooked by the present national administration.

"This is one of the many reasons why I have great hope that if I am elected I will know that my long time associate and friend, Lieut. Gov. Lehman, is directing the affairs of the state of New York as its chief executive. Col. Lehman is eminently qualified for the governorship. Gov. Smith knows, and I know from long experience, that discharging the duties of the office of governor of the state of New York is no easy task—that it calls for wide experience and wide knowledge of the state and its problems.

"The voters are going to elect Col. Lehman because they apply to him the two simple words, 'best qualified.' You and I know that he is familiar with every section of the state, with every institution of the state, with every department of the state, and, furthermore, he has an intelligent understanding of the relationship between the legislature and the office of governor.

Praises Lehman and Wagner.

"In leaving the governorship I want to see the office of governor held by one who has the courage to be his own master, but who at the same time thinks of the public good in the same broad terms as Gov. Smith and myself.

"May I also urge upon you the high importance of reelecting Senator Robert F. Wagner. In his case it is not alone the interests of the state of New York which are involved. He is known throughout the nation as a senate leader who has made himself an expert on that vital subject of relief for the unemployed. I shall need him in Washington.

"The lessons of this campaign are plain enough. I am confident that the overwhelming majority of the voters of the nation seek unity, seek ordered progress, seek the security that comes from these things. These are what the people expect from a united Democracy and from a leadership that is committed to progress through action.

"Help us keep the faith. Help us to fight the good fight. Help us to attain the goal."

RASKOB SUBMITS FIVE ROADS BACK TO PROSPERITY

For "Roosevelt, Democrat Congress" to Follow

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman, in a radio speech tonight proposed a five point program for the restoration of prosperity after the election of Gov. Roosevelt and a Democratic congress, which he predicted as a certainty.

These five projects could be accomplished quickly, he said, and they would bring back prosperity quickly. They are:

1. Pending repeal of the eighteenth amendment liberalize the Volstead law to permit the manufacture, transportation, and sale of light wines and beer.

2. Levy an excise tax on beer and wine designed to produce a federal revenue of one billion dollars annually, instead of having the public pay twice this amount to bootleggers for poor products illicitly made.

Temporary Sales Tax.

3. Make radical reductions in the high surtaxes on incomes and impose a general sales tax of 1½ per cent if this is necessary temporarily to balance the budget.

4. Drastically reduce all federal expenditures through forcing the government to economize in all directions, exactly as every individual citizen has had to do, and in this way.

5. Balance the budget.

Nation's Credit in Peril.

"Under Republican rule the federal budget has been out of balance for three years. For the year ended June, 1931, the deficit was approximately one billion dollars; in 1932 there was a deficit of approximately three billions. For four months of the current fiscal year there already is a deficit of over 600 million. Deficits have been made up by borrowing on the good faith and credit of the United States.

"Now, unless the United States makes some attempt to balance the federal budget and thus prove its ability to make income and expenses meet, its credit will suffer and eventually be destroyed as surely as will the credit of a family that continues to pile up debt and refuses to balance the family budget."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 4.—Tragedy accompanied the military maneuvers along the coast between the artillery and bombing planes today. Five women and seven men were fishing along the river Tagus. One of the men was struck and killed by a bomb and the terrified women threw themselves into the water.

$1,427,000 GIVEN DEMOCRATS FOR CAMPAIGN FUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The Democratic national committee today reported that slightly more than a million and a quarter had been expended up to Nov. 2 in behalf of the presidential ticket. Total receipts up to that date were $1,427,118, compared with expenditures of $1,261,412.

The final prellection financial report required by law has not yet been received from the Republican party. The latest Republican report filed with the clerk of the house showed expenditures up to Oct. 21 of $1,454,178 and contributions of $1,554,813. The Democratic report filed today is the last that party has to turn in prior to the election.

Medallions Bring in $14,000.

The Democratic report filed by Frank C. Walker, committee treasurer, set contributions between Oct. 24 and Nov. 2 at $310,563. Expenditures during that period were $338,481. Other receipts included loans of $45,000 and $14,711 from the sale of medallions. The major contributors during the Oct. 24 to Nov. 2 period were R. W. Morrison of San Antonio and W. H. Woodin of New York, each giving $15,000, and James W. Gerard of New York, former ambassador to Germany, $13,095.

The Democratic national committee reported that its total unpaid obligations amounted to $668,402. These debts included $115,250 owed John J. Raskob, former Democratic national committee chairman.

Dry League Spends $12,000.

The Anti-Saloon league, according to its report, has expended $12,554.32 in the campaign. Receipts, the report showed, amounted to $15,468.15, leaving an unexpended balance of $2,213.83.

Another dry group, the national prohibition board of strategy, reported that it has spent $42,896.45 out of receipts totaling $43,208.35.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, according to its financial report, has expended $316,631 as against receipts of $312,455. Prominent among contributors to the fund of the wet organization was Lamont Du Pont of Wilmington, Del., who gave $15,000.

KREUGER & TOLL DIRECTOR GETS YEAR IN PRISON

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Sven Huldt, one of the Kreuger and Toll directors, was sentenced to twelve months at hard labor today for his part in the Kreuger debacle and ordered to pay $13,480,000 to the Continental Investment company. Huldt acted as director of a puppet company, the Nederlansche Bank Veer Skandinaveschen Handel. He was said to have confessed that he issued false certificates of deposit, stating that French government bonds worth 400,000,000 francs were on deposit with the Nederlansche bank to the credit of the Continental Investment company.

U. S. IDEALISM IS RETURNING, BAKER DECLARES

Insists Fear Predictions Do Not Scare Americans.

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Newton D. Baker, wartime secretary of war, tonight pressed the cause of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency in Montclair, the home of his brother, Maj. Frank H. Baker, candidate on the Democratic ticket for Essex county freeholder.

The theater which seats 1,260 was filled and amplifiers carried Mr. Baker's address to the large overflow crowd.

"Happily," he said, "we are now coming back into a period when idealism is coming into its own again. The ideal, idealism, the vision of Woodrow Wilson seemed to be in eclipse, for a time."

Motive of Fear Impractical.

He recalled the political campaigns of his youth and how predictions of dire happenings had been made if one or the other candidate had been elected. These, he said, had occurred in every campaign since then, but less and less as time went on.

"I never in my life have done anything from a fear motive which has turned out well," he said.

"In 1918 I discovered you cannot scare Americans at all. The people who have most often tried to scare me were the most scared.

"Never in my life time have we been called upon to decide more momentous questions than now," he said when the laughter following his last remark subsided. "This modern world is governed by long distance control. The things that affect us are not all of local origin and local cure."

War Not Ended Yet.

Quoting President Hoover as saying that the Democrats had evidently not heard of the world war, Baker remarked, "I had heard of it. I heard of it at the time. I saw it as it went on. I saw its consequences."

"If ever another catastrophe such as that one should come again it would mean the end of civilization.

"And, now I am taking the liberty of telling the President something about the war. He believes it ended Nov. 11, 1918. It has not ended yet.

"After Wilson's administration passed, Baker said the opinion was "America has been unselfish too long. Now let's look after No. 1."

W. H. H. MILLER IS ORDERED FREED ON $3,500 BOND

W. H. H. Miller, who was director of the state department of registration and education in Len Small's first term as governor, was ordered released from the county jail yesterday on a $3,500 appeal bond approved by Justice Frank K. Dunn, of the Illinois Supreme court at Springfield. Miller was still in jail late last night, awaiting the arrival of the papers here.

The former Small official was found guilty by a Criminal court jury in 1929 of operating a fake diploma mill in which licenses were peddled. He was sentenced to serve seven months and a day in jail and fined $2,000. He started serving the sentence in January, and completed it in August.

Miller has not, however, paid the fine, and the question of his ability to satisfy that judgment will be determined by the Supreme court in December. In September Miller filed a pauper's writ, contending that he was penniless and asking release from jail. Chief Justice John Prystalski, of the Criminal court, learned, however, that just before filing the pauper's petition, Miller had transferred his property in Champaign to his wife. The petition was then withdrawn.

3 YEAR OLD BOY KILLED BY AUTO; DRIVER IS HELD

Jerome Drew, 3 years old, 2821 North Ridgeway avenue, was killed by an automobile last night when he ran into the street in front of his home. The driver, Michael Wisnewski, 24 years old, 2714 North Harding avenue, pleaded that he could not avoid striking the child because the street was wet. He was held for the inquest today.

This death and four others yesterday increased the Cook county automobile toll for the year to 948. The other victims:

Mrs. Helen Lachowitz, 60 years old, 2658 North Lawndale avenue. Died yesterday in the county hospital. She was injured a week ago at Diversey and North Avers avenues.

Mrs. Karen Olson, 82 years old, 2517 North Avers avenue. Died in Norwegian American hospital as the result of a collision near Elmhurst, Oct. 28.

Mrs. Hulda Brennan, 62 years old, 5114 North Ashland avenue. Died at the Edgewater hospital. She was struck a week ago at Ashland and Carmen avenues.

Alexander Lochman, 85 years old, 1648 Konsse avenue. Died early this morning in the Keystone hospital of injuries received on Oct. 4 when he was struck by an automobile at Kolmar and Grand avenues. The driver was Ernest Gomoll, 5307 South Maplewood avenue.

Arthur R. Tibbetts, 56 years old, owner of a rooming house at 648 North Oakwood avenue, Lake Forest, was found unconscious in Deerpath avenue, near Green Bay road, in Lake Forest yesterday, apparently the victim of a hit and run motorist, and died two hours later in Alice Home hospital there.

MRS. CHITWOOD CLOSES W. SIDE COOKING SCHOOL

5,000 Pupils Determined to Continue Studies.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The last day of THE TRIBUNE'S cooking school for the west side women in Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 128 North Crawford avenue, was filled with regretful farewells yesterday afternoon. The women worked to jot down every recipe and household hint Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, director of the school, could pack into her two hours of lecturing.

It was another capacity crowd. Well above 6,000 women filled the ballroom, while the overflow waited patiently outside long past 3:30 o'clock, hopeful that some of the seats might be vacated.

Flowers Halt Show.

On her final appearance, when she was about to tell the audience how to make cranberry muffins, Mrs. Chitwood found her show suddenly halted by the appearance of a basket of roses and chrysanthemums, shoulder high. Then Mrs. J. Van Wakeman, president of the Austin North End Woman's club, one of the four special hostesses of the day, came to the platform and made the formal presentation of the flowers to Mrs. Chitwood.

"We are presenting these flowers to Mrs. Chitwood for her service, which has been invaluable to us," Mrs. Wakeman told the audience. Then turning to the cooking school teacher, she added: "These are from your grateful pupils of the west side cooking school."

After thanking her "pupils," Mrs. Chitwood asked them if they would like to follow her to the north side school which opens next Tuesday at the Aragon ballroom. Every hand went up with a volley of cheering.

Now for Cranberry Muffins.

"Now for cranberry muffins," Mrs. Chitwood said, turning to her work table with its waiting pans and food materials. "They're so good you'll think they're fruit cake, though of course not so sweet. You take one level cup of flour and add a teaspoon of baking powder. Sift together in a mixing bowl and add one cup of bran flakes. Bran, you know, is an economical substitute for nuts. Then mix four tablespoons of butter and four tablespoons of sugar and whip with a whole egg, not separated, and a teaspoon of vanilla. Add a cup and a half of sweet milk. Combine this with the dry mixture. Pour in a cup of raw cranberries. With a pastry brush grease the muffin pans and pour in the batter and cook in a 400 degree oven for 35 minutes."

Coffee Mousse Inexpensive.

The next recipe Mrs. Chitwood demonstrated was coffee mousse, which she offered as an inexpensive dish. She added to a pint of whipped cream a cup of confectioner's sugar, a teaspoon of vanilla, and a cup of crumbled vanilla wafers. In making the coffee she used four tablespoons to 2 cups of water and added a tablespoon of gelatin. She lined the freezing tray with vanilla wafers, poured in the mixture and froze it an hour and a half.

The preliminary program was opened by Phil Maxwell, who acted as master of ceremonies Carl Craven, with Florence Goddard at the piano, led the community singing. Next came Clyde McCoy, orchestra leader now playing at the Drake hotel, who brought along some of the members of his orchestra. W. E. Donahue, advertising manager of THE TRIBUNE, next addressed the cooking school guests, thanking them for their coöperation in putting on the school, and Ruth De Young, reporter for THE TRIBUNE'S west side metropolitan section, was introduced.

Next School Tuesday.

Donald Meek, the Alexander Throttlebottom in "Of Thee I Sing," now playing at the Grand Opera house, appeared wearing an apron and carrying a bowl and a wooden spoon, and gave a skit based on the cooking school. Gaile Darling, soprano in the same cast, sang, and the De Ronda and O Dear studio presented a number of dance novelties.

During the intermission Lewis Wareham, baritone, gave a short recital, and Billy Bryant, of the Billy Bryant Showboat company which is opening with "Hamlet" at the Cort theater Sunday, made an appearance.

Thus closed the fourth day of the second session of the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE cooking school conducted by Mrs. Chitwood in coöperation with Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE food expert, which was attended by more than 20,000 women. Over the week-end the model kitchen and all the stage properties will be moved to the Aragon ballroom ready to receive north side women Tuesday at 11:30 a. m.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LEN SMALL AND PUBLIC FUNDS.

In July, 1927, Len Small paid $650,000 into the state treasury in a compromise settlement of his account. It was partial restitution of public funds. His failure to account for the money when it was earned and to turn it in caused him to be indicted for conspiracy, with his associates in the transactions, and for embezzlement. He was tried at Waukegan and acquitted. The trial itself had reverberations in the Lake county grand jury room and courts. Mr. Small also was sued in the civil court for recovery of money due the state. That is why he had to pay.

The repayment of the funds which the state proved had disappeared while Mr. Small was treasurer and governor did not impair the bank account of the present Republican candidate. It is of common knowledge that state employés gave him a testimonial of the amount necessary to square the account. It may even be that he made a little money on the transaction. But nevertheless the state got some of its money back. The story of Mr. Small's operations as custodian of the state's money is reasonably fresh in the memory of most of the voters of Illinois. It will be recalled that when Edward Miller, the newly elected treasurer, took office in January, 1921, he could not find the evidences of $10,000,000 of the funds supposed to be turned over to him by the outgoing treasurer, Fred Sterling. An inquiry was made. It developed that Mr. Small, who had been the treasurer two years before and who had just been inaugurated as governor, had the missing securities still in his possession. He finally turned them over to the new treasurer and they proved to be promissory notes of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., but there was $100,000 shortage. Mr. Small and two associates, Edward and Verne Curtis, made up the deficiency. The whole affair was so unusual and startling that a thorough inquiry was made and it was discovered that Mr. Small and his two associates had loaned the state funds through the mythical Grant Park bank, which had no physical existence, and had collected 7 per cent interest, for which there was no accounting.

The handling of public funds had been of indirect or direct political or financial profit to custodians before Mr. Small's time, but no public official had ever been found in such a structure of deceit and personal profit, in violation of law, before. These illegal transactions had covered two years while he was in the office of treasurer and two years while he was out.

Small was indicted for conspiracy and embezzlement. The conspiracy indictment was ruled out and the state went to trial on the embezzlement count. After the verdict of not guilty one of the jurors and two fixers were indicted for conspiracy to obstruct justice, the juror confessing that he had been paid money. Two other fixers chose jail rather than the witness stand. Small pardoned them. Still later six of the persons connected with the trial were given state jobs. Civil suit for an accounting was carried to the Supreme court, which gave a five to two verdict that Small was responsible for the missing money. While the accounting was in progress to determine the exact amount, Small took counsel of his fears and compromised with Attorney General Carlstrom for the amount above mentioned, $650,000. Other echoes of the case were in Small's attempt to defeat Justice Stone, who had ruled against him in the Supreme court, for renomination and in his success in having an unusually subservient legislature repeal the state law by which the right of an official to hold office could be challenged in court because of criminal conduct.

Small had escaped impeachment and when this law was repealed he blocked attempts to show that he became disqualified for office when he did not account to the state for funds in his possession.

It is not often that a man in public office and public life is so completely exposed in act and character as Len Small has been. No other man in the governor's office ever was so little deterred by public opinion or ever made so little of it when he wanted to do something for himself. He belongs in the lowest order of political life and is known throughout the state for what he is. Whoever votes for him does so with eyes open but with conscience closed.

PROTECTIVE IGNORANCE.

Montagu Norman of the Bank of England said the other day that he did not pretend to know exactly what had caused hard times and did not know what eventually would dissipate them. Something had and something would. In a world bursting out at the sides with positive opinions the disclaimer of so conspicuous a financier was a bit astonishing. Everybody's business nowadays is to know rather precisely what would cure the trouble and to find that some other person's malevolence is in the way. Mr. Norman could not qualify for the vote next Tuesday even if he had been born in the United States. He hasn't had the necessary experience in economics and finance.

He can be allowed, however, a credit for prudence. If he doesn't know what caused the trouble and what can be done about it he cannot be expected to produce the remedy or be damned if he doesn't. He can sit by his fire and wait for the magic to come from elsewhere. Mr. Norman's disavowal makes him virtually a hermit.

WHY CHICAGO CAN'T RELIEVE ITS OWN POOR.

THE TRIBUNE recommends approval of the 20 million dollar poor relief bond issue, but the recommendation is made in full knowledge of the fact that the proposal is obviously unjust to the motorist of Cook county and was forced upon Cook county as the only available alternative to suffering on the part of its needy citizens. The choice as it presents itself is a choice between a crushing addition to property taxation on the one hand and a slowing up of the necessary road construction in Cook county on the other. As between the two it is better to approve the bonds at the sacrifice of the roads.

Cook county was obliged to accept one or the other alternative because it had no other means with which to meet the demands for unemployment relief. Cook county lacked the means for just one reason: the national government has taken so much money out of Chicago that there was nothing left with which to care for the city's poor.

There will be a disposition on the part of many who do not know the facts to regard that statement as an exaggeration. It is not. The United States government for many years has taken out of Chicago almost as much money each year as was collected in direct taxes by all the local governments combined. Latterly the federal government has taken far more than the local governments have been able to collect after the federal tax gatherer got through. The largest sum which the county collector of Cook county ever tried to get from the taxpayers in a single year was $290,000,000 and the actual collections fell a hundred millions and more below the expected total. The total of federal internal revenue collections actually taken from the First Illinois district in 1930, almost all of which came from Cook county, was $238,000,000. That figure does not include the tariffs paid by Chicagoans on imported goods they bought or more than a small part of the taxes on cigarets and other tobaccos consumed in Chicago. The total of internal revenue collections from this district in the depression year 1931 was $183,000,000. With these colossal sums being extorted every year from Chicago it is quite impossible for the community to support its own governments, not to mention its poor.

The responsible leaders of Cook county are humiliated when they must look to the federal government for the money with which to care for the unfortunate of the community, but under the circumstances there is and can be no alternative. This community is bled white.

THE CONSCRIPT FATHERS BECOME THE CANDY KIDS.

Doc John Brinkley of Kansas, independent candidate for governor, promises the voters a free lake in every county. The doc has been set upon by the federal radio commission, the old line politicians, the medical fraternity, and all the sober minded citizens of the state, but he knows the hidden Kansas libido and the suppressed desires. His oriflamme is a goat's whiskers and he offers the future in a glanderous romance. The Kansas Pan dreams of free lakes with reedy edges. There should be some crags for free bounding. Also palms and moonlight. Tahiti comes to the plains.

In the old immediate municipal ownership days in Chicago when every citizen with busted shoe laces and a month's beard was a statesman the late Jimmie Quinn, a wiser cracker than Jimmie Walker with a smaller audience, proposed to heat the parks. If Doc Brinkley is unfamiliar with the works of James Aloysius Quinn he should dip into them and learn much.

Doc Brinkley is not alone, nor is Kansas singularly favored. In many regions of the country the coming man can be observed. In California it is Bob Shuler, who is running for the senate and has even the old fox Mr. McAdoo doubling on his course and trying to hole. The Rev. Mr. Shuler, like the Kansas doc, is a radio product. Radio is the magic soap box and has taken the voice of the people off the obscure street corner and made it the voice of Jove. Old Man Henderson of Shreveport was one of the early discoverers of hell raisin' on the air, but seems not to have done what he might have with his discovery. Others following him have thrown the lightning.

Whatever Huey Long of Louisiana means to the United States senate the probability is for a lot of it, whether that distinguished institution can stand it or not. The senate is pot likker to Huey and Huey is the new type. Bob Reynolds, if successful in North Carolina, is expected to add a touch of color from the hills. Mr. Field of Iowa is a bit of a radio expert himself, but if he follows Brookhart the change will be in the direction of the calmer mood.

The Conscript Fathers have known Ben Tillman and later Tom Heflin, but it is likely that they do not know anything yet. The times are gone when Nelson Aldrich could retard a bright young career by raising an eyebrow and wreck it by lowering a frown. These are the days when Huey Long can wreck everything by raising a whoop.

Editorial of the Day

[Decatur, Ill., Herald.]

The effects of civilization are strange and far reaching and wondrous to behold, but man's amazement at the first telephone and the first radio was slight compared with that of the ancient Jewish leader of the Yemenite tribe in Palestine, who has just been denied a second wife.

After 30 years of married life this orthodox tribesman put aside his elderly spouse and took unto himself, according to ritual, a young girl of Yemen in order that his line might increase and he have children to comfort him in his declining years.

Alas for the spread of knowledge in what was once a man's world, his aged wife declined to step aside. Instead into her case she called the Jewish Women's Equal Rights association in Palestine. The elderly chief has been haled before a rabbinical court, charged with bigamy, and the male jury has, in every point thus far, ruled against him.

Man's last stronghold has been assailed and women rule supreme. Only in paradise itself are the sweet tempered houris composed not of clay, but amber, incense, and musk; even the houris, it is reported, are collecting alimony from the djinn.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

First in the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ONWARD MARCH OF THE MACHINE. New York, for the first time in its history, will vote entirely by means of machines next Tuesday. And the next thing that happens the machines may take things in hand and elect a machine for President. Well, if it's a good machine and well oiled and doesn't click too loud—it could be worse, it could be worse. Anyhow, we're coming to it. It's the machine age.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT'S personality," said Fannie Hurst somewhat gushingly over the radio t'other night, "shines like a sun over all three of his homes." But, Fannie, dearest, the sun sinks in the west each afternoon and there are ten or twelve hours of gloom and darkness. Oh, Fannie, we trust there are not ten or twelve hours of gloom and darkness in Mr. Roosevelt's three homes every twenty-four hours. Do broadcast some more, Fannie, and tell us that when he is not shining like the sun over his three homes Franklin is beaming like the moon.

"VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS Predicts Hoover Will Sweep Country."—Headline. "Wall Street Bets 3½ to 1 Roosevelt Will Win."—Another headline. Pondering on the two prognostications, we will wager a collar button to five bucks that Norman Thomas will be in the White House March 4, 1933.

GOD, AND THE WOMAN, AND YOU

In the beginning, if the tale runs true,
When God and man walked forth on equal terms
A woman came between them, and the germs
Of sin and wrath were sown between those two.
I know not. This I know, dear heart, that you
Stand shelteringly betwixt God and me,
Diffusing His white light pervasively,
In many a tender and endearing hue.

Dearest, when in the nakedness of fear
I stand convicted in God's judgment room,
And, panic-stricken, wait to hear my doom,
Your sweet, familiar presence there as here,
Of that dread chamber will create a home,

OUR CONGRESSMAN, Mr. Britten, assures us we will be able to buy a large goblet of real beer for five cents the glass by next March. Oh, joyous words! Oh, gorgeous prophecy! But will you not also, Mr. Britten, throw in a little free lunch? Do you not remember, Mr. Britten, the dear dead days of old, when our hearts were so often gladdened by the great, beautiful sign in many letters, "AN EGG OR A CLAM WITH EVERY DRINK"? Do, Mr. Britten, throw in an egg or a clam with every glass of beer at five cents the glass and we will leave Norman Thomas prone on his back (a most difficult, not to say embarrassing, position) and rush to the polls and vote for you until the kine return to the barnyard.

A HUSBAND suing for divorce in a Chicago court said that the partner of his joys and sorrows had struck and kicked him. Ladies! Ladies! Full political and economic equality with man does not entitle you to strike and kick your husband. And, besides, kicking is most unladylike. Lam him with the poker or a golf club if you will, but never kick him. It is rude and most unladylike.

TWO PROCLAMATIONS were served on the navigator of this Colyum of Calumny, both of which filled him with dismay. One was from President Hoover notifying him to give thanks on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 24, and the other was a proclamation from Mr. William J. Stratton, the w. k. secretary of state of Illinois, to the effect that he's got to cough up twenty bucks for his 1933 automobile license. We will obey Mr. Hoover and give thanks on Thanksgiving day (we can do that because we can keep our fingers crossed), but the twenty bucks for the car license is really most distressing. When Mr. Stratton says to come across with twenty bucks it means we've got to come across, and crossing our fingers when we cough up the twenty bucks won't do a bit of good. Heigh ho! What a life! Just one dam thing after another.

NOW YOU ARE GONE.

Now you are gone—I say the words quite often.
When I am used to them perhaps your face
Will cease to drift across dream-haunted twilights,
I may not find your low laugh every place.

Now you are gone—but once you said you loved me,
It must have been a dream, but now and then
I close my eyes and see you smile again.

MAX THE BOOTLEGGER called us up yesterday and begged for the latest dope on how the election is going to come out. We told him that however it came out the skids would probably be put under the Volstead law and put him out of business. "That'll be tough," said Max, "but I was askin' because I got a swell chance right now to put my oldest boy with one of the best rum runners there is. He could start right in at the bottom and learn the business and in a few years he'd be making all kinds of money. But the little woman wants the boy to go to college an' git his nose broke playin' football and learn how to be a bond salesman. So if it looks as though they was goin' to give this here prohibition a kick in the pants it don't look as though it would be any use trainin' the boy in hijacking; that is, a learning a trade which there won't be no use for. It'd be the same as educatin' the boy to sell snowshoes to them natives in Africa. So I guess the little woman wins and the boy goes to college. It's tough, 'cause I had hopes of makin' somethin' out of him."

THE ART OF FALLING.

In a large proportion of the cases of fracture of the long bones the breaks need have been prevented. It would not strain the truth greatly to say that fracture of the long bones is a result of ignorance. The statement would be an exaggeration, but men have twisted the facts worse than that without having to go to jail.

The basis of truth for the statement is the fact that, with the exception of those accidents caused by heavy machinery, the fractures of the long bones result from falls. There is an art of falling based on a science, and those who fall in accordance with the art do not fracture long bones.

As a rule when an adult falls he tries to catch with his arms or legs or both. The arm with which he tries to save himself, or the leg, is in some unnatural position when the weight of the body, plus momentum, falls on it or is in some way carried by it. Fracture results. The art of falling consists in letting the body take care of itself. If the body is slightly curved as it drops to the floor the head will be held back and the impact will be felt by the soft parts. No long bone will be in such a position as will make for fracturing.

Fractures result from throwing out an arm or leg to catch, or from a foot or hand being caught in a twisted, unnatural position. Holding the extremities back rather than throwing them forward or otherwise trying to catch with them is the proper method.

If one falls and lights on the feet, the art consists in striking on the toes and with the ankles, knees, and hips bent. Trainmen who sometimes have to jump from rapidly moving trains know this to be true. A further development of the method consists in lighting with one foot before the other and taking a step or two and then, if the speed is more than, say, fifteen miles, and curving the body forward hooplike, head bent forward and legs and arms drawn in, and taking the fall on a roll. When one drops in a sitting position the body and neck should be bent forward.

The scoffers will call all this hooey. They will not deny the mechanics of it, nor will they say that the theory is wrong. They will admit that if it were carried out most fractures of the long bones would be avoided. But they say throwing out the arms and legs to catch is instinctive, and in emergencies we act on instinct. But are they right? Babies do not throw out their arms and legs to save themselves.

That reaction is acquired by education in those childhood years that are well beyond babyhood. Furthermore, circus performers know how easy it is to educate oneself out of the method we learn in childhood. Divers know it also. Other scoffers say the mind is paralyzed by panic in the face of accident. Sometimes it is, but those who have been through accidents know that the mind may do a heap of thinking in a mighty short time.

DIABETIC.

W. H. writes: I have had diabetes for six years. For three years I weighed my food and was a general nuisance because of my diet. Also I had no reserve vitality. In the three years I have used insulin I have reclaimed and held my normal weight of 180 pounds, and my mind is more active than it has been for many years. I use from 40 to 45 units three times a day. Usually make at least five tests a day and for probably 60 to 75 per cent of each twenty-four hours am in balance on blood sugar tests if urine can be depended on.

I do not eat bread or candy, but 15 units will take care of a sixth of an apple pie. Ten units will counteract a juicy orange, 12 to 13 units for custard pie or small piece of cake, 7 to 8 units for a dish of ice cream, and a similar amount will handle a good sized potato. My vitality has increased remarkably and I could easily keep my condition secret if I cared to.

REPLY.

You could brag if you cared to do so.

MIGHT GET OVERDOSAGE.

Mrs. F. W. writes: I had hay fever and I took full length sun baths and vitamin D as cod liver oil and viosterol, and was very greatly improved by doing so. Please ask your readers to try this method of treatment and report results. Can a person harm himself by taking too much cod liver oil and vitamin D from other sources?

REPLY.

When viosterol was discovered it was withheld from the market because of the dangers of overdosage and overuse. After a year or two of further experience it was released, but with rather sharp limitations on its use, including the dose to be given. There is some danger of overdosage. This is academic rather than actual with respect to cod liver oil.

TAX SALE.

Georgetown, Ill., Oct. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A owns eighty acres of land. B holds mortgage for $5,000. Taxes are paid by C when land is sold for taxes. If A sells land or B forecloses mortgage and in the course of time [three years] C has obtained a tax deed, [1] is C forced to pay B his mortgage before C will have a clear deed to same? In case land is sold or mortgage foreclosed before C has obtained tax deed [2] doesn't buyer or mortgage holder have to pay C his tax money plus the legal interest rate [3] before either one of them can obtain clear title to land? H. E. H.

1. Ordinarily tax buyers make no effort to acquire a clear title under Illinois law. You can regard the tax deed as merely a cloud on the title.
2. No, in the sense that he can leave the title clouded if he so desires.
3. Since the tax deed is a cloud on the title it necessarily follows that it must be removed in order to clear the title.

MAY QUIT CLAIM.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please inform me as to the following situation in Wisconsin: 1. Can an individual who purchased a small piece of land which was not separately assessed at the time of purchase sell it or a part of it before he gets the tax deed? 2. How long can the owner of a tract of land in Wisconsin retain the tax deed after he has sold a part of his tract of land to an individual? 3. I understand taxes must be paid to the holder of the tax deed when he sells a piece of his land that he has not had separately assessed. Am I right? Suppose the holder of the tax deed says he [4] doesn't want any taxes, is it best to ask him for a receipt just the same? I. K.

1. There is no legal objection to his quit claiming his interest if he can find a purchaser.
2. Indefinitely. Apparently your questions are based upon some assumption of law which you do not state.
3. There is no such rule.
4. We do not understand what you mean by this statement.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 5, 1916.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.—Charles E. Hughes closed his campaign for the presidency in New York amid the wildest scenes he has inspired since he took the stump. For more than half an hour in Madison Square Garden 15,000 Hughes enthusiasts rocked the building with shouts and stamping feet. Hughes and Fairbanks will be elected, according to the surface indications of the prevailing political sentiment in the forty-eight states. If Wilson and Marshall should win it would be because of a much greater shifting of Republican voters to Democratic ranks in the closely contested states than has been detected by painstaking investigation. In Chicago several hundred thousand dollars had been wagered on Hughes and Wilson and the Cook county tickets in Chicago up to last night, with Hughes remaining a strong favorite. President Wilson addressed a large crowd at Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, N. J., in his last campaign speech.

BUCHAREST.—The war office announced that Rumanian troops have advanced to the west of Buzeu river and also at Table Butzi, on the Transylvanian front. West of the Jiul the pursuit of the Austro-German forces continues. There has been a bombardment all along the Danube.

BERLIN.—Rosca height, southeast of Altschanz, on the Hungarian-Rumanian front, has been occupied by the Rumanians, the war office announced. In the region of Predeal Austro-German forces recaptured a position from the Rumanians.

BERLIN.—The Russian superdreadnaught Sevastopol, one of the greatest battleship of the czar's navy, ran upon a mine eight days ago and was badly damaged, according to a Stockholm dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende.

ROME.—Continuing their new offensive against the Austro-Hungarian forces in the Carso region on the road to Trieste, the Italians advanced in the direction of the Wippach river for a distance of more than one kilometer. During the day the Italians took 853 prisoners.

PARIS.—Further progress for the French troops in the vicinity of Vaux, northeast of Verdun, is told in the official communication from the war office, which follows: "North of the Somme the Germans attempted to drive us from trenches we captured in St. Pierre Vaast wood. The attack was shattered by our curtain and machine gun fire. Our troops extended their progress in the Vaux region.

CHICAGO.—Society was interested yesterday in the wedding of Miss Virginia Whitehead and Edward De Witt Shumway, which took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elisha P. Whitehead, 33 Bellevue place, at 4 o'clock. Mr. Shumway is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gold Shumway of 190 East Chestnut street and a brother of Mrs. Cyrus Adams Jr., Mrs. Solomon Smith and Mrs. John Stuart of Winnetka.

STRAWS IN THE WIND.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—President Hoover in all his speeches over the radio touches on tariff, power, government economy, budget, etc., but he still ignores the prohibition question, although there are millions of people interested in this vitally important question, especially when it means added revenue for the government. Is he the leader of the dry forces as Al Smith stated recently? It appears that he is. M. J. MORGAN.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 1.—THE TRIBUNE apparently feels that it is clever enough to straddle the question of indorsing a presidential candidate, the same as the Republican party has straddled the prohibition issue in the campaign. The writer has voted Republican all of his life except when Woodrow Wilson ran the first time, and your recent editorials and cartoons have simply resulted in giving him an irresistible urge to send a campaign contribution to the Democratic national committee.

J. E. DOYLE.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 1.—Last night I heard Hoover trying to throw the scare into the boys by telling them that grass would grow in the streets if he was defeated in this election. I don't believe I ever heard a more disgusting harangue. One vote I know he will lose, and that will be mine, and I am a lifelong Republican.

A. A. GREGG.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—President Hoover has his program of reconstruction and rehabilitation well under way. This program, in the event of a Democratic victory, will of necessity have to halt pending the question of the policy of their leader and the new congress. Why make the depression deeper by accepting a question mark for an answer? There is only one choice and he is Herbert Hoover! C. A. SANDBERG.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—In THE TRIBUNE of this date there appeared a cartoon intending to disparage Gov. Roosevelt. It showed President Hoover on one side of a seesaw and Gov. Roosevelt on the other, with several supporters of the latter whom THE TRIBUNE considers objectionable. I wonder why, in all fairness, you did not include on the side of Mr. Hoover such worthies as Billy Larimer, Len Small, and Frank L. Smith of Illinois, Vare and Grundy of Pennsylvania, Albert B. Fall of New Mexico, Dougherty of Ohio, Brookhart of Iowa, Mabel Willebrandt, the California grape grower; ex-Gov. McCray of Indiana, and Bishop Cannon of Virginia. Don't you think that might raise the seesaw on Mr. Hoover's side? HAROLD E. SULLIVAN.

Beaverville, Ill., Nov. 1.—The campaign is drawing to a close and I want to write you and thank you for your fairness in presenting both sides in your news columns to your readers. I take this occasion to congratulate you in securing such great writers as Arthur Sears Henning, Arthur Evans, and John Boettiger. They have been very fair to the cause of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and that greatest American of them all, Alfred E. Smith.

PAUL H. ANTHONY, M. D.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Gov. Roosevelt hints at his farm plan by likening it to the Harriman allotment plan. This proposes to tax our principal farm products on the consumption end. What a wonderful opportunity for bootlegging in our essentials! On one hand we should do away with one type of bootlegger and on the other open the door for bootlegging in necessities, to say nothing of the largest government bureaucracy outside of Russia. What are we coming to? It is too bad that the governor does not see fit to put his plans plainly up to the voters.

J. S. SCHONBERG.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Our family has suffered and lost much through this depression as others have, but I still can't see why blame President Hoover for all our troubles. They have a depression in England and they don't blame it on the king. The President has worked hard and has been trying to do all he can to help get through this depression, and some day people will understand all he has done for his country.

MRS. M. LANE.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—May a long standing admirer of THE TRIBUNE express his amazement at your handling of the present national political situation? The leading editorial of last Sunday states that the views and policies of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt are practically the same. If anything is evident in this campaign it is that the views and policies of the two candidates are diametrically opposed. How about Mr. Roosevelt's promising federal jobs to the millions of unemployed, to say nothing of many other foolish promises? Has Mr. Hoover ever advanced any such ridiculous views? FRANK E. STAFFORD, M. D.

Crandon, Wis., Nov. 2.—Can we afford to take a chance on a party which has let us suffer for three years so unnecessarily in this the richest country in the world? There is only one choice to make! Vote for the Democratic candidate. At least, we might hope that he would use those brains between his ears in solving the problems of our unfortunate nation and prove to be the much needed hero of our time.

MRS. W. GRAFF.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—In your principal editorial in yesterday's TRIBUNE you place Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt on a par, which is not fair. One fact alone will prove this. What did Herbert Hoover accomplish this year regardless of a Democratic congress, a Democratic wrecking crew, if you please—who would have completely undermined our financial structure had it not been for the presidential veto?

U. S. INDICTS 2 IN MAIL FRAUD OF $1,000,000

Mortgage Company Head Is Accused.

Andrew C. Thompson, president of the defunct Continental Mortgage Bond company at 20 West Jackson boulevard, was charged with using the mails to defraud investors of more than one million dollars yesterday in an indictment returned before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. O. C. Hamilton, property manager for the company, was also indicted on the same charge.

Prosecutors Owen A. West and James C. Leaton said the indictment charged fraud in connection with bond issues totaling $630,000 on two apartment buildings, the Georgian-La Salle, 1718 North La Salle street, and the Sheridan-Lakeside, at Sheridan road and Lakeside place.

Obtains Leases on Buildings.

The indictment charged that Thompson obtained leases of 199 years each on the two buildings from the Edgar B. Crilly estate, and took the leases in the names of William B. Barnett, a janitor, and Hamilton. Under the terms of the leases, the prosecutors said, Thompson contracted to make improvements on the two buildings until they were both first class, modern apartment buildings.

To carry out these improvements, the prosecutors charged, Thompson floated a bond issue of $390,000 on the Georgian-La Salle building, and one of $590,000 on the Sheridan-Lakeside building. His sales argument to prospective investors pointed out that the improvements demanded under the lease would cause the bonds to increase in value, the government charged.

The indictment alleges that Thompson spent approximately $12,000 in improvements on the two buildings and converted the rest of the money to his own use. The prosecutors said that other building projects and the sale of stock in the parent company and five subsidiary organizations would boost the loss to investors to well over a million dollars.

Sells Stock in Subsidiaries.

The subsidiary companies in which Thompson sold stock were the Securities Investment Trust, the Colonial Investment Trust, the Parkway Realty corporation, the Property Management corporation, and the Continental First Mortgage Bond company. Prosecutor West said that Thompson in his sale of bonds and stock prevailed on investors to trade high class securities for them if the prospective buyer was short of cash.

The Thompson company was placed in bankruptcy and dissolved by order of the federal court several months ago. The action was taken on an involuntary bankruptcy petition filed by Attorney William Shapiro in behalf of three creditors with claims of $2,484. The action was brought by the Edward R. Burt company, certified public accountants, and two printing companies.

LINDLEY VACATES HIS INJUNCTION IN INSULL HEARING

Judge Walter C. Lindley in the federal court yesterday vacated the injunction he issued several months ago against the sale by New York banks of collateral held by them against defaulted loans of Insull Utilities Investments, Inc., and the Corporation Securities company, two Insull investment trusts.

Judge Lindley's action was in compliance with the recent decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

It was said that the New York banks would make no effort at present to dispose of the stocks. A temporary restraining order against the sale of the collateral is pending in New York, where ancillary proceedings have been instituted. A hearing on the order is set for Nov. 16.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Cool, collected and only slightly annoyed at being bothered by a newspaper man, Mrs. Samuel Insull received the news of her husband's arrest in Athens with little apparent concern. Stepping out of the Hotel Tremoille on the arm of a handsome young escort, she met the announcement of her husband's arrest with this:

"I hope it isn't true. If it is true, what can I do about it?"

Mrs. Insull appeared fully recovered from her recent illness, even sprightly and aggressive. She walked off cheerfully on the arm of her tall escort. It was learned later that they dined together.

Uncle Hints of Poison Plot in Nephew's Death

A request for the exhumation of the body of Daniel Z. Hosanna, 62 years old, a street vender, was made at the inquest yesterday by Samuel Lazar of Philadelphia, an uncle. Lazar said he believed that Hosanna might have been poisoned. Hosanna was found dead in the street in Niles Center Oct. 17, supposedly the victim of an automobile. He lived at 6120 North Clairemont avenue, and was said to have carried $12,000 in insurance. Deputy Coroner Emil Selten indicated the exhumation request might be granted and continued the hearing to Nov. 16.

INSULL IS SICK; GREECE TO PUT HIM IN HOSPITAL

visit was to ask that Insull be detained in a hospital instead of jail on the grounds of his age and physical condition. Insull is 73. The prosecutor was out and an appointment was made for 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Then Insull, under guard, returned to the hotel. He lunched and had tea and at 5 o'clock his lawyer and Police Chief Coutsomaris appeared to take him to the prosecutor's office. Meanwhile, during the afternoon he had been examined by three doctors. At the prosecutor's office representations were made that he should not be detained in jail, but in a hospital.

The prosecutor ruled that the examination by the doctors during the afternoon would have to be confirmed by special court doctors. Insull was taken to police headquarters, and then was allowed to go back to the hotel for his clothes. Upon his return to police headquarters the physical examination followed.

Expect Several Days' Delay.

With the arrest and detention of Insull, the first episode in the extradition drama ends and there will be a lull for several days until documentation on the case has been translated into Greek and presented to the prosecuting attorney. Part of this documentation already has been presented by Morris and the rest is being brought by Charles A. Bellows and John Vlachos, Cook county, Illinois, assistant state's attorneys. They are due here Nov. 13.

When the documents are complete, the prosecuting attorney will ask the Greek Appeals court to convene. The court will consider the following points: First, the identity of Insull; second, the documents on which basis the arrest was made; third, if the offense for which Insull is charged is covered by the treaty; fourth, if invoking the extradition of Insull under a treaty ratified Nov. 1 is a retroactive procedure.

Threaten State's Attorneys.

Meanwhile Greek sentiment as expressed through the newspapers is distinctly in favor of Insull. Hestia (Home), one of the official papers tonight protests Insull's arrest, saying that he is being persecuted and is the victim of political intrigues.

"The American attorneys, Bellows and Vlachos, who are coming here with papers for Insull, will not receive a cordial welcome," the paper said.

Joffre's Own Story Reveals Strong Leader

Memoirs Complete Cycle of World War Chiefs.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Personal Memoirs of Joffre, Field Marshal of the French Army," translated by T. Bentley Mott, D. S. M. Two volumes. [Harpers.]

WITH the publication of "Papa" Joffre's Memoirs the records of the commanding officers in the world war are complete. It wanted only the record of the high command of the French from 1914 to 1916 to make the cycle a circle and not merely a broken arc. In the importance of its material no book published this year will equal this one, for here are set down many facts which have thus far lived only as rumors, here are included the texts of documents which have previously reached the world only in partial excerpts or in the interpretations which others or the press put upon them at the time of their writing. Here is the intimate story—through much of the narrative the day by day record of events. Here is the exact military record of the two years which were to many the most perplexing in modern history.

MARSHAL JOFFRE.

The tone of the book is inherent in the attitude of Marshal Joffre's men to him. They—and later the whole world—called him "Papa" Joffre. And while he was a stern commander, while he went through the French army and slashed off the heads of incompetent generals (figuratively speaking), while he feared neither his enemy nor his allies (except insofar as fear led him to understand their actions and their possibilities), and he dealt with them both with strict military precision, his enemies respected him and his allies felt a confidence in him which was not immediately transferred to his successor. History tells us that.

The reason for that feeling is apparent in the Memoirs. Not that "Papa" Joffre tells the world how good he was, for he is in his memoirs an extremely modest man, but the quality of the man is apparent on every page, living through even the cold, at times dull records of the day's events. It is easy to forget while the facts are parading through the pages, but when you have finished the book you have a sense of having met character, of having come to know a great man, a sense that is not always evident in the recollections of the great.

Some of the great tragedies of the modern world were the tragedies of the early losses of the great war, the retreat, the Marne, Verdun, tragedies which Marshal Joffre must have felt quivering in the very palms of his hands, in the very throbbing of his heart, and yet in the Memoirs no matter how black the moment, in that heart was high courage so much the more evident by not being expressed in words, and in those hands was skill and, when opportunity permitted, brilliant maneuvering, and that skill, like the courage, is the more surely evident by the fact that it is never set down by Marshal Joffre as such, although the reader cannot but know it for what it is.

Many readers will be startled at the first chapter in the book, in which Marshal Joffre discusses the years preceding the war for there they will find that even as early as 1911 the war between France and Germany was looked upon as a certainty, the probable manner of the German offensive was on paper including the violation of Belgium, and the French plan for defense and offense was likewise on record.

All of the intricate agreements, and disagreements (with their attendant publicity and scandals) are set down in the book, with so many of them as to make quotation impossible in a column, but one of the relationships with the Americans which caused so much scandal ellets from Marshal Joffre such an uncompromising declaration that it demands to be quoted. He says concerning the plan to send Americans over in small units to be incorporated as part of the French or British armies:

"Upon reflection, the idea could not be defended for a single minute. No great nation having a proper consciousness of its own dignity—and America perhaps less than any other—would allow its citizens to be incorporated like poor relations in the ranks of some other army and fight under a foreign flag." Which pretty thoroughly states the position of the post if not the current commander in chief of the French armies at the time when Gen. Pershing had his set-to with Marshal Foch.

During the years immediately following the war Marshal Joffre remained discreetly silent and waited until the closing years of his life to set down fact as he knew it. He insisted upon what to him was the truth and for that reason he stipulated that the MSS. should not be published until after his death and that no word in them should be changed. He was so concerned with their accuracy that he initialed not only every page of the original French MSS. but also every correction.

These two volumes are of powerful importance in their factual contribution to history.

New Heroine Given World in This Book

"Two Little Confederates," by Thomas N. Page. [Scribners.]

"Letters to Channy," by Helulu Washburne. [Rand-McNally.]

QUITE in keeping with the special dedication of book week this year [No. 13-19] to the telling of America's story, several fine stories of the civil war period have made their appearance on our fall lists. Among them are Hildegarde Hoyt Swift's "The Railroad to Freedom," and a beloved old favorite in a most attractive new dress, Thomas Nelson Page' "Two Little Confederates." Of the latter it may be said that it is always sure of its place in the hearts of thousands of readers who know and love it. For the younger folk, who do not, its very attractive new format will serve as a means of introducing a book which they can ill afford to miss.

In "The Railroad to Freedom" the author has made a contribution which is, in the opinion of this writer, of permanent value not only to the young people's collection but to the historical literature of our country for any reader, for it is a superb story of a humble unlettered heroine whose devotion to her own people and to their cause is an epic of courage and loyalty.

It is based upon the actual experiences of Harriet Tubman, runaway Maryland slave, who, as a little girl, rebelled at the treatment of the slaves and resolved that somehow, somewhere, there must be a happier fate in store for them. When the beloved and understanding "old marse" dies, and is succeeded by the flippant and domineering young master, the girl feels that she has a mission to perform, and desperate and reckless makes her own way to the north and freedom. Finding there friends and sympathizers, and with zeal unabated, she sets about sharing her good fortune with those still in bondage, and risks her own life time and again in leading her people into freedom and a larger life.

The author has given us here a fine picture of plantation life in the years preceding the war, and an excellent account of the workings of the underground railroad. More than all that she has presented us with an unforgettable heroine, one whose courage loyalty and understanding heart are recognized by the reader.

"Letters to Channy," by Helulu Washburne, is a book which younger children will enjoy. This is a collection of letters written by Mrs. Washburne on her round the world trip to her 7 year old son who remained at home. In them she relates many interesting incidents of her travels in various countries, among which are life on a houseboat in Kashmir, a trip across the rain soaked desert in which the car overturned, a journey to the magic city of Bagdad and a visit to Gandhi.

London Likes Story of Gypsy Girl

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—A novel which has been making its way into the good opinion of many shrewd English readers, is Miss Almey St. John Adcocks "Uphill." This is the first book to be written by Miss Adcock since her marriage, and it is dedicated, very appropriately, to her husband. From her cottage in Buckinghamshire, which is next door to that other, and slightly smaller, cottage in which her mother lives, Miss Adcock surveys a larger scene, and her heroine is a Gypsy girl, daughter of a traveling tinker, while her hero, more materially ambitious, aspires to be a land owner.

ALMEY ST. JOHN ADCOCK.

The conflict of character, always a fascinating theme for the novelist who can deal with it, makes "Uphill" most interesting, and the book will be one which many women will find absorbing. Miss Adcock still preserves in her name the association with her father, memory of whom lives unimpaired in the hearts of his friends. He was one of the best loved men of his day, brimming with kindness. That trait continues in his daughter, whose heart is never closed to her fellow creatures or to those smaller living beings whose helplessness makes claim upon her generosity and kindness. Between them, Mrs. Adcock and Miss Adcock must possess an almost incalculable number of cats, gathered from every district in which they have lived or even visited. If she were one day to tell their story, she would make them as interesting as human beings.

For more sophisticated readers than those who like "Uphill," there is a new novel of considerable merit, entitled "Inflections 1931." This is very "modern" indeed, and is a study of two young people of the present day and of what is called their "social education." The hero and heroine take their pleasures as they find them, rise to heights of affluence and experience, and at last end where they began.

There is no doubt a moral in this, as well as the entertainment provided by rapid changes of scene and situation: and the author does not disdain a happy ending to the curious succession of eagerness and disillusionments with which he has provided his protagonists. The book is the work of James Cleugh, whose one earlier novel, "Ballet for Three Masks," attracted favorable attention for its ingenious skill and sophistication.

A young novelist of whom a good deal may be heard is Miss Jane Oliver. Miss Oliver has ambition. And her ambition is to become acquainted with as many facets of life as possible in order that she may be fitted to write with understanding of the human comedy. She has already acted as secretary to an author and worked in a bookstore, besides teaching games in a school and trying her hand at nursing; and she has now written her first novel, which has the pleasing and baffling title "Tomorrow's Woods."

APPEALS BOARD EXPLAINS TAX ON STOCKS AND CASH

Personalty Levy on $1,000 to Produce $2.22.

Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, members of the board of tax appeals, gave assurance yesterday that they are valuing stocks and bonds and cash in banks on a basis which will avoid a confiscatory tax upon such personalty. They indicated that their assessments follow the lines suggested by the joint commission on real estate valuation.

This explanation was made yesterday when questioners sought their reasons for lowering valuations made by Assessor J. L. Jacobs on the full value of such personalty contained in numerous probate estates. Attorneys for almost 100 of such estates have appeared before the board and protested against the 1931 personal property assessments upon the property of deceased persons they represent.

Tax on Cash Explained.

The report of the joint commission on real estate valuation suggests to taxpayers that they equalize their own cash assets at 10 per cent of the full value when placing it upon the personal property schedules. Accepted at full value by the assessor and equalized by the 37 per cent factor applied in his office, $1,000 in cash, with a $6 tax rate, will produce $2.22 in taxes. The report asserts that in other jurisdictions where money is taxed, an effective rate is that of the 2.2 mills obtained by following the report recommendations.

Stocks and bonds other than those of Illinois corporations, which are not taxable by the assessor, should be placed on the personal property rolls at 30 per cent of their full value, the report suggests. Thus a $1,000 bond equalized by its possessor and then subjected to the 37 per cent factor in the assessor's office will produce $4.44 in taxes with a $6 rate. The report states that this tax amounts to approximately 7 per cent of the income produced if the bond has an interest rate of 6 per cent.

Seek to Prevent Injustice.

This report was made by George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuation, to the county commissioners last July 13. Its purpose, to quote from an early paragraph, is "to prevent glaring injustice and accomplish a constitutional assessment on a uniform basis." Copies of the report were made available to the public through the Chicago Bar association and the Chicago Real Estate board.

Although many of the recommendations for valuing of tangible personalty contained in the report were followed by the assessor, he refused to acknowledge that its terms were fair when applied to intangibles. In technical order No. 2, issued to all deputy assessors, Assessor Jacobs stated, however, that "this office is not committed to this report by implication or otherwise, but deputies may consider it in connection with all other facts in determining legal assessments."

Tax Uniformity Is Aim.

"We are not following exactly the recommendations contained in the Fairweather report," Mr. Brummel said yesterday. "We are going along that line in keeping with the usages and customs established to give uniformity.

"In following out the assessor's own policy that of considering the Fairweather report in making assessments, we are taking each case separately, sometimes making the full value factor 50 per cent and sometimes higher," said Mr. Nixon. "We are never allowing it to fall below the limits suggested by the Fairweather report."

The board of tax appeals last night confirmed the 1931 personal property assessments of some 2,000 filling stations in the county after arguments between County Assessor Jacobs and a group of ten lawyers which occupied two hours of the evening session.

Assessor Jacobs had fixed a standard valuation of $900 on three pump stations, but the attorneys, representing the Standard, Texas, Shell, and other major oil companies, argued the figure should be $600. The ruling of the board held the assessor's figure to be fair.

UNEMPLOYED ASK FOR ALL RELIEF IN FORM OF CASH

Tell of Opposition to Sales Tax.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission heard three spokesmen for organizations of the unemployed yesterday afternoon in the commission's office at 10 South La Salle street. The representatives of the unemployed urged the commission to change the relief machinery to accomplish two things: the giving of all relief in the form of cash and the abolition of monthly rations boxes.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson, a member of the commission, said that the distribution of relief in cash would tend to reduce the administrative costs. Although the commission is not empowered to make that change at present, he agreed that it would be possible to change the law.

Oppose Sales Tax.

Ray Lauderback of the Workers' league, Warren Lamson of the Unemployed council, and Karl Borders of the workers' committee on unemployment were the unemployed spokesmen. They denounced the proposed state wide sales tax and said the unemployed would fight it. A number of legislative authorities have pointed out that the sales tax is the only legislative method of raising additional relief funds in the state, as requested by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

In place of the sales tax the three leaders of the unemployed suggested increasing corporation taxes, taxing all incomes over $5,000 a year, and a capital levy upon all property, real and personal, over $25,000.

"Are you under the impression that the commission has indorsed the sales tax?" asked Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor and member of the commission.

"Yes, I am," replied Lamson.

"You are wrong; the commission has not indorsed it," Olander said.

Oppose Further Cuts.

The unemployed leaders said they opposed further cuts in relief funds such as the 50 per cent reduction in October. They declared that there will always be funds for relief and that there is no reason for reductions. If funds run out enough "pressure" could be brought to bear by the unemployed to obtain more money, they said. They also objected to public drives for charitable funds.

Karl Borders declared that the basic objection of the unemployed is that the case work method of distributing relief operates as a "pauper" system. The unemployed are not down-and-outers or bums, he said, but are workers without jobs. Borders said the case work method was developed to handle relief for maladjusted individuals, and operates through "young, inexperienced persons." What the unemployed want is cash relief, he said, as they feel competent to handle their own affairs without the aid of social workers.

3 MORE NAMED TO EMERGENCY BOARD BY MAYOR

Mayor Cermak yesterday announced the appointment of J. Soule Waterfield, retiring president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Albert J. Brockman, former president of the Cook County Real Estate board, and Ernest R. Graham, architect and member of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, to the Chicago emergency commission. The appointments completed the personnel of the committee, which will undertake a campaign against tax strikers by refusing water and city permits to large income producing properties on which taxes are delinquent. The other members, previously appointed, are Corporation Counsel Sexton, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, County Tax Attorney Bell and Ald. John S. Clark (36th), chairman of the council finance committee.

Three generations of one family departed for Los Angeles on a United Air Lines plane from Chicago airport at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. 14,000 SCHOOL TEACHERS GET 2 WEEKS' PAY

Fourteen thousand Chicago school teachers received their pay at the schools yesterday afternoon for the last half of April. Checks for the engineers, janitors, and other school board employés will be distributed this morning. The pay roll totals $2,275,000.

District superintendents called at the office of Charles Gilbert, school secretary, in the forenoon and received envelopes containing checks for the teachers in their areas. The principals went to the district offices shortly after noon and returned to the schools to give out the checks.

School employés have received no compensation for the months since April. The board now owes its employés more than $15,000,000 for this year's salaries, according to Harry Brackett, school auditor.

The pay day of yesterday was financed when the banks accepted 1931 school tax anticipation warrants, which had been held by the city's aggregate of funds. These securities were replaced in the city's funds by 1932 school warrants.

$22,000 IN FEES GRANTED MIDDLE WEST ATTORNEYS

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday authorized Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers for the Middle West Utilities company, to pay out $22,000 in legal fees. The fees are to be shared equally by the firm of Burry, Johnstone, Peters, & Dixon, and the firm of Schuyler, Weinfeld & Hennessy. Hereafter, Judge Lindley decided, the two firms will get $2,500 a month pending determination of their final compensation.

Judge Lindley's action brings the total compensation allowed the two law firms since the inception of the receivership on April 15 to $50,000, of which each firm was awarded half. Their last compensation was awarded on Aug. 10, when the judge authorized a payment of $38,000 to the two firms.

HOME OF JAPAN'S MOST FAMOUS PATRIOT RAIDED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 5. [Saturday].—The home of Mitsuru Toyama, "the Robin Hood of Japan" and the nation's greatest reactionary leader, was raided at 10 o'clock this morning. Toyama's son and several leaders of his movement were arrested in connection with a certain unnamed plot.

Important documents were seized. It is believed that the men had plotted the assassination of the nation's leaders. Toyama has swayed considerable power throughout the nation for the last 40 years. His name is connected with the Black Dragon society.

Has Thousands of Followers.

The raid on Toyama's home was the first challenge by the police against the great patriot, who hitherto could not be touched because he had hundreds of thousands of followers who, it is believed, would not hesitate to sacrifice their lives to back his principles. The raid created a tremendous censation among the public, which realized the extent of the spread of power among the rightist elements.

"A political boss," the Japan Year Book calls Toyama, an appellation that carries greater import in Japan than elsewhere. Although never having held public office, Toyama in his own country is one of the most famous of living Japanese.

His followers refer to him as "sensei," which conntes a combination of teacher, master, and sire. Many think of the notorious Black Dragon society, with which he is affiliated, when his name is mentioned, and among dyed in the wool liberals he represents a school of political thought which is anathema.

A Protector of Oppressed.

Though 73, he is a living social force, and doubtless has had a hand in the present recrudescence of nationalistic feeling in Japan. His beliefs may be accepted as representative of a large body of young Japanese who are prepared to go to any lengths to vindicate their stand for right and justice.

The "Robin Hood" title is a misnomer in that Toyama himself is decidedly a man apart from others, but he stands as a protector of the oppressed and an ideal of the traits most desired in national character.

FEDERAL LOANS FOR RELIEF GO TO FIVE STATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Emergency relief loans totaling more than six and a half million dollars were granted today by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Washington, and Virginia.

The Indiana advance, amounting to $250,000, was granted for relief in Indianapolis and the surrounding county of Marion, until the end of this month. Data supporting the application, the corporation stated, disclosed that until the Indiana Supreme court passes on the validity of the Indianapolis district poor relief law enacted by the special session of the state legislature the county can take no steps to meet its own needs.

Today's was the second relief loan granted by the R. F. C. to Indiana, $237,000 having been advanced previously.

Pennsylvania received a loan of $5,462,265 in response to Gov. Gifford Pinchot's personally delivered application for 6 million dollars. In granting the loan the board of directors of the corporation who have been at odds before with the Pennsylvania governor over relief advances declared they had notified Mr. Pinchot that the corporation would "hesitate to give favorable consideration to further applications for relief funds from the governor until the state and its various subdivisions have taken additional action to meet the emergency needs of the people."

The loan to Pennsylvania will be used in 63 counties of the state until the end of this month, according to the corporation announcement. Gov. Pinchot has received one earlier loan of $5,842,183 for relief in the state.

The other relief loans granted today were in the following amounts:

New Hampshire, which had received no previous relief advances from the corporation, $667,420; $105,000 to Washington, which has received $780,000; and $72,423 to Virginia, which has obtained $780,000 previously.

POLLS OFFICIALS WILL GET $500,000 IN BACK PAY ELECTION NIGHT

Mayor Cermak announced yesterday that arrangements have been made to pay over $500,000 on election night to the judges and clerks of election for their work on the two registration days and the canvassing and revision that followed. Arrangements to pay for work on election day will be made later, he said. The mayor made his announcement following a conference with County Judge Jarecki and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank.

Britain Bares Moscow Letter Urging Riots Among Jobless

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A long letter from Moscow, containing instructions to W. A. L. Hannington, communist leader of the hunger marchers and head of the national unemployed workers' movement, was read in Bow street police court today.

The writer of the letter, Sidney Job Elias, who lives in London, appeared in the court under charges that "during the month of September he unlawfully solicited and incited Walter Hannington and Emrhys Lewellyn to cause discontent, dissatisfaction, and ill will between different classes of his majesty's subjects and to create public disturbances against the police."

Urges War on Police Terror.

Extracts from the letter expressed dissatisfaction with the manner of workers in fighting the police and declared:

"Some proposals must be made to our comrades at Birkenhead and Liverpool in methods of fighting the police terror. First, agitation must be continued on the streets. Side by side with this we must work in trade union branches to develop agitation for dismissal of the chief of police."

The letter suggested lightning quick strikes among employed workers to secure abolition of the "means test," under which unemployed persons on the dole must prove they have no other means of support.

The letter was written from Moscow while Elias was on a visit there and was discovered among the documents seized at the headquarters of the National Unemployed Workers' union last Tuesday when police raided the building and arrested Hannington.

After the reading of the letter and some other evidence was heard, Elias was remanded until next Tuesday. Bail was refused him on the grounds that the case was far too serious.

Meanwhile, the debate on unemployment, which is not to be so much a debate as a pooling of ideas, began in the house of commons today and will be continued until Tuesday.

Proposes Big Loan.

Discussion was opened by George Lansbury, leader of the labor party, who urged that something be done immediately to relieve unemployment, which, he said, is the gravest danger facing Great Britain. He urged a big development loan:

"Why can we not raise as big a loan for national work as we have raised for conversion?" he asked. If we can get money at 3 per cent for conversion, surely we can get it to save the country. Today we have idle men, idle land, and idle money. Factories and mines are closed and no one can deny that the reason that money is so plentiful is that people do not know what to do with it."

Sir Henry Betterton, minister of labor, argued that Britain really is better off than many other countries in that unemployment was stationary during the last year, while in other countries it increased heavily.

"Words That Are Clear and Need Not Be Misunderstood"

These excerpts from President Hoover's Acceptance speech show where he stands on prohibition

"An increasing number of states and municipalities are proving themselves unwilling to engage in such enforcement. Due to these forces, there is in large sections an increasing illegal traffic in liquor.

"But, worse than this, there has been in those areas a spread of disrespect, not only for this law, but for all laws, grave dangers of practical nullification of the Constitution, a degeneration in municipal government and an increase in subsidized crime and violence. I cannot consent to the continuation of this regime.

"I refuse, on the one hand, to return to the old saloon, with its political and social corruption, or on the other, to endure the bootlegger and the speakeasy, with their abuses and crime. Either is intolerable.

"LAWS OPPOSED TO MAJORITY SENTIMENT CREATE RESENTMENT WHICH UNDERMINES ENFORCEMENT AND IN THE END PRODUCES DEGENERATION AND CRIME.

"The Constitution gives the President no power or authority with respect to changes in the Constitution itself. Nevertheless, my countrymen have a right to know my conclusion upon this matter.

"They are clear and need not be misunderstood.

"It is my belief that in order to remedy present evils a change is necessary by which we resummon a proper share of initiative and responsibility, which the very essence of our government demands shall rest upon the states and local authorities. That change must avoid the return of the saloon.

"IT IS MY CONVICTION THAT EACH STATE SHALL BE GIVEN THE RIGHT TO DEAL WITH THE PROBLEM AS IT MAY DETERMINE, BUT SUBJECT TO ABSOLUTE GUARANTEES IN THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES TO PROTECT EACH STATE FROM INTERFERENCE AND INVASION BY ITS NEIGHBORS, and that in no part of the United States shall there be a return of the saloon system, with its inevitable political and social corruption and its organized interference with other states."

FRANCE AGREES TO GIVE GERMANY ARMS 'EQUALITY'

Makes Vague Outlines of New Disarm Plan.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Nov. 4.—The bait for Germany's return to the disarmament conference was artfully held out today by Joseph Paul-Boncour, French war minister, in a speech before the bureau [steering committee] of the conference.

Paul-Boncour outlined the French "constructive disarmament plan" in such a way as to give rise to two very distinct impressions: First, that the French plan is more in construction than constructive and will not be fully drafted until all reactions to the trial balloon sent up during the last week in Paris are noted; second, that in what was said today, and in what Premier Herirot has said before, the French are committed to equality of treatment for Germany and it is on this ground that Chancellor Franz von Papen and Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neutath of Germany will be asked to discuss reentry to the conference.

May Allow Germany Some Arms.

It is not at all clear, however, in spite of Herriot's insistence that Germany should not be allowed to rearm whether the French intend that Germany be allowed to use in some restricted sense the weapons denied her by the Versailles treaty, or whether the victors of the war are going to give them up as belonging to the category of "offensive weapons"—the Hoover-Gibson label.

Like Herriot in Paris, Paul-Boncour today thoroughly committed France either to strict fulfillment of the arms clauses of the Versailles treaty, or, as thought more probable, to their revision. That a joker may appear in the plan after the German election, when Herriot appears at Geneva to present it in detail, seems possible Paul-Boncour said today that, of course, the countries of big populations necessarily will have their militia limited in size so as not to constitute a menace to smaller neighbors.

French Outline Vague.

Paul-Boncour spoke vaguely, apparently on purpose. And so he left the bureau in the position of waiting for something to turn up. However, he was precise about the necessity of organizing international life primarily on a continental basis, but with commitments from the United States and Great Britain so that "adventures in force" could be readily stopped. In league circles this was taken as a bad omen to the Japanese in the forthcoming assembly that is to deal with their Manchurian adventure.

Paul-Boncour was tactful about what is expected from the United States. Again instancing Secretary of State Stimson's speech before the Foreign Policy association, he said that France is asking no more of America than America herself proposed. Whereupon he contrived to suggest not only a consultative pact, which European observers think Stimson meant, but also abandonment of traditional neutrality rights in event of international action against an aggressor.

Insists on Guarantees.

"In view of the character of modern wars, adventures in force cannot succeed if the aggressors are cut off economically," Paul-Boncour said.

He added that France wants to be sure, once it has been agreed to enforce article 16 of the league covenant, which is still a condition among others, to France's reducing her army, that she will "not meet on the high seas the nations which stand aloof from the solutions we propose."

British Seek Ban on Planes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The British cabinet today discussed a proposal for total abolition of practically every type of military aircraft. Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, is reputed to favor the scheme, which would diminish or abolish not only bombing planes, but every other type of fighting aircraft. British air service experts are strongly opposed to the scheme.

4 GUNMEN HOLD UP CLEANING PLANT; FLEE WITH $1,300

Four armed men entered the office of the American Cleaners and Dyers at 4250 West Lake street early last evening and after terrorizing seven employes escaped with $1,300.

Two of the robbers entered from the front door and two from the rear. All carried pistols and held newspapers in front of their faces. In the office were the manager, Benjamin Fishbein, and six drivers.

Fishbein was commanded to open a safe and the drivers were compelled to lie on the floor. When Fishbein fumbled with the combination to the safe one of the bandits rolled his newspaper into a tight roll and struck him in the face. Obtaining the money the four men fled into an alley in the rear and drove away in an automobile. A fifth member of the band sat at the wheel.

GEORGE B. SHAW MAY VISIT U. S. 'FOR 5 MINUTES'

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw, whose good humored scoffing at America has been a source of financial profit to him for many years, today confirmed reports that next year he may visit the United States, a land where he said many times that he never would risk his neck.

"Next year," he said, "I shall be on the high seas and perhaps in the neighborhood of the United States. I may land for five minutes."

"I understand," he said, "that the population of the United States is in the neighborhood of a hundred million, and any announcement of my plans would be dangerous."

Tumors Known More Than 3,000 Years.

Dr. Max Cutler, director of the tumor clinic, Michael Reese hospital, discussed the history and causes of cancer last night at the Chicago Woman's club. This was the first of five illustrated lectures on cancer which he is to deliver under the sponsorship of the Institute of Medicine of Chicago, and the cancer research committee of the Chicago Woman's club.

Dr. Cutler pointed out that observations of this malignant tumor have been recorded since 1500 B. C., but its specific cause still is unknown. It has been established that cells are stimulated to abnormal growth when the tissue is subjected to certain chronic irritations, but this does not explain the underlying cause of all types of cancer, Dr. Cutler said.

Science Disagrees on Causes.

He discussed the various theories on the subject, saying that the main body of scientists follow the idea that cancer is a cellular phenomenon, while a more limited number investigate the possibility that cancer research belongs to the field of bacteriology.

He told of the theory that the weakening of the tissues with advancing age gives the tumor a chance to grow. He sketched the arguments of certain scientists who have held that cancer might be hereditary and of those who advance the possibility that it was parasitic in nature.

Dr. Cutler brought out the fact that persons who follow certain occupations are particularly subject to cancer, some chronic irritation being associated with their work.

See Danger in Radium.

Some of the most noteworthy occupational cases have occurred among people working with or near radioactive material, the lecturer said. As specific examples, he mentioned girls who applied luminous paint to watch dials in a New Jersey factory, and workers in two South African mines in which there was much radioactive material. The action of oil, tar, and X-rays on the skin also may lead to the development of cancer, Dr. Cutler said.

The second lecture of the series is to be delivered next Friday. The meetings are open to all physicians and dentists interested in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

J. M. WILLITS TO CONTEST WIFE'S DIVORCE SUIT

John McGregor Willits, son of Ward W. Willets, president of a railroad supply company, will contest the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits, 890 Roslyn circle, Highland Park, Judge Joseph Sabath was notified yesterday in the Superior court. Mrs. Willits' suit charges cruelty.

Willits' notice was given by Attorney Russell McCaughey, who at the same time requested and was granted permission to withdraw from the case as counsel for Willits. He informed Judge Sabath that he had signed a stipulation with David Jacker, attorney for Mrs. Willits, that a decree be granted Mrs. Willits by default, but that his client yesterday refused to sign the stipulation.

The case was continued to give Willits time to engage other counsel. His wife, whom he married in 1928, is a daughter of John W. Liggett of New York, member of a wholesale drug concern.

DENIES MOTION TO ACQUIT THREE STONE OFFICIALS

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday overruled motions for a directed verdict of not guilty made in behalf of three of nine former officials of H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment concern, who are on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud. He ruled on motions of Marshall W. George, secretary; Charles D. Packer Jr., treasurer, and Scott Carroll, controller of the Stone company. Attorney Charles F. Rathbun had started to argue similar motions in behalf of Henry F. Norcott, president; Harold D. Bennett, vice president of H. O. Stone & Co., and Francis E. Richardson, vice president of the Stone Finance company, when court was adjourned. Judge Woodward said that he had made up his mind to overrule these motions also. He agreed, however, to hear the rest of the argument today.

DR. CHARLES MOLZ DIES.

Gang Confesses

More than 30 robberies of motorists on the Lincoln highway, Western avenue, and the old Sauk trail, south and west of Chicago Heights, were cleared up yesterday with the confessions of a gang of seven youths held in the Homewood station of the county highway police.

The recent series of robberies caused Lieut. Robert Seiter to assign Deputy Edward Freckelton to dress in woman's clothing and patrol the roads in an automobile with Sergt. John Orgel. They were stopped last Sunday night by two men. Orgel shot one of them, Arthur Gray, a Negro, and the policeman captured the other, Walter Wheeler.

Wheeler implicated six others and they were arrested and confessed. The others held are John and Samuel Somillis, Lawrence Schubert, Benny Leonardo, Joe Natalian, and Peter Puharski. Lieut. Seiter said the gang gave dates of robberies and descriptions of automobiles robbed in their confessions. He asked motorists who have been held up in the territory to appear at the station and identify the bandits.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Brushing aside the seniority rules in the army, Adjt. Gen. C. H. Bridges today announced a new policy whereby younger officers shall be given preference in attendance at the war college next year, in final preparation for duty on the general staff.

The average age of graduates of the war college now in the service is 49 years. This means an officer who has completed all the technical schools, ending with his graduation from the war college, has only fifteen years of service remaining before his retirement.

Maj. Gen. Bridges, in a communication to the chiefs of arms and services, made public today, would change the age limit so as to ignore the usual seniority rule in the selection of the officers for enrollment next year. He stipulated that at least one-half of the quota of each arm and service shall consist of officers who will be less than 44 years old on Sept. 1, 1933. Under this arrangement the army could utilize their superior training for a period of at least 20 years before retirement.

STIMSON SILENT ON FRENCH PLAN TO LIMIT ARMS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson today declined to comment on the new French arms limitation proposal which calls for American participation in a new world consultative pact. The secretary said that a full report regarding the French plan, as outlined at Geneva today by Joseph Paul Boncour, French minister of war, had not been received at the state department. No American reaction to the plan probably will be made public prior to the election, officials said.

Secretary Stimson is on record as favoring American consultation with other Kellogg pact powers in event of an emergency which threatens to cause war between signatories or a signatory and another power. Whether the administration will agree to commit itself formally to consultation in event of war is a question department officials declined to answer today.

The Republican party platform states that the party favors "enactment by congress of a measure that will authorize our government to call, or participate in an international conference in case of any threat of nonfulfillment of article 2 of the Paris treaty [Kellogg pact]."

The Democratic platform advocates making the Kellogg pact effective through "provisions for consultation and conference in case of threatened violations of treaties."

Canadian Publisher on Trial for Criminal Libel

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—(AP)—James J. Harpell, publisher of the Journal of Commerce, was arraigned today, charged with criminal libel against T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. He was remanded until next Wednesday when a plea will be entered. A true bill against the publisher was returned by the grand jury yesterday. Harpell announced he had retained an attorney. In the lower courts he defended himself.

3 GARY YOUTHS SENTENCED FOR POLICE KILLING

Three youths from Gary, convicted on Oct. 17 of the murder of Policeman Harold J. Koehncke of Dolton, were sentenced to prison by Judge John J. Sullivan of the Criminal court yesterday.

Tony Pickels, 19 years old, must serve 35 years; his brother, Peter, 18, must remain behind walls 14 years, and Frank Piunti, 21, was sentenced to 25 years.

Koehncke was shot after he had arrested the trio for a minor traffic violation and as he was accompanying them to the Dolton police station on July 22.

FOOD AUTHORITY ASKS GIFTS FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

Says Free Lunches Protect Future Health.

A. J. Carlson, head of the department of physiology of the University of Chicago, who is well known as a nutrition expert, appealed yesterday to the citizens of Chicago to support the Hungry School Children's fund "for the sake of the future health of undernourished children."

"When President Hover says that no man, woman, or child in this country will starve this winter, he means, undoubtedly, that deaths directly attributable to acute starvation will be few, Prof. Carlson said. But starvation, in the sense of the inadequacy of food for the best of health and growth and the most efficient defense against disease, is among us. We saw it in abundance in the children in our schools last winter. It is with us now.

Peril to Mind and Body.

"Every informed citizen knows that inadequate food is more serious for the growing child than for the adult because there is danger of the permanent stunting and crippling of both mind and body and of incurring such chronic devastating diseases as tuberculosis.

"Every teacher knows that efforts toward education are largely wasted on the starving and undernourished child. Our citizens should also remember that owing to the depleted budget the medical service to our children through our schools has been largely eliminated. During this winter more families than ever are coming to the end of their own resources.

All Gifts Used for Food.

"Our citizens and the children of our schools owe THE TRIBUNE a debt of gratitude for the continued efforts to meet the most acute undernutrition condition among thousands of children in our schools. They can feel assured that every penny contributed to the Hungry School Children's fund, or directly to the schools, goes 100 per cent to those children.

"The Chicago schools, under stress, have worked out a most efficient system to handle this situation. There are no fads, no waste. But larger funds are needed. Miss Frances L. Swain, director of the household arts department of the board of education, estimates that $3,000 a week will enable the schools to meet only the most acute cases."

Day's Gifts to Fund Total $213.

COL. R. R. M'CORMICK SAYS TAX CUTS WILL RESTORE PROSPERITY

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, today told several hundred Nebraska bankers, assembled in annual convention here, that "the return of prosperity, the salvation of our country, depend upon tax reduction."

Unless immediate effective methods are taken to lift the terrific tax burden and to curb public expenditures municipal, state, and national bankruptcy is inevitable, he asserted.

"The prospect is dark, but it is not yet too late," Col. McCormick said. "The future is still within your control. You who wish to save your country must act quickly. You must elect a congress that will aid, not ruin it. You must organize to send to Washington men who will undo the misdeeds of the last congress and start us back from the road to ruin.

"If you have the eyes to see, the brain to comprehend, and the will to act, you can save your country. If you lack these qualities, no outside force will come to your aid and we will be merely the remnant of a bygone civilization."

Col. McCormick predicted that when "the federal government removes its income tax drain tube from the arteries of national industry the emancipated money will rush into investment, building will start, factories will open, supplies of all kinds will be bought at increasing prices."

Students Are Dismissed for Auto Violations.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—As an aftermath to the dismissal of six students at the University of Illinois yesterday for violation of the automobile regulations, it became known today that V. J. Delbeccaro, 218 South Seeley avenue, Chicago, president of the junior class for this semester, was among those dismissed, although names of the students affected were not made public.

Delbeccaro appealed his dismissal and was given a hearing today, but the senate committee on student affairs affirmed his dismissal, and accordingly the student council will be called upon to fill the vacancy as head of the junior class for the current semester. Delbeccaro was the driver of the car owned by a co-ed in which the girl was killed in an accident near Chicago last Friday night.

The wholesale dismissal of students for violating the automobile regulations is expected to eliminate considerable infractions of the rule hereafter by university students. The senate committee, in clarifying the regulations, stated:

"Students with motor vehicle permits granting them use of their cars for specific purposes outside the community limits shall not carry student passengers when driving outside Champaign-Urbana, unless they secure permission from the senate committee on student affairs.

"Family use outside community limits implies operation of a car outside the corporate limits only when the student driver holding a permit is accompanied by a parent or guardian. Operation of a car outside the limits when the driver is unaccompanied by parents or guardian may be approved by the senate committee on student affairs in cases of demonstrated necessity of special convenience."

BURGLARS ROUTED BY SHOTS.

Four Negro burglars, who tried to loot the Dover Auto Heater company, 3907 Prairie avenue, were frightened away early yesterday morning by Arthur Schreiber, a watchman, who emptied his revolver at them.

12,000 SEE LEFT HANDED MAN WIN HUSKING CONTEST

Defeats World Champion for Illinois Title.

Monticello, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Twelve thousand farmers today saw a left handed corn husker win a state husking championship for the first time in history when Carl Seiler of Oneida, Knox county champion, defeated last year's world champion, Orville Welch, for the title.

This was Illinois' ninth state match and the fourth in which Seiler had competed. In 1926 and again last year he placed second. He represented Illinois in the national contest last year in Iowa when Welch won the world's title. Seiler placed fourth. Seiler is the only left hander who has ever won a place in the national match.

Husks 32.02 Bushels.

Seiler won today's match with a net load of 32.02 bushels in 80 minutes. Welch, handicapped by his big gallery of fans, placed second with 31.77 bushels. Third place in the match went to Harlan Kohl of Christian county, with a net load of 31.53 bushels. Kohl was busking in a state match for the first time and went into the match stripped to the waist. Kohl had the least deduction of any husker for corn left behind in the field and was the second cleanest husker in the match.

Harold Holmes of Henry county, state champion in 1927 and 1929, was the favorite to win by virtue of his record of 38.5 bushels made in his county match this year.

This was the best contest record ever made east of the Mississippi. In today's match he had to be satisfied with fourth place. Fifth and last prize winning place went to Ernest Rehn of Marshall county, with a record of 31.17 bushels.

Enter National Contest.

Seiler and Welch will represent Illinois in the national match in Henry county, Ill., next Thursday.

Records of the other contestants were as follows:

Clarence Switzer, Edgar county, 30.08 bushels; Will Pritchard, Menard county, 29.98 bushels; E. Sundvall, Mercer, 31.11 bushels; Albert Wellenreiter, McLean, 29.9 bushels; George Seiler, Warren, 30.27 bushels; Arthur Herman, Woodford county, 31.1 bushels; Charles Flenner, Piatt, 30.6 bushels.

The match was the closest ever held with six of the 12 contestants within a bushel of each other and less than three bushels between the first and last man.

Wins Iowa Title.

Colfax, Ia., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Orville Wicks of Kanawha, Wright county, today won the Iowa corn husking championship. He picked a net of 1,845.7 pounds in 80 minutes. Second place went to Walter Johannsen of Exira, Audubon county, and third to Earl Harmon, Emerson, Mills county.

FIND ONE MAN OUT OF EVERY 150 IS IN PRISON TODAY

Rodney Brandon Reveals State Crime Growth.

One out of every 150 adult males in the state of Illinois is in prison today, and one out of every 75 adult males in the state is anti-social in his attitude, a potential or actual criminal, Rodney H. Brandon, director of the Illinois department of public welfare, said last night.

He addressed delegates to the seventh annual convention of the Illinois Vocational association at a dinner in the Hotel Sherman. The convention will continue today. More than 1,500 men and women, most of them vocational teachers from Chicago and downstate, attended. W. J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, also spoke. L. E. Myers, president of the board of education, welcomed the delegates.

Suggests Crime Prevention.

Society knows no more what to do with the criminal than it did 1,000 years ago, Mr. Brandon declared. He suggested that instead of trying to reform criminals society try to prevent crime, and suggested the schools as an important factor in this work.

In 1880 the state had 65 out of every 100,000 of its citizens in prison, he said; in 1920, 55; in 1930, 111, and today more than 120 in every 100,000 of population.

Of the 11,250 adults in prison in Illinois now less than 250 are women. For every man in prison there is one out of prison who has the same attitude toward society, the speaker said.

"He is 23 years old. He is as typically American as the other 74. He is urban rather than rural. He tends to homelessness. He is churchless in experience.

"Finally, he is a victim of a lack of work training and work practice. He is the equal mentally of the other 74, but his educational experience is different. He is not a high school graduate.

"If girls and boys were kept in school until they graduated from high school we would see crime cut enormously."

Ideal School Systems.

The speaker cited as ideal school systems those of Milwaukee and Madison, "where any type of mind can graduate from high school because of the socialized course."

Supt. Bogan declared that the problem of unemployment was greater than any minor problem of education. He advocated part time vocational schools and leisure time classes for boys and girls with jobs. The vocational schools made a fatal error in feeling urged to compete with the classics on their own ground, he said.

"Vocational education must look on itself as a clearing house to receive all educational forces otherwise lacking to adjust a child to society," he said.

SUGAR ARRIVING BY WATER DUE TO LOW PRICES

The transportation of refined sugar to Chicago by boat has been resumed, after a period of years during which it was carried almost exclusively by railroad, it was learned yesterday from H. P. Blakey of the Tooker Storage and Forwarding company, 3615 Iron street, where the sugar has been unloaded. Sugar is traveling via water because the current price averages only about 4½ cents a pound, he said.

Three cargoes of 46,000 bags, 20,000 bags and 26,000 bags, each containing 100 pounds, have been unloaded at the Tooker warehouse on the south branch of the Chicago river in the last month, he explained, the last shipment arriving Thursday in the SS Alfred H. Smith, which collided with the Wabash avenue bridge when it failed to open. That shipment is owned by the Western Sugar Refinery and the Spreckles Sugar company.

The sugar originates in the Philippine islands, being shipped to California duty free. It is refined there and transported by boat through the Panama canal to New York City; then on a New York state barge line to Buffalo, where it is transferred to a lake vessel and brought to Chicago. The trip from California to Chicago requires 28 days. More shipments are due, Blakey said, the next on Nov. 15.

BELLE BENNETT, 'STELLA DALLAS' OF FILMS, DIES

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Succumbing to an illness from which she had suffered many months, Belle Bennett, 39, the "Stella Dallas" of film fame and probably one of the best known portrayers of mother rôles on the screen, died tonight at the Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

Death occurred at 10:48 p. m., hospital attendants said, and at the bedside was her son, Theodore Macy. She was conscious until the last. Her husband, Fred Windermere, film director, had left her bedside shortly before death occurred.

Dr. Leon Tiber, who attended her, said her death was caused by general carcinomatosis.

She had been confined to the hospital since last September, when she returned here from the east after collapsing in Philadelphia during a vaudeville performance.

Favorite Pets Adorn Letters from Society

Tell Stationery Hobbies of Chicago Folk.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A YOUNG north side matron has just had an artist friend sketch her pet wire-haired terrier. The drawing is to be engraved with her name on her visiting card, for, as she explains, she never goes calling without him.

This is only one comment, by way of stationery, on the hobbies and habitations of society. There are many more.

The beauty and extent of the Charles H. Schweppes' Lake Forest estate has prompted Mrs. Schweppe to choose several of the loveliest vistas for the household stationery. On her personal note paper is engraved one view of the handsome residence. The place cards are decorated with a sketch of the courtyard and the stationery supplied in the guest chamber uses the picture seen from one of the chamber windows. The single line "Under Our Old Elm," written below the drawing suggests its charm.

In similar fashion Mrs. W. B. Simpson uses scenes about her estate at Menlo Park, Cal., for her personal writing paper. And many a person has stopped to admire the stationery of the Arthur Cuttens engraved with the picture of one of the formal gardens at Sunny Acres.

More personal, perhaps, are the sketches of canine pets and pedigreed mounts that indicate humanitarian and sporting interests on the part of various well known members of society. Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, it almost goes without saying, uses dogs on her stationery, and Libby Chase, the Dunhams, and the Joseph T. Bowen Jrs. favor horses.

Young John Shedd Reed, who has a miniature train to play with down at Hot Springs, lets his friends know of his favorite toy by means of a drawing on his writing paper. And so on and on.

No large house is without a stationery supply that rivals its linen closet both in variety and extent—formal paper and informal, personal and impersonal, masculine and feminine. As an art letter writing cannot hold a candle today to the long and elaborate epistles penned back in the glamorous days of the 18th and 19th centuries. Thomas Jefferson is reputed to have written 12,000 personal essays during each year of his administration. Warren Harding, on the other hand, wrote so few letters while he was President that as high as $1,000 has been offered for a single one in long hand. This in itself is a commentary on what has happened to the old art of penning notes.

And yet the stationery is so much more colorful, so much smarter than anything our forbears used—blues, the color of Englishmen's shirts, innocuous grays and greens, and all the little personal amenities already mentioned. When the address is given at the top of a sheet [and this means establishment, you know], it is done in some dramatic, daring fashion like that of Mrs. Philip Maher, or again, that of Mrs. Philip James of New York. And when an escritoire is particularly thoughtful and gives his phone number, it appears in some novel manner like that of Mrs. Frank Hibbard. With the same street and phone number, Mrs. Hibbard has "1301" engraved vertically on either side of her large letter "H." Often times the phone itself is dramatized along with the number. Very English.

Pull down a copy of Thomas Hobbes and you will find that he attributes the first letters to Cadmus, the son of Agenor, king of Phoenicia. "A profitable invention for continuing the memory of time past," he writes. And then dig down in a history book and you will read that 1800 years ago, when the Chinese emperor Ho-Ti desired the favor of Trajan, emperor of Rome, he sent him 1,000 sheets of writing paper, then the rarest gift that even an emperor could offer.

Fourteen centuries later the first writing paper was made in England at the command of Queen Elizabeth who desired a paper worthy of her royal signature. There is a sample of the handsome deckle edge paper to be found today in the quaint old parish church of Dartford. John Spilman, the jeweler who made it, was later knighted by the queen for his achievement.

And 400 years after this, experts from the Dartford mills who had learned Mr. Spilman's secret, were brought to this country to reproduce the writing papers made for the English court—the royal beginning of stationery in this country.

Millions Who Buy Bracelets Can't Be Wrong

BY RHEA SEEGER.

FIFTY MILLION bracelet buyers can't be wrong. This is the one year of all years to cover yourself with fashion glory and wear as many bracelets as your conscience will let you.

Dress designers, coat makers, and suit experts have all arranged for bracelets . . . all the fur has been piled around the throatlines practically submersing every feature but the tip of the nose . . . we look a trifle topheavy, but what fun it is going to be to wear these huge, snuggly fur collars when the blizzards get to blowing.

With all the fur reposing at the top, nothing is used around the wrists. Consequently we are going to revive the romantic and comforting muff. Puff sleeves preclude any extras on the wrists, so here is where you feature your pet bracelet collections.

You have seen the clattery, clinking variety of metal, the get-togethers of six, seven, eight, or more narrow metal rings. You can buy all the spare tire affairs of chromium, transparent prystal and metal, but some new mesh models are going to keep you cheerful for weeks. They are wide, with a huge wide buckle, the entire bracelet looking like a strap. A flexible metal mesh with rounded edges that smoothly refuse to snag material or scratch your skin is pierced with four or five holes. You wrap this bracelet around your wrist, pull the end through to fit snugly, buckle it securely, and there it stays, one of the newest, most brilliant costume bracelets of the year.

Stunning bracelets of this mesh stuff are worn in pairs outside and over the crushed wrist section of your gloves. Gold numbers contrast black and brown and green and red coats, while a silver pair gleams swankily with gray, black, and any color you might wear.

Another mesh arrival in the smartest shops is the coat belt . . . a wide metal mesh belt fastened with a simple flat but very large oblong buckle that transforms a wool coat. These new mesh belts are also tremendously effective worn with wool and silk frocks.

If you are fascinated with the gleam of copper you can find some knockout belts made of either red, brown, black, or deep green shades of suede, studded with big blobs of copper. These belts are wide, wider than you have seen for quite some time. Some of them are four or five inches in width, but they are something to get excited about when you cinch them tightly about your lower ribs over the fuzzy wool sports frocks that seem to need just such a spectacular contrast.

There is some asbestos white costume jewelry that will do lovely things for black, madonna blue, and gray dresses . . . the necklaces and earrings are particularly interesting. For the first time some clever costume designer has really used frosty silver and a white with artistic distinction. The white beads are of the texture and tint of asbestos and they are combined beautifully with a dull silver in a way that will open your eyes. The silver leaves used as a contrast and as a design to hold the white bead ball for an earring is equal to any delicately designed earring made of precious jewels. The costume clips made of this white and silver merger are most effective against all black and dark colored frocks and gowns.

All these new things have price tags that will persuade you to invest at once.

Hairdress and Makeup Change Facial Contour

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What can you do for a face that is too broad? For a face that is too thin? For a face that is too long and narrow?

With hairdress and correct makeup a surprising change can be given the facial contour. You can seat yourself in front of your mirror some off afternoon and experiment with this and that line of coiffure and see before your eyes how your hair drawn sleek back over the ears will do one thing for the face, and how it worn drawn forward on cheek and temple it will do quite another. I can't help you in this nearly so well as you can determine for yourself what a hairdress change will do for your individual width of face and face length problem. Get hold of a good fashion magazine or an illustrated page of coiffures and experiment.

But with makeup application there are a few rules to guide. If the face is broad don't lay the rouge on in a path across the cheek. Try for the vertical line. But do not come far down on the cheek. All rouge application should keep well above the middle of the cheek.

If the face is broad put the color back of the cheek bones toward the temples. And use rouge lightly here, blending it in well so that neither where it begins nor ends can it be detected. Or, a trick I've seen work with the broad face is to put the rouge on very lightly near the nose. Anyway, there should not be a large blotch of coloring on the most prominent part of the cheek.

The thin face is helped by letting the rouge path run horizontally across the cheek bone. And the long face may be foreshortened by touching up the chin with a dash of rouge.

If there are lines under the eyes, keep the rouge far away. And if the eyes are close set, don't let rouge come up close to the nose. Keep it back on the outer part of the cheek bone.

Experiment with your own face. You can easily clean off the makeup if you don't get it on becomingly. And the most becoming effect is awfully worth striving for.

Scene from Play for Children

"Nasty med'cine," Colin (Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr.) seems to describe the way he (in the play, she in real life) feels about what his nurse (Mrs. Robert White Jr.) is giving him. This picture was taken at a dress rehearsal of "The Secret Garden" to be given for six consecutive Saturday mornings, starting this morning, at the Playhouse by the Junior League Theater for Children. Women Cling to Convention of Introductions

The Proprieties Act as a Safeguard.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Please tell us why two people of opposite sex who see each other every morning or evening cannot speak without committing an offense against propriety? What is there so improper about exchanging a greeting, when friendly glances are bestowed in passing and there is obviously a desire to speak? H. and M."

"Helen" and "Margaret" are not of flirtatious natures. Nor would they pick up with stranger on impulse. But they've been meeting the same men on the same conveyance for a long time. They like the looks of the men. The men, seemingly, return the compliment. So, why couldn't an introduction be dispensed with, under the circumstances?

The crop of old maids and bachelors, the girls believe, would be minimized in numbers were the bars let down in this respect as they have been let down in other problems of behavior of late years. Come to think of it, the girls argue, why should this one code remain and so many others of the Victorian régime be healthfully dismissed?

"We will not start the 'Good Morning,'" Helen and Margaret conclude, "and naturally we do not expect the young men to do so. But just tell us what would be so terribly improper were it done by one or the other of us?"

Perhaps nothing improper at all! Perhaps a very pleasant relationship might ensue. Perhaps a real romance develop. And again, perhaps the experiment would be unhappy. The man might be married. The girl, too. Or, one or the other, in him and herself might be disillusioning on acquaintance. We think perhaps the reason this particular propriety has survived is because men keep on cherishing possession of the girl who is not too easy to get. Women sense this and it isn't an etiquette ruling so much as their own native wit that restrains their impulse to be unconventional. Isn't it the truth? Isn't that why you haven't done it yourself, H. and M.?

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT? BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright, 1932, by Ned Brodie Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CLASS DAY.

"The professor's right, you guys," drawled "Beak" Trigert to Fordney's class. "As an ex-con I admit 'crime don't pay!' He's asked me to tell you mugs about a clever dodge I used one time—but you won't get it.

"The bulls were on the trail of 'Butch' Kilinsky, my pal, living at the other end of town, and I had to get a letter to him tipping him off. I didn't have a cent and I couldn't borrow, beg or steal a stamp and 'Butch' didn't have a phone!

"So what did I do? I'll tell you ham criminologists! I wrote a letter, addressed it, sealed it, dropped it into the mail box at the corner, without postage, and it was delivered to Kilinsky by the mailman the next day and not a cent was collected!"

"You mean," interrupted Barry, "you put no postage on the letter and none was collected on delivery?"

"You heard me! Nobody paid nothin'," retorted "Beak" good naturedly. "How's that for beatin' the game?"

HOW DID "BEAK" DO IT?

Perhaps you have one you would like the professor to submit to his class. If so send it to him in care of this paper and he will be delighted to see what his students make of it.

Bishop of Exeter Makes Peace Plea at Northwestern U.

Students of Northwestern university yesterday heard the Rt. Rev. William Rupert Cecil, bishop of Exeter, England, declare in Fisk chapel, on the Evanston campus, the belief that our civilization should end all wars. His journey to this country is mainly to promote good fellowship among nations, he added.

At noon yesterday the prelate was a luncheon guest at the Evanston University club. He talked at 5 o'clock at the Western Theological seminary and in the evening was the guest at a dinner at the home of Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago. He will speak tomorrow morning at St. Luke's Episcopal church in Evanston and before the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall tomorrow night.

How Far Should Child Adjust Self to Facts?

Should Environment Be Changed for Him?

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Many people believe children must learn to make the best of any circumstances in which they find themselves and any people or children with whom they are thrown in contact, that they must learn to adapt themselves to school and teachers as they find them. And that in this way they will be trained and fitted to meet life as they find it later on.

Adjusted to life, they call it. Toughened by experience. Learning to be a good sport.

What do you think about it? Do you believe that if we find a child's home or school or social life not suited to him we should use our intelligence and energy in shaping him to suit it—to accept it? Or do you believe we ought to make his environment as right for him as possible?

For myself, I believe that a child's early life should be as nearly suited to his individual needs as possible.

When he's older it is more difficult. But being more sturdy in every way then, if conditions are nearly right for him we can then expect a certain measure of compromise or adjustment.

But when they are not nearly enough right for him even when older, we must not expect him to re-shape himself too much. It is healthier that he show signs of distress when he's out of key with his surroundings so that we can do something about it, as is the case with the body for example, which by feeling pain and so gaining attention saves itself from destruction. For, suppose we cut our arteries or burned our flesh and felt no pain—our blood would flow out or our tissues be destroyed. Pain is nature's wholesome alarmist.

So, chronic unhappiness, distaste for school, defiance, temper explosions, lying, stealing are like the body's pain—signs that something not favorable to a child's growth of mind, or body or is both going on. These signs appear. It is time for us to sit up, and think. "In correcting this, how plastic shall we expect this child to be? How much shall be adjusted to him? In other words, how pliable shall we expect him to be, without losing the vital things that make him himself—and happy and fulfilled?"

These are the questions we must answer, for we don't want our children to be so plastic that they accommodate themselves to everything and anything, even if they could. That might easily foster a lack of force. Or the price of the accommodation might be too great, and injure them deeply.

Do some observing and thinking about this subject—it's a big one.

Good Morning!

That air mail stamp on your letter! What did it mean to you?

"Well, foolish QUESTION!" you answer. "It meant to me that the letter came by air mail—of COURSE!"

After you've seen the picture, "Air Mail," you're going to read a STORY into every air mail stamp you receive—and don't you forget it!

This movie tells tersely an interesting, believable story of Uncle Sam's air mail pilots. It shows them at home, at airport and a-flight, and lets you into the inner lives of three men whose destinies become strangely entangled.

The situation in which real personalities are revealed are presented with honesty, astuteness and a sense of dramatic value. The film has been excellently directed and cast.

Pat O'Brien delivers a notable character portrayal as a black sheep of the service—and its crack flyer—who [almost literally] sprouts wings when dire emergency confronts him. Ralph Bellamy presents a clean cut, forceful portrayal of an airport manager who never spares himself, but, by his own ruling, invariably takes the flight to follow one that has met with accident. Russell Hopton as a betrayed husband who knows his wife for what she is and treats her accordingly does one of his sure, artistic bits of work. Lillian Bond, as his wife, and Gloria Stuart, as the nice girl Miller [the manager] loves, are convincing and good to look at.

The photoplay is finely staged and photographed. Much of the action was taken in and around an out of the way western airport. The scenery is fascinating and there are storms to chill your bones.

Society Faces a Busy Week-End; Major Benefits on Calendar

BY JUDITH CASS.

NOT since those hectic early autumn days when there were several debuts every Saturday and all sorts of interesting things happening on Saturday nights and on Sundays has there been such a crowded week-end as this one has started out to be. If one tries to include everything in her Friday to Monday round of pleasure she will be too exhausted to go to the polls on Tuesday and cast her vote, but she will have helped financially quite a few charities, for most of the large affairs are benefits.

Last night there was the North Avenue Day nursery county fair; this morning the Junior League Theater for Children opens its season, and the third of the Town Hall lectures [Emerson House settlement benefits by them] will be given; tonight there is the huge Eli Bates benefit at the 124th Field ..rtillery armory; tomorrow afternoon the Lawrence Tibbett concert for the benefit of the free bed fund of the Passavant Memorial hospital, and Monday night the Olivet institute and cradle benefits.

And that's not listing any of the purely social things that are on the calendar, which include two debuts and numerous smaller affairs.

Mrs. Winterbotham Has Leading Role

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. is to take the leading rôle in "The Secret Garden," the Junior league's production at the Playhouse. She depicts a very bad sick little boy who becomes a very good healthy one before the end of the play, however. Miss Frances Weary is to appear as Dr. Craven in her father's striped trousers and cutaway coat, plus impressive looking glasses; Miss Helen Bell has the hard job of taking care of Colin, the little boy, and Mary, his cousin, through whose good influences Colin becomes good and well; Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr. is the gardener and Miss Paula Wilms, the league's publicity chairman, says that Mrs. Gambrill was asking frantically for alcohol after the dress rehearsal, not for a stimulant but to remove her beard.

Mrs. Walter Paepcke has painted the scenery, assisted by Mrs. Shreve Badger and Miss Marietta Gillette executed the costumes. Others in the cast are Mrs. Stephen Harrington, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis, Mrs. Norman MacLeish, and Miss Gloria Chandler, who directs the play as well as acts in it. The play will start at 10:30 o'clock and will run for six consecutive Saturdays.

There will be a fashionable audience at the Drake hotel this morning to hear Stuart Chase talk on the economic situation in his lecture entitled "The End of an Epoch." The lecture will be followed by a number of luncheon parties.

Bates Setlement House Benefit

The big event on tonight's calendar will be the polo games between the Oakbrook and Fort Sheridan and the Chicago Riding club and the 124th Field Artillery teams at the 124th Field Artillery armory on the south side for the benefit of the Eli Bates settlement house.

The young women members of the settlement board have been working on this benefit since the late summer and have succeeded in selling boxes to an impressive list of men and women interested in the Eli Bates work.

More than a score of debutantes have promised to usher and to sell programs and cigarets. They'll all

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Woodwork forms some 50 per cent of the furnishing in a small home and interior trim which shows signs of wear and deterioration needs attention. Brightening up this trim with paint—unless it is of rare wood with beautiful grain—is inexpensive and productive of practical results. Built in furniture such as cabinets, china closets, tray cases, book shelves, linen cases, and broom cabinets can be given gayly painted interiors. Be sure to secure a proper painting job, since different woods demand different methods and good paint intelligently applied is essential for satisfactory results.

Three Queries Answered in Kitchen Clinic

BY MARY MEADE.

Fortunately in this cooking game, while there are many questions to be answered every day, there are also answers for each one of them. The job is to get questions and answers together.

First a question from Miss G. W., who asks: "Just what is the best way to make open sandwiches? How should they be decorated and what filling may I use?"

Answer: Fortunately almost any good, savory sandwich spread which you would use ordinarily on double sandwiches may be used. As a rule the crusts of the bread are removed and the slices toasted on just one side. For an interesting luncheon open face sandwiches cut the crusts from two slices of bread, toast lightly, and butter. On one slice place a crisp lettuce leaf and slivers of chicken meat, also two small sweet pickles sliced in fan fashion and overlapping row of stuffed olive slices. Decorate this with a teaspoon of mayonnaise. On the other slice heap two tablespons of salad made by mixing equal parts of shredded cabbage and diced pineapple with a little mayonnaise and a dash of paprika.

Question number two (from Miss S. S.): "I tried to make molasses taffy several times, but without success. One recipe I have calls for one cup of water and another for none. What is a good recipe? Why do they use baking soda in taffy? Does too much molasses make a taffy brittle?"

Answer: No, a large proportion of molasses should not make taffy objectionably hard before pulling. Most taffy should be hard and brittle after it is pulled. In fact, a delicious molasses candy may be made from nothing but a quart of molasses and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Cook it to 300 degrees F. Then add one-eighth teaspoon baking soda and cool the mass. Pull to a light golden yellow. The reason there was more water indicated in some recipes than in others was because molasses is over one-third water, and therefore a candy calling for a large amount of molasses doesn't need much if any added liquid, while a taffy using considerable white sugar must have water added. Baking soda is used to counteract the acidity of the molasses. I am sending you my favorite taffy recipe and also one for Scotch kisses. You'll like them.

Next, from Mrs. J. W. O.: "Last summer the palates of my son and daughter were delighted by a sort of 'shrimp stew' which contained peppers, celery, peas, etc., all blended with a meat gravy. I wonder if you could give me such a recipe?"

While this stew, Mrs. O., may not be quite like the one you mention, from this start you will be able to create several varieties and let son and daughter take their pick.

SHRIMP STEW.

2 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoon minced onion
4 level tablespoons flour
1 cup rich meat stock
1 cup stewed, strained tomatoes
1 cup diced celery
½ cup peas
¼ cup minced green pepper
2 2-3 cups cooked shrimps
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
Few drops tabasco sauce
2 teaspoons peppery sauce

Sauté the onions in the butter till brown. Stir in the flour, then add the meat stock and tomatoes and cook until thickened. Add the peas and celery and simmer ten minutes. Add the shrimps and seasoning and continue simmering fifteen minutes. Serve with dry boiled rice.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half-Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly seances in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London, asking her to search for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruin of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish. Natasha is arrested. It is learned that the man she'd been meeting secretly was her wastrel brother, Michael, who is wanted for theft and has fled the country. News is received of his death. Natasha is brought to trial. There is no proof of guilt. She is freed, though still under suspicion. Neil continues the murder search. He calls on the doctor who attended Caroline.

INSTALLMENT XLVIII.

A NAME TO BE CLEARED.

"It is quite plain what you're hoping to get at," he said in a dry tone, "and my advice is: Leave well alone. I may even tell you, without unduly committing myself, that a number of persons are not at all satisfied justice has been done in the matter of this trial. They contend that if a certain individual now dead—I won't mention names—had been put into the dock these past three days we should have secured a double conviction. I say no more. . . . Is that all? Then I'll wish you good evening."

It was some minutes before Neil could master the impotent rage roused by this accusation. When his brain cleared he was back in his car, driving blindly out amongst the hills.

He turned into the narrow lane which formed the rear boundary of the

He tried gently to draw her out on the subject of Michael's death.

Stoke Poulton grounds. On top of the hill close at hand the vague shape of the Glebe house stood out against the night sky. Moodily curious to know what progress was being made on the excavation, he stopped his engine, vaulted the stile and climbed the slope. A few hundred yards away the wide Georgian house lay shrouded in darkness. He looked towards it for a moment, then picking his way over the loosely turned earth past a workman's shack, peered into the hole which yawned beneath the refectory pavement.

Striking a match, he saw a series of shallow niches, in three of which attempts had been made to burrow into the hill. The central one of these was blocked by a rude door, on which was chalked, "Danger—Keep Out." He wrenched it open to look within.

Utter blackness met his eyes, but presently he made out a flight of narrow steps cut in the soil. Slimy and insecure, they descended steeply between wet walls in a slit barely two feet across. He ventured down them, one cautious step at a time, counting as he went. Ten—eleven—twelve—then his match died out. He could not in safety get at another, for the last tread shelved ominously and his exploring foot grazed the edge of a void. From an unseen source a current of damp air blew on his legs. He had the sensation of tomblike, subterranean space opening up below.

Horrible! With a shiver at the creepiness of it all he retreated to the top. Moisture hung upon his coat, his very skin was beaded with cold drops. He had found out, though, why the excavation had assumed unexpected proportions. If, as he imagined, there were underground springs and caving limestone only a few feet from the surface, Tilbury might easily foresee thousands of hard cash disappearing into the fool's project forced on him as the penalty of wealth. How soon would the law allow him to abandon the attempt? It was a question no one could answer. Probably, though, the next few weeks would show whether or not there had been a passage, and if no signs of one appeared, what was to stop the owner from selling up and clearing out? It was evidently what he intended doing at the earliest possible date.

Next morning he crossed the street and asked for Natasha. The manageress with a jerk of the head and a cold glance from her little pig's eyes replied that her guest was in the coffee room.

He opened the door, and in so doing ran headlong into Alfred Tilbury.

Of the two, the ex-bailiff was the more startled. Either he had not reckoned on so early an encounter, or else Neil's unsmiling stare had something accusing about it. At any rate his color faded to grayish patches and he licked his lips nervously as with undue haste he sought to justify his presence. His manner became confidential, like that of a friendly ally.

"Just who I was wanting to see, sir," he whispered eagerly. "Fact is, I've been making a little suggestion to Miss Andreyev, which she hasn't taken in quite the way it was meant. Maybe you'll speak a word for me—make 'er see I've only her best interests at 'eart. She'll tell you wot it's abaht."

With the barest acknowledgment Neil pushed past into the coffee room, shut the door behind him, and strode straight to Natasha's side.

"What's that fellow been saying to you?" he demanded brusquely.

Standing stiff and motionless with red spots on her cheeks, she looked angry and at the same time puzzled as she answered in a low voice.

"He may have meant to be kind. If so, then I was rude, that's all. This is how he put it. Knowing my legacy won't be available for several months, he, as trustee of the estate, offers to advance me money in case I want to leave England at once. He even hinted pretty broadly that, of course, I wouldn't care to stick it here now, on account of what people are saying."

"The infernal scoundrel! He actually had the impudence to say that! And you told him——?"

"That I didn't want his help. I may have said more than that. It's that soapy manner of his that makes me see red . . . and besides, though I may be imagining things, I got the idea he himself is desperately anxious to get me away. You, too. He asked if you meant to go on with your work here, or if I thought you'd like him to box up my grandfather's library and send it somewhere else to suit your convenience."

Neil swore softly. "No! Did he say that? Maybe he knows I've been having him watched, and is afraid I may start in on him again! By jove, what you say cheers me immensely—though what he's nervous about at this stage passes comprehension. Is it just faintly possible there's a weak spot in his armor?"

"If there is, we'll never find it," she replied hopelessly.

"Never mind, I intend to try. I've thought of another way, too, of clearing things up as far as you are concerned. Has it struck you that all we want is one single witness who saw your brother during those uncharted hours? It's only the not knowing about him that makes all this doubt possible. What I must get hold of is a good photograph. You have one, I suppose?"

"All I can give you is a snapshot, but it's fairly like him. Nothing will come of it now, though. It's far too late for any chance person to remember him."

He tried gently to draw her out on the subject of Michael's death. Although she had not yet had any definite details, she was certain in her own mind as to what had happened. It must, she said, have resulted from another drunken bout, which his weakened heart was not able to withstand.

"One thing more," said Neil, "not that it matters, of course. That car of mine did belong to Michael?"

"Yes." She flushed slightly. "He bought it second hand when he reached this country. He had a little money then, you know. Afterwards he sold it to settle up with a bookmaker, but I'd not yet heard, and when I saw it in front of the house I supposed——"

"You needn't explain. Tell me this: What was your brother like?"

"Utterly disarming. When one was away from him, one could get very angry over his—his irresponsibility, but the moment one saw him again everything was forgotten. Some people are made like that. Here is the snapshot you asked for. Do you think he looked like me?"—and she put the little picture into his hand.

Like her, yet with a difference; the same enigmatic charm, but much less decision and strength. Darker, too, and with something rather faunlike about the slanting eyes. Studying for the first time the well formed features of the wastrel who had caused such dire disaster, Neil felt a curious and resentful idea rise within him. This creature was only half human. He was an incubus who while alive had sucked his sister's blood, and now he was dead clung on to her tenaciously, dragging her down with him. . . .

"You'll see Rachel today?" he asked as naturally as he could.

With a stab at his heart Neil saw how impossible it was for her to become herself while this shadow of doubt overhung her. Arguments fell on deaf ears. She merely looked at him and said nothing. In the end, he pressed her hand and set off to carry out the intention he had formed overnight, stopping on the way to post Michael's photograph, together with instructions to the private agents.

Society Faces Busy Week-End; Major Benefits

drive out to the armory from the Casino, where Mrs. John L. Senior is to give a dinner party before the games for the entire group of ushers and their escorts. Among the girls will be the Misses Mary Senior, Jane Boyce, Louise Dewey, Nancy Traylor, Marjorie Goodman, Mary Reed, and Josephine Patterson.

Betty Whatley to Make Debut

Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn T. Whatley will introduce their daughter, Miss Betty Whatley, to society at a tea and reception from 4 until 7 o'clock today at their residence at 229 Lake Shore drive. Miss Whatley will be assisted by a group of debutantes, including the Misses Julia Kramer, Kathryn Evans, Ethel Dixon, Eleanor Litsinger, Martha Lee, Edna Doering, and Caryl Bloomingston.

After dinner the attendants and their escorts will meet again at the Whatley residence before going down to a supper-dance that the debutante's parents are to give for her in the Urban room of the Congress.

Sundays are usually more or less quiet days for the debutante set, but tomorrow there will be two parties for the young people who are enjoying their first season "out." In the afternoon Miss Helen Marie Castle will be presented by her mother, Mrs. Frederick L. McNally of 237 East Delaware place, at a tea and reception at the Fortnightly.

In the evening three young men, Thomas Knorr, Edmunds McKay, and William Fellowes are to give a small buffet supper in their bachelor apartment at 39 East Schiller street for Miss Martha Lee. Miss Castle and several of her attendants have been invited to the supper.

Luncheons Before Tibbett Concert

The Lawrence Tibbett concert tomorrow afternoon at Orchestra hall to benefit Passavant hospital will be another festive affair with an assured attendance of as many social prominents as the hall will hold. There will be numerous luncheons before the concert and afterwards. Mrs. Robert J. Dunham will give a dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Tibbett at her residence at 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Among the luncheon hosts and hostesses, all of whom will take their guests to the concert, will be Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Mr. and Mrs. Laurance Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Yager, and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, president of the woman's board of Passavant, is chairman of the concert committee.

The officers of the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago have arranged for a gay Mexican fiesta to be given tomorrow night at International house for Miss Elizabeth Wallace, who will speak on her Mexican travels. There will also be a short program of Mexican songs and dances.

Many Parties for Miss Skinkle

It looks as if the friends of Miss Virginia Skinkle and her fiancé, Sydney Heyworth Heap, were going to be sure that the young couple have plenty of cocktails before they go to England, where cocktails are not looked upon with as much favor as they are in this country, for many of the parties that are being given for these popular young people are cocktail parties.

This evening Frederick A. Poole Jr., who is to be an usher at the wedding next Saturday, is giving such a party at the Drake hotel before a dinner that Leo Hogan will give at the Tavern, later taking his guests to the Eli Bates benefit on the south side.

Last night Miss Skinkle's uncle, Robert John Randolph, who is here from Washington for the wedding and its attendant festivities, entertained Mr. Heap and some of his men friends at dinner and at the boxing bouts at the Chicago Riding club, and on Tuesday night Mr. Randolph is giving a family dinner at the Tavern for his niece.

Miss Skinkle and Mr. Heap are combining their spinster and bachelor dinners and are having a gay party next Thursday night in the Harvester building. It is to be a Lido party, with the guests in swimming suits and beach pajamas or robes—the pool of the old Woman's Athletic club is in that building, you know—and there will be typical Lido refreshments with an hors d'œuvre bar and so on and so forth. Also entertainers, and all in all its sounds like a delightful affair.

Mrs. Otis Chatfield-Taylor will arrive from New York in time for that party. She is to be the maid of honor at the wedding, which will be attended by members of the families and a very few intimate friends. More have been invited to the reception later. Among the parties that have been given for Miss Skinkle are those given by Miss Emeline Bush, Miss Esther Kirkland, Mrs. James E. Heyworth, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Heyworth, Eugene Swigart, and the Paul Butlers.

Dinner Dance at Opera Club

The Opera club, which had been converted into a suitable setting for a county fair for the party given there last night for the benefit of the North Avenue Day nursery, will be its own sophisticated self tonight when the opening dinner dance of the season will be given.

This year, the eighteenth that this popular club has been in existence, the ballroom has been decorated as the "Streets of Paris," with outdoor cafés, a bridge over the Seine, the Eiffel tower, and various other Parisian points of interest. The junior Sidney S. Gorhams, the Benjamin H. Marshalls, Mr. and Mrs. Owen West, Miss Gloria Griffiths, and the Frederick Burnhams are a few of those who will give parties at tonight's affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker, Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, Gen. and Mrs. Frank C. Boles, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. C. A. Thuis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Allais, Mrs. Vesta Channon, Mr. and Mrs. Rene Weiller, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bernays, Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, and Mr. and Mrs. John H. McGibbons will be among those at the Armistice celebration dinner dance of the French War Veterans tonight in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house.

Another benefit tonight will be the annual ball of the Sunbeam league at the Stevens hotel. It is to be a frontier days carnival, with settings and costumes designed after the fashions that flourished in the days of the old western dance halls.

Mrs. Otto Mast is chairman of the affair, proceeds of which will be used to further the work of the league in its seven kindergartens for crippled children in hospitals throughout the city.

Princess Cantacuzene on Speaking Tour

The senior Princess Cantacuzene arrived at the Palmer house last night, but her son and daughter-in-law, Princess Michael Cantacuzene, the Potter Palmers, and her other relatives here had little time for a visit with her, for she is to depart this morning for some speaking engagements downstate under the auspices of the Republican national committee.

This afternoon she is to appear in Moline and this evening she is to speak at an old fashioned political rally at Galena, the town made famous by her grandfather, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. She is expected to return to Chicago on Monday and remain here for about 10 days, although her plans are still indefinite.

Mrs. Robert B. Gregory and the Chicago committee of the Arden Shore association will give a tea on Monday afternoon at the Fortnightly for the patronesses and debutantes who are to assist in arrangements for the Chicago committee's annual ball to be held on Dec. 10 at the Stevens hotel.

The Junior league of Evanston announces a fashion show to be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons of next week at Cooley's cupboard tearoom on Orrington avenue from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock. Proceeds from the show will be turned over to the Evanston Community chest. Mrs. William Parkes, chairman of the committee, is being assisted by Mrs. William Drechsel, Miss Helen Chapman, Mrs. Lewis Murphy and Mrs. Julian Norris.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale Blocki of 6851 Constance avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to Walter Scott Trude Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Trude of 5419 Hyde Park boulevard. Both young people are graduates of the University of Chicago, Miss Blocki being a member of the Mortar Board club and Mr. Trude of the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Receive at Home

Miss Eleanor Litsinger, one of the most diminutive and one of the prettiest of the season's debutantes, made her formal bow to society yesterday afternoon at a reception given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, at their residence, 1400 State parkway.

The bud wore a lovely bright red velvet gown with short puffed sleeves of ermine and an ermine belt and the flowers she chose to wear from the dozens of bouquets that were sent to her were a shoulder corsage of gardenias and a bracelet of the same white flowers. It was the first time most of those at the reception ever had seen a bracelet of flowers and the consensus was that it was a very attractive accessory.

Mrs. Litsinger wore black velvet with long, full sleeves of rose sequins. The house was so crowded with guests that it was something of a feat to stand in the receiving line long enough to shake hands with the debutante and her parents and then proceed by slow stages to the dining room where two dozen of the season's "debs" took turns pouring chocolate and coffee.

The jam was as great outside as it was inside and there were several policemen on duty at State parkway and Schiller street to keep the traffic from becoming congested at that intersection of two narrow and busy streets.

Mrs. Wilbur Calhoun Smith, the former Edwina Litsinger, who made her debut at a similar "at home" several years ago, was among the assistants. She wore a bright blue velvet gown with short sleeves of gold sequins. Pouring during the short time this reporter was in the dining room were Miss Mary Reed, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Jean Schweppe and Miss Marjorie Goodman.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Smith entertained Miss Litsinger and her assistants, including her house guest, Miss Alice Howell of Cleveland, at a supper dance at the Congress hotel. Miss Litsinger finished at the French school in New York last spring and before that attended Miss Madeira's in Washington.

Young People Enjoy a Jolly County Fair

Benefit for North Avenue Day Nursery.

Several hundred of the "young marrieds" and other younger people of society had a real old fashioned good time last night at the Opera club, which had been turned into a county fair for the occasion, a benefit for the North Avenue Day Nursery. They began assembling about 10 o'clock, milkmaids, farmerettes, village sports, amateur "Chic Sales," and just plain village folks in everyday garb, all primed for a jolly evening. A few appeared in conventional evening clothes, but most of those had aprons or sunbonnets to give a rustic touch to their citified attire.

Mrs. Owen West, chairman of the committee in charge, was unable to estimate last night how much would be realized for the nursery by the party, for the admission was a small part of the receipts—the sideshows, refreshments, etc., all contributed to the net proceeds and of course the results of those were not known.

In the sideshows were fortune tellers, a tintype gallery, a white mouse circus, and for refreshments there were hot dogs, pies, ice cream cones, poncorn, an oyster bar, and various other similar things. Mrs. West had put on a white organdy, ruffled dress over her smart red evening gown, and a sunbonnet to match. Mrs. George Silverthorne Jr. had the most amusing costume of all, at least of those who were there by the time this had to be written. She was an old-fashioned country "gal" with white pantalettes showing below her gingham gown and a sailor hat with a red feather shooting up behind. Mr. Silverthorne was a farmer, as was Allen Newton, who had added a long gray beard to his costume.

Mrs. Nathaniel Owings was a farmerette in overalls and so was Miss Peggy Glidden. Miss Jean McVoy, one of the season's debutantes, was a lovely Gypsy maiden, and her sister, Mrs. Sidney Gorham Jr., was one of those not in costume. A few of the other early comers were Miss Suzanne Morris, Miss Janet Bard, Miss Susan Badgerow, the William Grahams, Mr. and Mrs. John Beadle, and the Edwin Camps.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Mother, Daughter in Need.

"I have an old friend who has been unable to do any work for the last four or five months due to sickness. I have been out of work for a year myself so I am unable to help her. She has a 17 year old daughter and they are both badly in need of clothing. A winter coat and dresses, size 16, and a pair of shoes, size 5, for the mother, and a coat and dress, size 14, and a pair of shoes, size 3½, for the daughter would be greatly appreciated. A. H."

Illness and unemployment have joined forces to make this woman and her daughter suffer and relief from either doesn't appear to be imminent. If you can take care of their clothing problem for the winter it will be an immense help to them.

Luxurious Velvet Tea Gown Molyneux Compensation for Simple Fashions

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The number of trailing, luxurious tea gowns in the recent Molyneux collection of fall and winter fashions, was greatly increased. Capt. Molyneux, who dresses a formidable number of titled women, tells me that they are asking for increased elegance in the robes they wear at their own firesides. Another one of those compensations for stark simplicity which occur here and there in Paris styles of the season.

Tea gowns have almost entirely replaced pajamas for home entertaining, and the Molyneux tea gown which the elegante has chosen this fall is a trailing, luxurious garment of dark velvet, which has an almost Moyen age silhouette. It is shown in the sketch today.

This frock for fireside wear is made of violet colored velvet, cut to mold the body to the hipline, without fitting in the skin tight manner. The neckline is a modest circle and the short sleeves are in one-piece with the frock, with two stiffened ruffles of the velvet set on by little tucked bands at the top.

The whole gown is cut on the bias, and reaches to the toe tips in front. It finishes in a short, pointed train in back. Two prize winning velvet chrysanthemums, in tones shading from lavender to violet are placed below the neckline on the front of the bodice.

CANZONERI WHIPS PETROLLE; RETAINS HIS TITLE

TONY MERCIFUL; LETS OPPONENT STAY TO FINISH

Billy Wins Only Four of 15 Rounds.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, Nov. 4.—There was a long, laborious fist fight between Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, and Billy Petrolle, the old salvage job, in the Garden ring this evening which developed a few moments of highly satisfactory brutality as it went along and closed out with one of those rare strokes of chivalry which soften the mood of the customers and make them sentimental.

Canzoneri won the decision in 15 rounds, retaining his title, and in the last 15 seconds of the fight, as Petrolle shoved himself forward on weary legs, fronting Tony with the dull, dumb expression of a woodchuck waiting for death in a steel trap in the woods, Tony stood back forbearing to hit him any more.

Tony Just Stalls Along.

Tony just stuck out his left and muddled it gently around in Petrolle's mutilated features to confuse him and keep him away and let him last to the end. Then the bell rang and the obvious decision was given and Petrolle rolled to his corner, where his people flung his old, faded horse blanket over his shoulders to cover him against a cold autumn wind which was sweeping through the arena.

James J. Johnston, the matchmaker of the plant, was standing behind the working press row during the last round or two, and as Petrolle wobbled through the final session, he uttered profane prayers to the little champion to restrain himself and save that card. That card was Petrolle, who has a way with the customers and, now that he wasn't knocked out, will be available for one or more future fights in the big house.

Everybody Profits Except Tony.

Mr. Johnston and Canzoneri had but a single thought, though they did not have the same point of view. However, the result was the same. Petrolle was not knocked out and he lives to be knocked out another day, with further profit to all concerned except Canzoneri.

Canzoneri probably could not have knocked him out anyway. He had already smashed Petrolle all over the head with dozens of furious clouts and it was not likely that one or two more in the last few seconds could have brought him down.

Petrolle had a few hopeful moments. He began with an attack on Tony's body, hammered him heavily with his left throughout the first round and came back to take charge of the fight briefly in the sixth, seventh, and eighth when Canzoneri was resting. Otherwise Canzoneri had command all the way and punched Petrolle as often as he wanted to, mostly on the head.

Petrolle Too Light.

Petrolle weighed 134½, a half pound under the limit for the class, and he seemed to have left some of his vitality in the gymnasium for this weight was three or four pounds under his safe minimum. Canzoneri was strong any gay at 133, his natural weight.

Petrolle fought to Canzoneri's liking at all times, which is to say that he circled him and offered the leads which gave Tony opportunities to whip over counter punches that spun his head and glazed his dark sunken eyes beneath their overhanging eaves of furry brow and mutilated tissue.

The celebration attracted about 20,000 customers at a maximum cost of $11 per head and the total loot was estimated at $75,000, no part of which, for a radical change, had been preempted by any local charities.

A Little Boom Time Glamor.

There was a show of dress suitage in the forward positions and some of the lady trade came back to the bouts done up in spangles and furs and all such prosperous tackle, reminescent of the boom time. However, there had been a radical change in the seating arrangements around the ringside and the Tammany bloc, which formerly occupied places on the southerly side of the scaffold, had been shifted to the opposite side, where the rich and socially refined millionaires used to sit en masse.

Gunboat Smith, the author of the deciding vote in the outrage against Max Schmeling last summer, was referee of this bout and skipped about the ring with a solemn expression, moving his lips as he counted Canzoneri's smacking punches to Petrolle's jaw. He kept good account and his decision this time was consistent with the way of things.

Canzoneri Misturtles Once.

Neither party fell down at any time and Tony's only outward damage consisted of a bruise over his right eye inflicted by a left swing in the ninth round as he dangled his arms at his sides and stood back turtling at Petrolle in a show of jaunty contempt. Turtling consists of projecting and contracting the neck to draw leads at the face. Tony turtles well as a rule, but this time he misturtled and Petrolle grazed him, raising a small red welt.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Capt. Pug Rentner, Full Back Ollie Olson, and five other lads until recently considered regulars on Northwestern's football team, will not be in the starting lineup this afternoon when the Wildcats face Ohio State's Buckeyes at Dyche stadium in Northwestern's homecoming spectacle. At least that's what Coach Dick Hanley announced after practice last night.

Mr. Hanley insisted that the absence of seven erstwhile first stringers wasn't to be interpreted as a shakeup resulting from certain ambarassing reversals the Wildcats have suffered in recent weeks. Mr. Hanley said: "All the men in the new starting lineup are expected back next year. I figure that this is a good time to widen their experience. No one has been benched in the usual sense of the term."

Expect Crowd of 32,000.

About 32,000 spectators are expected to be in attendance when Mr. Hanley tries his building for the future experiment.

Under the planned rearrangement of the Wildcat cast, only four of the original first stringers will be in the opening array, although the sophomore guards, Ed Whelan and Jerry Gottschalk, started in the Minnesota game a week ago. Fencl will continue at right end, Gonya and Riley will retain the tackle jobs and Sullivan will appear as the lone survivor of the back field group.

Harry Leeper, sophomore, is scheduled to appear in Capt. Rentner's spot at right half, and Chilly Sutton, who has adorned the bench all season because of an injury in preseason scrimmage, will seek to do some line plunging and other things at full back in behalf of Olson, according to the plan announced last night.

Roy Augustson, until this week carried on the roster as a full back, will blossom forth as a quarter back. At such times as Olson is absent from the lineup, Roy will do the kicking and, 'tis rumored, may loft quite a few passes here and there.

Some of these passes, undoubtedly, will be aimed at the 6 feet 4 inches of end named Vince Thoma, who is scheduled to replace Manske in the opening lineup.

Weldin Gets Center Job.

Ham Weldin will be at center, which isn't so startling, for Ham has been fighting things out all season with McDonald, whom he is slated to replace this afternoon.

Ohio State will employ the same lineup used last week in its amazing 7 to 7 tie game with Wisconsin.

Coach Sam Willaman, like other observers of the game, was unable to see where the Buckeyes had made any mistakes, and for that reason will stand pat on the outfit that couldn't cash its advantages over the Wisconsin boys.

Carl Cramer, hurt in the game last week, has recovered and will be at quarter, and a sweet quarter he is, too. Capt. Hinchman has been playing at the peak of his game and his punting has been at times spectacular, considering that that chore formerly was delegated to other members of the team. Bill Carroll is going good, and in the matter of speed he can run with the best of them. Mickey Vuchinich will plunge when the distance is needed for first down and has been playing well defensively.

It's Eleventh Meeting.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

TOM HAMMOND.

MY GREATEST football thrill came as a freshman in the Michigan-Chicago game of 1903. It was played in a blizzard with snowbanks around the sides of the gridiron at the then Marshall field. Chicago students were pressed into service to shovel off the snow, but the surface was slippery and the ball heavy and coated with ice.

Michigan won, 23 to 0. It was not so much the score that gave me the thrill as a schoolboy rivalry with the late Walter Eckersall. You see, Eckie had been in the back field of our championship Hyde Park High school eleven and we had played through prep school together. My brother and I planned to enter Michigan and we thought Eckie was going, too. Michigan, Wisconsin, and Chicago all sought his services as a wonderful punter and drop kicker. Last minute pressure by a family friend, I was told, caused his Chicago decision. There was some feeling in the matter among the various alumni.

Recalls Michigan Team's Lineup.

Well, we knew what a wonderful open field runner and kicker Eckersall was, so naturally feared what he might do, although Michigan then was embarked on its so-called "point a minute" record. Just let me name our players and you'll recall most of them. Capt. Redden was at left end, Curtis and Mattock at tackles, Schulte and Gooding at guard, and Gregory, center. I was playing right end, instead of the back field, that year. In our back field were James, Willie Heston, Longman and Graver.

Chicago also had a fine eleven with Speik, Parry, Hill, Wightman, Ellsworth, Tobin, Ahlswede, Tiny Maxwell, Burrows, Catlin, our Nemesis of two years later; Rex Kennedy, Eckersall, Lee Maxwell, Schnur, Ivison, Bezdek, and Nordenholt.

This Michigan-Chicago game on Thanksgiving day was the big event on both schedules and 20,000 persons, a record crowd then, were present.

Hammond Kicks Two Goals, Eckie None.

Willie Heston was simply unstopable that day and we had the ball most of the time because Chicago couldn't gain against us. Thus the Maroons were never near enough our goal for Eckersall to try his celebrated dropkicks. Even his punting with the slippery ball was off for him, but time and again he saved sure touchdowns by his great tackling. It was in this game the long remembered play occurred in which Heston hurdled Eckie as the latter crouched low for a tackle, jumping clear over Eckie's head. On another occasion with Eckie the last opposing man Heston straight-armed Eckersall, but the latter kept running alongside for nearly ten yards and finally brought Heston down.

Hammond Wins a Dress Suit.

Well, I was doing the placekicking for extra point, with James holding, and was fortunate enough to kick all three points after our three touchdowns. In the first half I also was given opportunity for a placekick from the 25 yard line straight before the goal posts and it went over. Near the end of the first half Chicago recovered the ball on downs close to its goal line. Eckie was standing in a snowbank when he punted out. Capt. Redden signaled for a fair catch which gave us a free kick from our 28 yard line. It was at an extremely difficult angle, but luck or something was with me and the ball went over.

It may sound foolish now, but nat-

Leader—Hill.

A crowd of 16,000, made up of many forms of rabid bike fans and thousands who seemed a little confused about it all, last night viewed the third night of racing in the six day race at the Stadium.

At 11 o'clock five teams were tied for the mileage lead, but ten minutes after 11 the team of Alfredo Binda and Norman Hill was in the lead alone. Binda and Hill did not start the race as a team. Binda was paired with Franco Georgetti and Hill was the partner of Carl Stockholm.

Form New Team.

Four teams were tied in mileage for second place after the jam which put Binda-Hill ahead. They were Audy-Peden, Bobby Walthour-Rodak, Linari-Severgnini, and Jimmy Walthour-Ritter. Spencer and Dempsey were alone in the third flight, two laps back of the leaders.

Shortly before midnight physicians ordered Freddie Spencer from the race because of an intestinal disorder. His partner, George Dempsey, was given four hours to find a new mate. It was possible that he would supplant Horan in the McNamara-Horan combination. Horan is suffering from a sore shoulder.

Italian Pair Takes Lead.

At 8 o'clock, when the evening jamming got under way, the Italian team of Pietro Linari and Edoardo Severgnini was eighth. Shortly before 9 o'clock they were leading by two laps. In the 9 o'clock standings they were in first place by one lap. Jimmy Walthour and Ritter, who had been in seventh place, had pedaled into second place, tied in mileage with Spencer and Dempsey. The erstwhile leading Canadians had dropped back to fourth place, two laps behind Linari and Severgnini.

There was much jamming during the sprints which started at 9 o'clock, but the standings announced at 10 o'clock saw the Italian pair still in front, with Bobby Walthour and Rodak in second place, Binda and Hill in third place, and Audy and Peden still fourth. Jimmy Walthour and Ritter dropped to fifth place.

Two Other Teams Withdraw.

At 10:40 Linari and Severgnini still were leading. Bobby Walthour and Rodak continued in second place, but in a mileage tie with Jimmy Walthour and Ritter. Spencer-Dempsey, Binda-Hill, and Audy-Peden were in third place.

The day witnessed the withdrawal of two other teams. Louis Anhes had his collar bone broken during the ninth sprint of the afternoon series, forcing him and his partner, Omer Taverne, to retire. At 9:30 o'clock Tino Rebolt and Fred Kugler, the Newark copper, were flagged after falling two miles and three laps behind.

3—Deulberg, Rodak, Wagner, Binda.
4—McNamara, Hill, Frankenstein, Severgnini.
5—Linari, Deulbers, Rodak, Wagner.

C'MON, BUCKEYES! FENCL'S READY

Irish Play Santa Claus to Indebted Jayhawkers Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 4.—Notre Dame's famous football team, on the rebound from its defeat at Pittsburgh a week ago, will bounce onto the western plains tomorrow for a skirmish with the Jayhawkers from Kansas university.

Rabid Jayhawker rooters are putting on a brave and bold front tonight. If they have any idea a tornado is to sweep over Memorial stadium in midafternoon tomorrow they give no indication of it. The Kansas folks are shooting red rockets into the air, exploding firecrackers, making speeches, and singing the songs of old Kansas U.

Large pictures of the late Knute Rockne are on display everywhere. Jesse Harper, who succeeded Rockne as Notre Dame's director, is joining in the speechmaking. Rockne's widow is here and so is Rockne's son. The hospitality of Kansas has gone out to them.

They'll Welcome Irish.

Coach Hunk Anderson and the Notre Dame warriors are looked upon as so many goblins "who will get you if you don't watch out." But they will ride into Kansas tomorrow as so many Santa Clauses. The football business hasn't been so good in Kansas this fall. The homecoming game with Nebraska attracted only 9,100 customers.

And there's the mortgage to be paid off on the old homestead in the form of a bond issue of some $33,000 on Memorial stadium where the teams battle tomorrow.

The coming of Notre Dame's football team will take care of this little item. The advance sale of tickets indicates that more than 30,000 will see the game. It will be the largest crowd ever to jam its way into the stadium.

Fans Flock In.

Everybody wants to see Notre Dame play, and they don't seem to care what happens to the Jayhawkers while they see it. The gate will range somewhere between $85,000 and $100,000, and Kansas U's share will be more than enough to keep Memorial stadium out of the hands of the constable.

The game tomorrow will be the high spot for Missouri valley football, particularly for Kansas university. It will be the greatest crowd of the year in the valley of the muddy old Missouri.

When three Kansas U teams stepped through brisk signal and limbering up drills late this afternoon they gave everybody the impression that the game tomorrow isn't to be a pushover for Notre Dame.

No Alibis, Win, Lose, or Draw.

Kansas will have no excuses to offer, no matter what Notre Dame does to its football team, Coach Ad Lindsey declared after the drill. Dr. For-

Maroons Hope to Regain That Stride for Purdue Today

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Purdue's Boilermakers, relying on the skill of their Four Riveters, in reality eight Riveters, will attempt to fasten another bolt this afternoon in the framework of their right to another Big Ten title, or at least to a co-share thereof. Stagg field is the place and Chicago's Maroons are to be the recipients of what Lafayette sympathizers think will be an intensive hammering.

Except last year when Chicago proved a surprise package to the overwhelming favorites and actually led in the first half, Purdue chances, in advance, of fulfilling its ambition to step one notch farther along its championship trail have not appeared brighter within modern memory.

Maroons Surprise Team.

These Maroons, however, have proved surprising young men several times this fall. They astonished the football world by emerging with a tie, although outplaying the Bulldogs of Yale in their own kennel. Then they went to the other extreme with a sluggish exhibition for three periods against little Knox and showed scoring punch only in the last 15 minutes.

Then, just when dopesters thought these Maroons had struck their real form and that Yale wasn't so much anyway, Chicago rose to new heights in defeating the highly rated Indiana eleven by a brilliant running and passing attack. Then they went into reverse again after a running start as they lost to Illinois. On past performances this season, therefore, the Maroons will be in stride again today.

Comparison of the two teams suggests the Midway boys must be in full stride to escape possible overwhelming defeat from one of Purdue's greatest elevents. These invading Boilermakers have the best rated back field in the Big Ten, if not in the whole country, a back field composed not only of quality but also of quantity with little choice between the four regulars and the four reserves.

Purdue Has Tough Line.

Purdue's line, perhaps, is not the greatest ever sent forth from Lafayette, but it has functioned with satisfaction and no conference opponent has been able to count more than one touchdown. Purdue has passers and

The Darb Among Stars in Large Field.

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Twenty-three 2 year olds, five of which are fillies, were named today for the $40,000 added Pimlico Futurity tomorrow at a mile and a sixteenth. It will be run over a fast track and before an anticipated crowd of 40,000.

Among the outstanding juveniles in the large field are C. V. Whitney's The Darb and Caterwaul, Frederick Johnson's Repaid, the Wheatley stable's Notebook, Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, winner of the Belmont Futurity; Dynastic, the Greentree stable's flyer; Sagamore stable's Wave on, and Sarada.

The Darb Well Supported.

The Darb's signal victory in the Jockey's club stakes and another at Laurel will gain many followers for the Whitney candidate. This stable won the Futurity last year with Top Flight and in 1930 with Equipoise. Repaid may be the favorite, but has a bad position and may not survive the treacherous clubhouse turn. Notebook has done so much that she may be considered a factor.

J. E. Widener's filly, White Lies, late in getting in contention, won the Annapolis handicap for 2 year olds, the feature today, by a neck from Adolphe Pons' Projectile. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Poppyman was third, beaten two and a half lengths. Brown Erne was fourth.

The winner, the favorite, ran six furlongs in 1:12 and paid $6. Projectile was $10.70 for place.

RICH LATONIA RACE.

C. V. Whitney's Mad Frump, one of the outstanding 3 year olds in the east this season, will be among the starters. Others are Gallant Sir, owned by Norman Church; Hal Price Headley's Big Beau, Rehoboth, Cee Tee, and Quando.

DE KALB DEFEATS NORTH CENTRAL, 7-0, ON PASSES

De Kalb, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Reno Nori led the De Kalb Teachers in a last half offensive today to defeat North Central, 7 to 0. It was De Kalb's first Little Nineteen victory of the year.

Two long passes from Nori to Pace and Skoglund, respectively, and a run by Nori placed De Kalb in scoring position early in the third quarter. Nori scored the touchdown from the one foot line on the fourth down.

Maroons Hope to Regain That Stride Today

With this array of strength the Boilermakers have shown only one weakness. That was failure to capitalize their consistent ground gaining into as many touchdowns as the yardage warranted. This weakness, if it was such, disappeared when New York university, one of the strong eastern elevens, took the short end of a 34 to 9 count last Saturday.

Called upon to face a triple threat attack, strong in each branch, what has Chicago, in opposition, to prevent a rout? The most important quality is a fighting spirit. Stagg teams of recent years often have been outclassed and thereby outplayed, but they have not quit. Sheer gameness frequently has prevented them from "looking bad" against much stronger opponents.

Birney Doubtful Starter.

The Maroons this afternoon, lacking a plunger of the Horstmann type, must rely on a running attack and passes, principally passes. Chicago has several running backs able to go places if given support, but Zimmer, one of the best ground gainers, is out through injuries. Capt. Birney is a doubtful starter. Therefore the brunt of this work will fall on Sahlin, Summers, Flinn and Page, with Hugh Mendenhall likely to see service at some stage.

Rivalry between Purdue and Chicago is one of the oldest in the Big Ten. It started back in 1892, Stagg's first year as coach on the Midway when he was permitted by courtesy of opponents to play on the team because of paucity of Chicago material. Thirty-seven games have preceded that of this afternoon of which 27 were won by Chicago, 9 by Purdue and 1 was tied.

Purdue to Honor Stagg.

Before the opening kickoff, this old time friendly relationship will be cemented by presentation to A. A. Stagg of a silver plated boilermaker's hammer and an official "P." blanket. The thought is that of the Purdue Alumni Club of Chicago, of which C. C. Adams is president. Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue, will make the presentation. Standing at his side will be President L. A. [Larry] Downs of the Illinois Central and J. R. Huddleson, district sales manager of the National Cash Register company, both of whom played for Purdue against Stagg in 1892.

urally I felt thrilled to have made two goals from field, while Eckersall, the great kicker whom we had wanted at Michigan, hadn't made any. Poor fellow, he never had a chance, but he was a good sport about it all and in an interview after the game was quoted as saying, "That field goal of Tom Hammond's at the end of the first half was the prettiest kick I ever saw."

My next greatest thrill came the following year in the Chicago game at Ann Arbor, when we won, 22 to 12. Jerrems, Chicago tailors, had offered a dress suit to the player making the first touchdown. Frank Longman had a chance with only half a yard to go, but the Maroon line held. Finally I had a chance at about the same distance and the fellows shoved me over. In those days other players could pull or push the ball carrier. Longman and I were good pals and I joshed him that it was my superior power, but of course it was my teammates. Incidentally a dress suit was quite a possession for a college sophomore then.

After graduation Tom Hammond coached a southern football eleven for a year, then entered business in Chicago. He is president of the Whiting corporation, manufacturers of cranes, railway appliances and foundry supplies. When the world war came he served with the 149th Field artillery, known as Reilly's Bucks, rising from private to lieutenant colonel. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor by France. After the war he was commissioned a colonel in the Illinois National Guard. Col. Hammond always retained his interest in Michigan athletics and is a former president of the Chicago alumni group. His residence is Chicago, with a summer home at Flossmoor.

Bernard scored the first touchdown in the opening period. Harding counted the second after a run of twenty-two yards around left end. Westray scored the second two touchdowns. St. Viator made 21 first downs to Charleston's ten.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 4.—Indiana points with pride to the fact that it is the oldest registered university in the central states, but it never has had the honor of playing host to a Michigan football team. Tomorrow there will be a Michigan eleven hereabouts, and the Hoosiers do not know whether to feel elated over the call from such distinguished performers or to express regret that the engagement ever was made in the first place.

Pick on Haughty Foe.

Michigan, as the football world well knows, already has bumped off a few conference contenders, as well as the Princeton boys, who came west last week under the delusion that they would give the undefeated Big Ten leaders a gridiron lesson. On the other hand, Indiana, at its best, tied Ohio State, which Michigan spanked with ease, and lost to Chicago, which still is to undergo whatever kind of whipping the Wolverines may be in the mood to administer next week. So on the basis of the Ohio State affairs alone, Michigan must be regarded as in the happy state of not jeopardizing its unsullied slate on the morrow.

Indiana's sole hope apparently is based around one of those possibilities the underdog always figures is a probability. It's an old Hoosier football custom to manhandle some haughty foe when least expected. The pep talks to the Crimson boys this evening were centered on this feature. But the Wolverines this year seem to have so much of everything that even a few breaks in favor of Indiana should not be sufficient to create an upset.

Fay May Cause Trouble.

The Hoosiers' preparatory work this week has been premised on the fact that Michigan has a line not easily punctured. Recognizing this fact, Coach Billy Hayes has been devoting the practice hours to the perfecting of a pass attack in which any one of several backs perform as tossers to the ends. And while engaged in this important feature of attack, Hayes has not let his boys forget that they will have to maintain unbroken vigilance when Harry Newman, the Wolverine quarter, starts throwing the ball.

Whether Michigan tries to prove it has a real running attack depends on the physical condition of Stanley Fay, who has been on the shelf with a set of bruised ribs. Fay will start if able. Otherwise Johnny Regezi, who also is slightly crippled, will hold the left half back post. But if Fay should get in there and try one of the sprints which caused Northwestern so much trouble, he may find himself considerably embarrassed by the presence of Lyons, the Hoosier giant Negro left end, and Dickey, the other regular wing. These two did a lot to put the clamps on Ohio State's runners, who up to that day were figured to be without equal.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 4.—Illinois will be Wisconsin's rival tomorrow afternoon in homecoming celebration at Camp Randall stadium. It will be the seventeenth meeting between the two universities, and the whole affair will be wrapped up in political demonstration for President Hoover, whose first visit to the state capitol coincides with the football game and whose speech will be delivered within a few feet of the gridiron.

Tonight the old grads, assisted by custombound undergraduates, held the campus. Around a huge bonfire on the lower campus Bill Juneau, coach of the 1912 team which won Wisconsin's last conference championship, exhorted the old and young to show their colors and whoop things up for Wisconsin. Tomorrow morning, heralded by a salute of 21 guns, President Hoover will traverse the route between Capital square and the university fieldhouse. President Hoover's address is scheduled for 12:15, and half an hour later he will leave the field to football players.

Series All Square.

Thus the thousands of homecomers will be augmented by other thousands come to see the President. In all probability Camp Randall will be the center of crowds for which there is no precedent.

Illinois and Wisconsin will enter tomorrow's contest all square. Each has won seven games and two have been tied. Coach Bob Zuppke in the 19 years he has directed Illinois teams has produced six victories to four defeats, while one game was tied. However, a Zuppke team is meeting an eleven coached by Dr. Clarence Spears for the first time. Illinois did not play Minnesota during Spears' régime at that university.

Spears himself is one reason why Wisconsin believes it will defeat Illinois and take the lead in the all time series. Another is the showing of the Badgers this fall as compared to the two lickings the Illini have received. However, Illinois' triumph over Chicago last Saturday, while not causing anything approaching consternation, has tightened up the odds on tomorrow's game.

Smith at Full Back.

Wisconsin probably will use Hal Smith at full back, since that young man is best at backing up the line and in combating passes. Mickey McGuire and Red Peterson with what assistance Bill Koenig, at center, may find time to offer, will help Smith. Nello Pacetti, under this arrangement, will be the Badger quarter back.

George Thurner, a made over end, probably will replace Dave Tobias at tackle. Mario Pacetti and Capt. Greg Kabat will be the starting guards with Frank Molinaro at the other tackle. Dick Haworth and John Schneller, one time full back, will be the ends.

Wisconsin expects a victory even if Illinois scores a touchdown, basing this deduction on the ground gained against Iowa and Purdue. The Ohio State game last week offers no such hope, for Wisconsin ad the score, after being completely outplayed, on Peterson's return of a punt. But critics point out the Buckeyes had an overwhelming advantage in weight in the line which Illinois does not possess.

Illinois will stop over night at Freeport, Ill., and will arrive in Madison at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

A. A. U. Clears 16 Amateur Boxers of Pro Charges

Sixteen amateur boxers, who had been suspended by the Central A. A. U. for participating in a boxing show at the Naval armory last Oct. 13, were reinstated by the boxing committee of the Athletic union yesterday.

The boxers, who included Freddy Caserio, national A. A. U. middleweight champion, had been set down for alleged violations of the amateur rules. Upon hearing the testimony of George Simpson, an official of the club promoting the show, George Cone, matchmaker, and several of the boxers involved, the committee dismissed the charges for lack of evidence.

However, during the hearing it was brought out that George Goodman and Steve Selgrat had signed managerial contracts with Cone, who has guaranteed each an annual income of $100. The committee decided this was a major violation of the rules and barred both Goodman and Selgrat from further amateur competition.

Barney Ross, west side lightweight, boxed several rounds yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium for his 10 round contest against Goldie Hess of California on the same card. Hess is scheduled to start work at the Arcade gymnasium tomorrow.

Hawks Polish Aerial Plays for Huskers

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa football team brushed up on forward pass defense today and went through signals in a light final workout for the game with Nebraska here tomorrow. A crowd of about 12,000 is expected to see the game.

Although the field of competition for the two teams is in separate conferences, they have encountered each other 20 times during the past. The rivalry dates back to 1891.

Nebraska holds a four game edge in the all-time series and is the favorite to win tomorrow. The Cornhuskers are at the top of the Big Six conference while Iowa is last in the Big Ten.

Although the starting Iowa back field was still undecided it was certain that Wilmon Hass, 190 pound Forest Park, Ill., former guard, would be at full back.

GOPHERS MEET 'SIPPI

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Completing a 1,600 mile trip that required two days and one night of traveling, the train weary Mississippi university squad reached Minneapolis early tonight for its intersectional football game with Minnesota here tomorrow.

Approximately 20,000 will see Minnesota's only intersectional game of the 1932 season.

With the exception of Brad Robinson and Frank Larson, regular ends, Coach Bierman will send his usual varsity lineup against the Southerners. Robinson has spent two days in the health service trying to rid himself of a cold and a sore throat. He will be in uniform tomorrow, but will not play unless needed. Larson is still ailing from a bad bruise received in the Northwestern encounter.

Capt. Hass to Play.

Capt. Wally Hass will make his first appearance in Minnesota's starting lineup tomorrow since the Nebraska game. He is back in condition and will be at right half. Lund, Manders, and Griffin will make up the rest of the back field. Tenner and Dillner will b at the ends, Wells and Gay at the tackles, Koski and Bruhn at the guards, and Cen at center.

Michigan Goes in for Scotch Shooting Style

BY BOB BECKER.

Scotland has invaded the state of Michigan and has won a battle in the outdoor sport world which is making the eyes of thousands of sportsmen almost pop from their heads, judging by reports from a number of hunters in the central states.

Briefly, the Scottish attack is this: Under Michigan's comparatively new private preserve shooting law the old world system of hunting pheasants has been inaugurated and now a party of hunters with pockets sufficiently filled with greenbacks can kill as many as 100 ringnecks in a day. On Scottish moors drives are held with beaters sending the game past the guns. Michigan offers the same thing.

This Party Costs $270.

For $270 you can have a real, old country day's hunt with six drives. One hundred pheasants may be dropped for that fee. The Michigan law, still a subject of bitter controversy among sportsmen, permits this old world method of hunting pheasants between Oct. 15 and Dec. 5. In case you want more than 100 pheasants all you have to do is pay $2 for each ringneck over the 100 limit. The only thing that the Michigan preserve law is strict about is this: On any of these preserves the owners cannot allow the killing of more than 50 per cent of the ringnecks which they have raised and liberated.

Ogemaw county, which is about 190 miles north of Detroit, is the scene of this experiment in leasing extensive hunting rights for a big shoot. The preserve itself, owned by a well known Michigan sportsman who has been active in conservation affairs for many years, contains 7,360 acres. It came into existence about seven years ago.

The interesting point about this experiment aside from the fact that it represents the first time that the old world system of hunting pheasants has been made available, is that the preserve, now the home of thousands of pheasants and partridges, originally was shot out.

Raise 15,000 Pheasants Since 1926.

In this hunting country, ruined by overshooting, game production was started and more than 15,000 pheasants have been raised and liberated since 1926, as well as a large number of Hungarian partridges.

Hand in hand with this experiment comes Wisconsin with a similar law permitting a preserve system whereby you can go into a private place and shoot ringnecks at $3 each. A big preserve of this type has been established recently near Portage, Wis.

Prep Sectional Titles at Stake in Four Games

Sectional football races in the Chicago Public High School league will come to an end today. Division champions will be determined in four of the eight games scheduled and the survivors will meet in the semi-final round for the league title next week.

Three teams, holders of first place in their respective sections, encounter weak opponents and are expected to move into the title series. An easy victory is predicted for Morgan Park against Parker at White City for the south division championship. Schurz, although tied by Lake View last Saturday, meets Lane Tech, which has not scored a point this season, in a game in which the north division title is at stake. Harrison Tech will seek its third consecutive west section title against Marshall at Mills stadium.

Englewood Meets Bowen.

The other championship battle involves Englewood and Bowen, in the central section. Traditional rivals, these teams share first place with three consecutive victories, and have shown equal strength in league contests. The game is expected to attract one of the largest crowds of the season at Normal Park.

William [Powerhouse] Velon, star Bowen end, will not be in the lineup. According to Farmington, Ill., records, Velon is 23 years old and thus is ineligible for league athletic competition. Officials of the league still are investigating his status.

Proviso Faces Atlanta Tech.

An intersectional game between Atlanta, Ga., Tech and Proviso heads the suburban schedule this afternoon. The game will be played on Proviso's field in Maywood and will start at 2 o'clock. Proviso, in its Suburban league games, has won one, tied one, and lost two.

York, West Suburban league leader, will attempt to score its third victory of the season against Downers Grove on the latter's field. In other games West Chicago will meet Maine at Des Plaines and Riverside plays Glenbard at Glen Ellyn.

St. Patrick will end its west section schedule, meeting St. Ignatius at Crevier stadium, Van Buren and Albany streets, in the only Catholic league game scheduled. Five league games and one nonleague contest between Mount Carmel and Spalding institute of Peoria, Ill., at Soldiers' field will be played tomorrow.

Irish Play Santa Claus to Kansas

Kansas football has been in somewhat of a turmoil this fall. The Jayhawkers changed horses in the middle of the stream. After the first conference game had been lost to Oklahoma university, Coach Bill Hargiss was fired. Lindsey, who had been the back field coach, supplanted him.

Since then Kansas lost to Nebraska and whipped Iowa State and St. Louis university. The team is in better shape for the Notre Dame game than it has been at any time this season. The Jayhawker rooters expect to see Elmer Schaake, Ray Dumm and Carnie Smith gallop up and down the field, making enough points to overwhelm Notre Dame.

Fear Notre Dame Revenge.

Kansas is afraid the Notre Dame lads are out for revenge. Just 28 years ago to the day a Notre Dame team traveled to Kansas and was overwhelmed by the Jayhawkers, 24 to 5. That game was played on Nov. 5, 1904. Since then the teams have never met.

The jubilant Jayhawker rooters whooping it up tonight seem to be laboring under the impression that Notre Dame has been afraid of Kansas ever since.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey league won an exhibition game from the Yannigans, 6 to 5, and broke training camp tonight preparatory to their season opening next week.

Coach Emil Iverson will leave with his squad tomorrow morning for St. Paul where the team will meet St. Paul in an exhibition game Sunday night. On Nov. 10 the Blackhawks open their schedule against Detrdit at Detroit.

Iverson was satisfied with the speed and stick handling of both his regulars and spares in tonight's game.

Marcy Moves Up in C. Y. O. Section Bouts

Bud Marcy, 1931 featherweight champion, advanced last night as another group of boxers moved to the quarter finals of the second annual Catholic Youth Organization amateur boxing tournament at the new C. Y. O. center, Congress street and Wabash avenue.

They were the northwest side boys of the north section and have only to win in the sectional tournament to qualify for the semi-finals and finals at the Chicago Stadium on the night of Dec. 2.

Only by the narrowest of margins did Marcy come through to victory in last night's fighting. After getting by Edward Arseneau of St. Mark in the prelim, the champion from Our Lady of Mercy just managed to outscore Joe Zielinkas of St. Wencelaus, who proved to be a skillful boxer.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT—Stan Luczek, St. Wencelaus, defeated Tom Laub, St. Ferdinand [3].

FLYWEIGHT—Martin Callaghan, St. Mark, knocked out William Bibel, St. Sylvester, 1

BANTAMWEIGHT—John Kmic, St. Ladislaus, beat David McCarthy, Our Lady of Grace, 3; Edward Heubner, St. Veronica, beat William Bickford, St. Edward, 3.

CARDINALS WAIT SUPREME TEST IN PACKER GAME

See Chance to Climb to Second Tomorrow.

If the Cardinals lose their battle with the Green Bay Packers at Wrigley field tomorrow afternoon they will have no alibis to offer. Every member of the squad is in condition, and an average of four hours daily has been spent this week in preparation for the Cards' bid for second place in the National Pro league standings.

The club, now in third position, will ascend to the runnerup berth if it turns back the champions and the Portsmouth Spartans, holders of second place, lose.

Vengeance Also Is Motive.

The desire to improve their status, however, is secondary to another motive which has spurred the Cards through their hardest week of drills. They hope to get even with the Packers for a 15 to 7 setback at Green Bay in the opening game of the season.

"Given just half of the breaks, we should hand the champs their first defeat of the year," Coach Jack Chevigny said yesterday. "We outgained them from scrimmage in that first meeting and had an advantage in all other departments, except the scoring of points. With our improved passing attack and the speed of Lillard, anything can happen."

Lou Gordon, Cardinal tackle, whose play has been outstanding all season, will pit his 220 pounds against the power of Jugger Earpe, 257 pound Packer veteran, who at 39 years of age is engaged in his 11th season of continuous service with the champions. Their duel should be worth watching.

Navy Boxers Defeat Army 7 Bouts to 5

The Navy won seven of the twelve bouts in the second annual Army-Navy boxing show, sponsored by the Chicago Black Horse troop, at the Chicago Riding club last night. A crowd estimated at 2,500 paid approximately $1,500, which will go into a fund for the Black Horse troop.

Duffy Dvonch, heavyweight champion of the Great Lakes, and Freddy Caserio, National A. A. U. middleweight champion, a member of the Black Horse troop, were unable to appear.

Fred Thomlinson of the Naval Reserve substituted for Caserio against Pete Congdon in the windup. After the first round Thomlinson solved Congdon's southpaw style and won the decision. No opponent could be found for Chester Bukowski of the 124th field artillery, who was matched with Dvonch.

Bill Connell, 129th field artillery middleweight, defeated Lloyd Abrams in the three round semi-windup. The match was one of the best on the card. Other results were:

Jennings Gatlin, Great Lakes, stopped Tommy Lobono [1]; Harold Newton, Naval Reserve, beat Ole Mahlgren [3]; Ralph Lubansky, 124th Field Artillery, beat Fred Trine [3]; Francis O'Connor, Naval Reserve, beat Bobby Cawthon [3]; Carl Kohny, 124th Field Artillery, beat Jules Bracke [3]; Elmer Ballard, Great Lakes, stopped Johnny Conochan [1]; Johnny Hall, Fort Sheridan beat Strank [3]; Billy Pettijohn, National Guard, beat Erwin Coyle [3]; Leo Bich Great Lakes, stopped Pat Murphy [2]; Fred Miller, Naval Reserve, knocked out John Campbell [2].

HOGS HOLD GAINS FOR FIRST TIME IN SIX WEEKS

Hogs hit the trail toward higher prices again yesterday and continued the upward course throughout another full session. It is the first time in more than six weeks that sellers have managed to hold prices lifted upward for more than one day without tripping up. The gain is nothing to brag about, amounting to only 10@25c for the two full days, yet it is the sharpest registered in the hog market since early September.

While the trade is not unanimously on the bull side, the turn has resulted in a brighter appearance of the market and there is less wagging of heads among prognosticators given over mostly to gloomy predictions regarding prospects of this winter's hog market. Leaders hope that this rather small, yet decided, upturn, means that the trade has finally lifted itself out of the rut. For two months or more prices have been gradually drifting downward. All recoveries but this last one held only a day before the bear side again asserted itself.

Highest of Week.

Closing sales yesterday were highest of the week. The peak moved up 10c more to $3.45, highest since Thursday of last week, and 15c above Tuesday, the low day. An advance of 10c brought the general average up to $3.30. Meager receipts throughout the country the last few days add color to the theory that hogs are in stronger hands and likely to be held back on corn longer than usual this winter.

The run of 10,000 at Chicago yesterday equaled the smallest for Friday this year. The eleven market total for the five days this week at 324,000 compares with 400,000 a week ago and with 446,000 a year ago. "Although demand is low, two weeks of such receipts of hogs would create a shortage of fresh pork in Chicago wholesale markets" admits one packer who has been a bear on the market all fall.

Cattle Trade Dull.

Yesterday's cattle market was just another one of those featureless clean-up affairs in which trading is mostly on a "catch as catch can" basis. Some scattered selling appeared a little stronger, particularly in the baby beef class that has beenselling to the best advantage lately. These closed the week 25@50c higher, while the bulk of steers were mostly 25c lower than a week ago, with the spread between 1,000 lb averages and 1,300 lb averages at the narrowest point in recent months. Until this week the heavier cattle have been bringing a big premium.

Yesterday's meager supply of steers sold largely at $5.00@5.85, one load of fairly good 837 lb yearlings establishing the top for the day at $6.75. The trade is still carrying a nominal quotation of $9.10 for prime weighty steers on the strength of the sale of 1,294 lb averages at this figure in midweek.

Top Lambs, $5.90.

Best grade of slaughter lambs were scarce again and maintained a good strong price basis through the forenoon, slowing down some later when the rank and file of plainer kinds found the going a little rough. The latter closed 15@25c lower for the day. City butchers handpicked selected native ewe and wether lambs up to $5.90. Larger houses got a share of top grades at $5.75, but bought the bulk at $5.50 and below.

Matured sheep sold steady and yearlings were firm. Feeding lambs went to country buyers again at $4.50@4.75, with top black face stock quoted up to $5.00. To hold their money together on these lambs, farmers will need at least $6.00 when they bring them back on the market fattened for slaughter, according to traders.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 5,000 hogs and 3,000 sheep, against 676 cattle, 7,108 hogs and 8,300 sheep the previous Saturday and 588 cattle, 15,709 hogs and 7,769 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 24,000 to 36,000. L. Vining marked 36,000, J. Berkery 35,000, A. G. Wellhener 33,000, W. T. Renecker 31,000, S. Lund, H. Wolfe, P. Allen, M. J. Berkery and W. Egan 30,000; F. M. Sherwood, F. W. Young and G. W. Chandler 28,000; F. Knutzen and G. Brittain 27,000, J. M. Waters 26,000, H. S. Turner 25,000 and, H. Pattison 24,000.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Raw sugar was quiet and steady today. Prices remained unchanged at 3.10c for spots. Local refiners showed no interest above this level, but holders were generally asking fractionally higher and the only sale confirmed was 17,500 bags of Cuban from store at Norfolk to a Boston refiner at 3.12c. Aside from the December position, where most of the business centered, there was little variation in futures, with the market closing net unchanged to 1 point lower. Sales totaled 10,300 tons. TRUST OF EDITH R. M'CORMICK SUED ON BONDS

Foreclosure Asked by Bank.

A suit alleging a default of interest payments on $267,000 of the bonds of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, and asking foreclosure of the properties upon which they were issued, was filed yesterday in Circuit court.

The suit was brought by the Straus National Bank and Trust company, as successor to the Foreman Trust and Savings bank. The bill sets forth that soon after the formation of the trust, on Oct. 1, 1923, the trustees issued $360,000 in 6½ per cent gold bonds, due serially each April 1 from 1932 to 1935. The Foreman bank was named trustee.

Charge Interest Overdue.

Between April, 1928, and April, 1932, the trust redeemed $33,000 of the bonds, leaving $267,000 outstanding. Semi-annual interest payments were met promptly each April 1 and Oct. 1 up to Oct. 1 of this year, the bill asserts, charging that $8,970 of interest is now overdue.

The bank therefore asks that various parcels of Cook county property supporting the bond issue be sold and, if the amount realized be insufficient to redeem the bonds, that the surviving trustees, Edwin D. Krenn and Edward A. Dato, be held liable for the deficiency. Attorney Harvey J. Carlson, who filed the bill, expressed belief that the interest would be met within a few days and that the suit would be dismissed.

Trust Founded in 1923.

The trust was founded Oct. 1, 1923 with Mrs. McCormick depositing stocks and bonds to the sum of $6,232,000 which she had inherited from her father, John D. Rockefeller, to provide capital. Her co-trustees, Krenn and Dato, each deposited $1,500 cash and against the whole were issued 53,350 certificates of beneficial interest, of which Mrs. McCormick held all except 3,000 shares.

The announced purpose of the trust was to consolidate and operate Mrs. McCormick's real estate holdings and to deal in real estate in Chicago and vicinity. By Dec. 31, 1930, according to the consolidated balance sheet, the trust had assets of $31,094,000 and an anual income of $625,800.

Assets, Income Decline.

By Dec. 31 the following year, according to another consolidated balance sheet, the assets had declined to $16,058,000 and the income to $305,000. Marketable securities amounting to $5,600,000 were disposed of and $7,900,000 of other securities pledged the trust by Mrs. McCormick had been reduced to $996,000. The value of the properties, buildings, and leaseholds was carried at approximately $12,000,000 in both years.

At the same time liabilities of the trust were reduced almost one-third when the entire issue of $11,000,000 of 6 per cent collateral trust notes was retired. The 1931 annual statement showed $4,461,000 of mortgage bonds and notes outstanding; $1,300,000 of notes payable, and $621,000 of accounts payable.

RADIO REPORTS $812,128 DEFICIT IN THIRD QUARTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 4.—David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, today made public the report of the company for the third quarter of 1932, showing a net deficit of $812,128 after all charges, taxes, and depreciation, comparing with a net income of $1,318,785 in the 1931 period.

As a result there was a deficit of $592,728 for the first nine months of 1932, comparing with a net income of $3,957,489 for the same period last year. No dividends were paid in the third quarter on any class of stock. After deducting dividends of $348,619 paid on class A preferred stock in the first quarter of 1932 surplus at Sept. 30 amounted to $15,392,047, comparing with $11,327,789 on Jan. 1, 1932, and with $30,083,518 on Sept. 30, 1931.

Gross income from operations for the third quarter amounted to $13,979,473, against $24,089,704 in the 1931 period, and total income from all sources was $14,254,637, against $25,664,292. Net earnings after cost of sales, general operating, development, selling, and administrative expenses were $665,197, against $3,754,815 a year ago.

Election Fails to Frighten U.S. Investors

BY SCRUTATOR.

No matter how the presidential election turns out next Tuesday, it is evident that American investors are not fearful of the immediate future. It is natural for owners of stocks and bonds to have a keen interest in the securities markets on the eve of a national election, therefore the markets usually reflect their sentiments.

If investors are apprehensive a considerable volume of selling appears in the stock market, such as attended the "free silver" campaign of Bryan in 1896. If majority opinion is optimistic the volume of buying tends to expand, as occurred with the election of President Hoover in 1928.

Little Selling of Securities.

This year, however, the sentiment of investors appears to be neither fearful nor highly optimistic, but rather hopeful instead. The action of the stock market in recent weeks, with trading dull and the market not far from the level of six weeks ago, indicates that owners of securities have not been selling.

On the other hand, it is evident that there has not been much buying of securities, which is natural in view of the fact that the current election falls in a depression year. However, an analysis of inquiries received by THE TRIBUNE'S Investors' Guide department in the last few weeks reveals that there is more interest on the buying than on the selling side where the inquirers indicate any sentiment. It also is evident that there is still more interest in stocks than in bonds.

Investors Hopeful.

From these indications it seems likely that investors are hopeful as the result of the moderate improvement in business and industry that has taken place in the last four months. Therefore they are holding their securities and considering new purchases.

Immediate results of the presidential election from an economic standpoint are not causing apprehension. Even should Gov. Roosevelt be elected, President Hoover will retain office until next March. The short session of congress beginning next month is not expected to do much in the way of new legislation. However, it may take up the issue of war debts and an extension of the moratorium initiated by President Hoover in July, 1931. The international economic conference, to which President Hoover will name delegates, also will convene next month.

Hope for Dry Law End.

No matter whether President Hoover or Gov. Roosevelt wins the election, the measures already instituted for relieving depression and stimulating business are likely to continue without much change. This seems especially true of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Next year, no matter who is elected, there will be action brought about to end national prohibition, although the speed with which this can be accomplished probably will depend more on congress than on the President.

There also probably will be some tariff changes, regardless of which candidate is elected. However, it is not certain that the Democrats would undertake a general revision even if Gov. Roosevelt should win. While such a program would cause uncertainty in business, still the record of tariff revisions is that they require a number of months and therefore allow business to anticipate their effects.

NEVADA AWAITS GOVERNOR FOR BANK DECISION

Reno, Nev., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Gov. Fred B. Balzar, nearing home after a hurried trip to Washington, held the answer today to what will be the next move in the attempt to solve the Nevada banking situation.

The governor, who arrives in Reno tomorrow, is expected to make known then his decision on a proposal to call the legislature in special session.

Among other things, it has been suggested the legislature could enact a branch banking law which would enable the twelve closed Wingfield banks to combine their assets and reopen as a chain of banks under the direct control of a parent bank in Reno. Each of the twelve has heretofore operated as a separate institution.

Reconstruction Finance corporation experts meanwhile continued their examination of the Wingfield banks prior to reporting to headquarters in Washington on George Wingfield's request for a $2,000,000 loan with which to refinance them.

U. S. Steel President Returns to New York

William A. Irwin, president of the United States Steel corporation, left for New York yesterday after a two day inspection trip of the corporation's plants in the Chicago area. Mr. Irwin did not visit the offices of the company's middle western subsidiary, the Illinois Steel company. Officials of the Illinois company declined to comment on Mr. Irwin's visit, which was his first since he became president early this year.

STOCK LEADERS RISE $1 TO $4 ON WAVE OF BUYING

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 4.—Stocks were marked up rather sharply today and political minded observers had no difficulty at all in ferretting the usual deep political significance out of the development. Those of Democratic persuasion were cocksure the improvement was all due to the speech of Owen D. Young here last night assuring the nation that business need not be alarmed over predictions of a Roosevelt victory at the polls next Tuesday. Diagnosticians who take their Republican leanings seriously were just as certain on the other hand that the stock exchange as well as the rise of nearly 2 cents a bushel in wheat and of over $1 a bale in cotton pointed to a revival of hope for the re-election of the Hoover ticket.

It appeared, however, the recovery was due in a very large measure, if not in its entirety, to the oversold condition of the market itself. Prices have been on the decline for the better part of a week now and the reaction on two days this week—Tuesday and Wednesday—reached the proportions of a shakeout. Therefore, conditions seemed ripe for a "corrective" turnabout of some substance. Evidently a large number of traders who have been selling short decided that the risk of further postponement was too great and set about to cover while there was some chance of profit. Brokers said that a large part of the day's buying was undoubtedly for the accounts of this nature.

Leaders Up 1 to 4 Points.

The improvement amounted to 1 to 4 points for the active list with group leaders strongly featured. Union Pacific, the highest priced issue of the railroad section, ran ahead for 4¼ points, ending the session at 63¼. Atchison rose 3⅝ and New York Central more than 2 points.

Among the industrials Allied Chemical and Dye was a topnotcher with an upthrust of 4 points, while American Can rose 2⅝, Air Reduction 3½, United States Steel 2¼, Westinghouse Manufacturing 2, and International Business Machine 4 points.

American Telephone was buoyant as the leader of the utilities department and the close found it back to 103¾, up nearly 4 points on the day. Consolidated Gas, Public Service, Standard Gas and others of the group trailed with gains of from 1 to nearly 2 points.

Farm Issues Rise.

The good news from the grain pit was a tonic to the farm implement and mail order shares. Case Threshing Machine jumping 3¼ and Sears-Roebuck more than a point.

A feature of the day's dealings that came in for no little comment was a sudden revival of interest in the shares of a number of companies in a way to benefit from the proposed legalization of beer manufacture. Crown Cork and Seal and Owens Glass were particular beneficiaries of such buying, the last named rising more than 5 points. The development was taken to mean that Wall street is looking for the return of beer in the not too distant future.

Tobacco shares were active and strong and the preferreds had their inning, a half dozen or so of them climbing from 2 to as much as 6 points.

$23,843,000 BIDS ON GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE AWARDED

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Bids for construction of the Golden Gate bridge across San Francisco bay were awarded here today after the Bank of America had purchased $3,000,000 worth of the bridge district's potential $35,000,000 in bonds. The largest contract awarded was to John A. Roebling & Sons company of Trenton, N. J., to furnish the steel cables, for $5,855,000.

In each instance the successful bidder was the one who had submitted the low bid. A contract for the steel superstructure, awarded in 1931 to the McClintick-Marshall company, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel corporation, and allowed to lie while the bridge district was going through a period of litigation, was renewed recently.

U. S. Imports $756,600 in Gold, Exports $8,600

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The daily gold statement of the New York federal reserve bank showed imports of $690,700 from Canada and $65,900 from Mexico, a total of $756,600. There was an exportation of $8,600 to Argentina. No change occurred in earmarked stocks.

A. F. of L. Reports First Gain in Business Since Spring, 1931

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's monthly survey tonight said that "business has gained this fall for the first time since the spring of 1931."

This upturn, the statement continued, was felt particularly in the textiles, shoes, clothing, foods and printing industries, "indicating that persons who have been at work and who have saved every penny have at last been forced to replace worn out goods."

The survey said the revival was of a little more than seasonal proportions, "but was checked in mid-October and business did not go forward into a marked upward trend."

"We cannot expect large gains in business while buying power is at so low a level," said the statement.

In September, the federation asserted, 860,000 workers found at least temporary employment, but 10,000,000 were still unemployed.

"This gain has little significance as relief for the unemployed unless the usual winter layoffs can be prevented," the review said. "For the last three years from 1,000,000 to 1,600,000 have been laid off from October to January."

Sift Trustee System Sales for Legality

An investigation was started yesterday by the state's attorney's office to determine if the Trustee System Service corporation violated the state blue sky law when it sold its securities to investors in Illinois.

The investigation is being conducted in cooperation with the receivers recently named by Federal Judge Wilkerson. Complaints have been received from approximately 50 persons, according to Assistant State's Attorney Herman Weinberg, who is in charge of blue sky prosecution. Assistant State's Attorney Edwin C. Duffey is in charge of the inquiry.

Stock Not Qualified.

Mr. Duffey said that the stock of Trustees System Service was owned by Industrial Loan and Guaranty company, a Virginia corporation, whose common stock was not qualified under the Illinois blue sky act. The holding company also controlled the Trustee System Discount company of Chicago, also in receivership.

The Trustees System Extension corporation, an affiliated concern, was organized, Mr. Duffey said, to sell securities of the parent corporation.

Mr. Duffey declared that the gold notes issued by the Extension corporation were represented to investors as similar to a savings account in a bank. High pressure tactics were employed by salesmen upon note holders to persuade them to exchange their holdings for stock in the holding units or its subsidiaries.

Unethical, Not Illegal.

Mr. Duffy described the tactics employed as unethical, but not illegal. The question to be determined, he added, is whether the company sold treasury stock, which must be approved by the state, or individual stock, which can be sold without the state's approval.

Formation of a committee to represent holders of the issues guaranteed by the Trustees System Service corporation and affiliated firms was announced yesterday. The committee is composed of Burt A. Massee, vice president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company; Hugh L. McWilliams, real estate man, and Walter J. McGuire, head of the real estate firm bearing his name. The Chicago Title and Trust company has been designated as depository.

The committee proposes, it was said, to make a careful investigation of the financial conditions of the company and to take action in the interest of the note holders.

Favor Lower Passenger Rates, but Disagree on Method.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Efforts to reduce railroad passenger fares as a means of stimulating business gained some headway as a result of the meetings here of the Western and Transcontinental Passenger associations. While many divergent opinions were expressed by passenger traffic officials attending the consensus, according to reports in railroad circles, was that there must be some reduction.

Some of the officials attending took the stand that the present 3.6 cent mile rate, established in 1920, should be reduced to the old 2 cent rate. Others favored more drastic cuts, some arguing that the old 2 cent mile rate of years back be restored.

Urge Pullman Cuts.

Some officials attending expressed the opinion that in view of the developments in air conditioning of passenger cars coach travel could be increased considerably with the reduction of the rate to 2 cents a mile.

Reductions of Pullman fares also were recommended by some of the officials, one view being that charges of $3.50, for example, be reduced to $2. Other officials favored flat rate reduction. It was suggested that these reductions between certain heavily tarveled points, such as between Chicago and Cincinnati, or Chicago and St. Louis, t was suggested that these reductions would not be applied to longer trips which happened to include these distances.

There was practical unanimity favoring issuance of mileage books again. Books of $50 with 10 per cent discount were favored. Requests for mileage books have been made frequently by traveling salesmen.

Talk of Special Rates.

The various recommendations made at the conference are to be submitted to the railroad passenger traffic vice presidents for their consideration. They will in turn submit their recommendations to their respective presidents. Whatever the roads finally recommend must be approved by the interstate commerce commission before the public can benefit.

Yesterday's meeting of the passenger officials was devoted to discussion of special passenger business, such as the operation of special trains to football games, Century of Progress traffic and suburban transportation.

Assembling of the parts which will be used in the construction of 1,285 new box cars for the Pennsylvania railroad will be started on Monday, according to a statement made yesterday by M. W. Clement, vice president in charge of operation. Fabrication of the raw plates and shapes for the cars, which are to be built with money provided by the 2 million dollar "work loan" authorized by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, has progressed satisfactorily, Mr. Clement reported.

Simultaneously with the start of this new work a rearrangement of the railroad's heavy freight car repairs at Enola and also at the Altoona works will be made by transferring some of it to the Terre Haute, Ind., shops, and some to the shops at Mahoningtown, near New Castle, Pa., thus giving increased employment at five separate shops on the Pennsylvania railroad system.

Cars to Be Larger.

Of the total number of new cars to be built, 925 will be steel box cars of the Pennsylvania railroad standard construction, and 360 will be steel automobile cars. Important changes will be made in construction features of the automobile cars. They will be longer, higher and wider to permit of the loading of more automobiles into a single car than has heretofore been possible, and also to give more cubic space for the hauling of other commodities, such as tin cans, hay or straw which are bulky yet light in weight, thus giving the shipper the full advantage of the minimum load carload freight rate.

A new curved roof has been designed somewhat like the "covered wagon" in order to avoid exceeding the clearance dimensions of tunnels and overhead bridges.

Will Try Out New Method.

Another new feature, which will be tried out experimentally in some of the new cars, is the installation of a permanent device for raising and securing automobiles in an inclined position at each end of the car. This will permit also of the loading of additional automobiles standing level on the floor. As some of the new cars will be 50 feet six inches long, it will be possible in this manner to load into a single car five automobiles of the smaller models.

These will be the largest automobile box cars ever built by the Pennsylvania railroad. A number of them will be equipped with end doors which will afford increased convenience and facility in the loading and unloading at certain points of automobiles, buses, trucks, airplanes, or other large parts of equipment.

WEIGH FREIGHT SURCHARGE

New York, Nov. 4.—Members of the Association of Railway Executives will meet here next Thursday and will formally consider at that time, among other items on the docket, the question whether the carriers as a group will seek to continue the present emergency freight surcharges after next March.

Preliminary discussion of the subject occurred at Chicago last month, but next week's meeting will mark the first formal attempt of the carrier executives to determine a course of policy in respect to the freight surcharges.

While it is impossible to obtain the views of the rail executives as a whole in advance of the gathering, there are many indications that the carriers will not seek to maintain the present surcharge arrangement—particularly if it will be required that the collections accruing from the surcharges continue to flow into the treasury of the Railroad Credit corporation for use in connection with loans to needy carriers unable to meet fixed charges.

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—American Telephone and Telegraph company in its monthly statement to the interstate commerce commission today showed September operating income of $1,807,018 against $2,716,764 last year. Gross was $7,216,781, compared with $8,738,771. The report covered operating activities only, excluding such income as dividends, interest, and other revenues.

Pabst Brewery Merges with Premier Malt

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The Pabst corporation, founded in 1844 and before prohibition one of the great breweries in the United States, is to be taken over and operated as a subsidiary of the Premier Malt Products company of Chicago and Peoria, Ill.

In order to facilitate the transaction the old Pabst corporation, which was incorporated in Wisconsin, has been succeeded by a new Pabst corporation, incorporated in Delaware with $1,000,000 authorized capital stock, the merger was effected by an exchange of stock between the new Pabst corporation and the Premier Malt Products company, according to Fred Pabst, who was president of the old Pabst corporation and will be president of the new Pabst corporation, subsidiary of Premier Malt Products. Edward Loebl will be secretary.

Stock Closely Held.

Harris Perlstein, president of Premier Malt, will remain as head of the controlling company, with Pabst becoming a director. Stock in both the Pabst and Premier corporations has been closely held.

Formation of the Comet company, described as an investment company composed of old Pabst stockholders who now receive Premier stock also was announced. It has an authorized capitalization of $5,000,000 in common stock, of which $2,872,000 is issued.

It is expected the Milwaukee plant will be operated as a brewery. The Peoria plant and other units of the Premier company to continue the manufacture of malt products. They will not be used for brewing, Mr. Pabst said.

Taking over the Milwaukee company will be followed by a large increase in employment, Mr. Pabst said, adding that the consolidation was made in anticipation of the legalization of beer in the near future.

Expects Beer Next Year.

"I believe that beer will return next year," he said. "The personnel of the present Pabst corporation will be retained and the 600 men now employed will be increased to 2,000 as soon as the law permits the brewing of beer."

Since prohibition the production of cheese has been the chief activity of the Pabst company. Its huge plant was subdivided and leased to many local companies, but a portion was always maintained as a brewery in anticipation of the revision of the dry laws.

A year ago more than a million dollars worth of new brewing equipment was purchased and installed in readiness for the time when beer would be permitted. The company meanwhile manufactured malt sirup and soft drinks.

The Puritan Malt Extract company was bought in 1930 and in 1931 the Atlas Elevator company was acquired giving the Pabst company storage for more than a million bushels of grain.

Premier Ten Years Old.

Premier Malt was organized ten years ago. It grew to become the largest manufacturer of malt in the country. The company has never made a financial statement. Its four main plants are located in Peoria Heights, near Peoria, Ill. It has other smaller plants located in other states.

The sales organization of the company, known as the Premier Malt Sales company, has general offices at 720 North Michigan avenue. The sales force is made up of about 275 persons.

The reorganized company's board of directors will be the same as the present Premier Malt directorate with the exception of Mr. Pabst. In addition to Perlstein and Pabst, directors will be Robert Clark, vice president, Charles T. Buehler, secretary; James Shakman, treasurer; F. E. Solmsburg, Frank Shlaudeman, Bernard Spaeth, and P. A. Singer.

PENNSYLVANIA AND INDIANA GET R. F. C. LOANS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation today authorized relief loans totaling $6,557,000 to Pennsylvania, Indiana, Virginia, Washington and New Hampshire.

In so doing, however, the directors informed Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania that his state itself must do more to relieve suffering than it has if he expects the corporation freely to vote further federal assistance. Pennsylvania was granted $5,462,266 for use in 63 counties during November. It previously had received $5,842,183 for October.

Marion county, Indiana, in which Indianapolis is located, was loaned $250,000 to help it until Nov. 30. This loan was asked, the announcement said, because a bond issue, authorized by the state legislature, is in litigation and cannot be sold until passed upon by the courts.

New Hampshire received its first federal relief assistance in the form of a loan of $687,420 to the governor. The money is to last until Jan. 1. The governor of Washington received $105,000 for Snohomish county and the chief executive of Virginia, $72,423 for Augusta and Carroll counties and the city of Lynchburg.

Sears-Roebuck to Open Large Brooklyn Store

Sears, Roebuck & Co. will open the second of its three large department stores in the east today. This store will be opened in the Flatbush district of Brooklyn. The first of the three stores was opened last week in Hackensack, N. J., and the third will be opened soon at Union City, N. J. Each store is to cost $1,000,000.

Simms Oil Cuts Book Value of Boom Developed Assets

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Pointing out that certain of its older producing properties were developed under "boom conditions," the Simms Petroleum company in a statement to stockholders accompanying the income report for the three months ended Sept. 30 says that it has revalued some of its assets at reduced book figures.

The company has transferred $2,830,000 from capital surplus to a "reserve for revaluation," which has been allocated to reduce the net book value of certain properties. This reserve is "intended to provide for the excess costs of properties, viewed in the light of present reproduction costs."

The income report shows net earnings for the third quarter of $435,032 before income charges, compared with $174,015 in the corresponding period of last year. Income charges amounted to $479,886. The final deficit for the period was $44,854, against a deficit of $657,854 in the corresponding quarter of 1931, and of $60,358 in the second quarter of 1932.

The company has called a special meeting of stockholders to be held on Dec. 6 to authorize the cancellation of 169,471 shares of stock held in the treasury. This will reduce the authorized total to 500,000 shares.

PRICE OF WHEAT REBOUNDS 2⅛c FROM ITS LOW

December Future Up to 44 Cents.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation apparently has run its course in the wheat market, at least temporarily. A marked change in sentiment and aggressive buying, both by commission houses with eastern connections and the local trade, moved prices up steadily yesterday. At no time was the market as low as the finish of the previous day. December sold up to 44c at the extreme high, 2⅛c above the inside figure of the previous session. The close was well toward the top.

According to pit brokers there was a broader interest in the wheat market than for several weeks. Sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves on the bulge. Final trades were at net gains of 1⅞@1¾c, with December closing at 43⅝@43¾c; May, 48⅛@48⅜c, and July, 49⅝@49⅞c.

Winnipeg Moves Slower.

There has been a much larger foreign demand for Canadian cash wheat of late than has been reported and sales of as high as 4,000,000 bu were estimated as having been made in the last two days. The active foreign buying, however, did not have much effect on Winnipeg yesterday and the Canadian market closed only ⅛@¼c higher, with December at 45½c. On a gold basis the active future there was around 41⅛c, or 2⅝c under Chicago.

Argentina is beginning to press offerings of new crop wheat for sale abroad at near the low record prices witnessed in 1931, with 47¼c per bu c. i. f. the United Kingdom quotation. This does not establish a new all time record low, as some poor quality Russian grain was reported as having sold at equal to around 40c per bu last year. The price with that exception is the lowest since 1588, when the average for British grown grain was 43c per bu.

Liverpool Prices Firm.

Despite the rather violent fluctuations in sterling exchange, Liverpool futures have held well above the low prices reached last fall, when the October delivery was quoted at 46⅝c on Sept. 22, or 2½c above the figure for the March future yesterday. The English market was off ⅛c for the day, with December at 50⅛c per bu.

February wheat in Buenos Aires is quoted around 39c, or 4¾c under Chicago December. Acreage in Argentina is officially estimated at 19,164,000, which suggests a crop of around 220,000,000 bu on the basis of average yield per acre, or approximately the same as was harvested last year.

Australian farmers have started to complain to the government in that country over the current low prices for wheat, claiming that there is a loss of 1s per quarter, or 2@8c per bu, in raising the grain.

Corn Husking Is Rapid.

There were no reports of corn being sold for export yesterday, an advance of ¼c per bu on the cash grain as compared with the December and an upturn of around 1c in the latter apparently checking business. Strong local interests were buyers of futures and lifted prices around 1c from Thursday's finish to a high of 25@25⅛c for December. The finish was ⅝@1c higher, with the nearby delivery leading. The latter closed at 25c, with May 29⅛c and July 31¼@31⅝c.

Husking of corn has made rapid progress and around 45 per cent of the crop is already in the crib, according to reports from Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Nebraska, and Missouri to Lamson Brothers & Co. Average cost of husking in the five states is 1¼c, while shelling costs average 1⅜c per bu. After allowing for husking, shelling, and other charges the firm figured that farmers in Illinois were receiving 8¼@10½c per bu for new No. 4 yellow and in Iowa 4½@6½c.

The country sold 200,000 bu old and new corn to arrive yesterday as the result of the upturn in futures, the old grain being disposed of in order to make crib room for the new.

Oats showed more activity than of late and advanced around ⅝c from Thursday's finish to around the best figures of the previous week. Strength in corn was the main influence. The close was ⅝@⅝c higher, with December at 16c; May, 18⅛c, and July, 18¼c. Rye closed ⅝@1⅛c higher with wheat, December being 27½c and July 31½c at the last.

California Canned Fruit Exports Set High Record

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP)—California canned fruit exports reached the highest mark on record during September, Wesley O. Ash, district chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, announced today. The huge increase, Ash said, was due to impending British tariff increases proposed at the Ottawa trade conference. Exports totaled more than 2,000,000 pounds for the month and were valued at more than $3,500,000.

Canadian National Gross Revenues Show Decline

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 4.—The Gross revenues of the Canadian National Railways for the 10 day period ending Oct. 31, 1932, were $4,409,617 as compared with $5,825,461 for the corresponding period in 1931, a decrease of $1,415,844.

Burlington October Car Loadings Gain Sharply

New York, Nov. 4.—The bond market shared the fresh optimism in other markets today and reversed the downward trend of the last five trading sessions.

On a wave of short covering and a moderate amount of fresh buying gains of from 1 to 5 points were scored under the leadership of the speculative railroad group.

U. S. Issues Dull.

The market for United States government bonds and short term issues continued a dull affair, owing to the temporary withdrawal from the market of many banks and other larger buyers. With election uncertainty blocking further progress on the upside, many holders of the short term issues have taken profits which have accrued generously during recent weeks and months.

Gains were largest in the railroad group, and particularly in the volatile B. & O. issues. Petroleum bonds drew a great deal of interest, with issues of Pan American and Richfield spurting 4 or 5 points, following the announcement of a new bid by Sinclair for the Richfield property.

Industrials Do Well.

Industrial bonds as a group made a good showing, stimulated in some measure by the rising demand for petroleum company obligations. Gains in this group included such issues as Armour & Co., 5½s, Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s, Goodyear Tire and Rubber 5s, Shell Union Oil 5s, Skelly Oil 5½s, Texas Corporation 5s, and United Drug of Delaware 5s.

Bonds of investment caliber firmed up, retracing in many instances their gradual recessions of the past week. An improved tone was noted in high grade rail bonds such as Atchison general 4s and stamped adjustment 4s, and Burlington 4½s.

Foreign bonds did not share appreciably in the domestic improvement. Argentines eased in early trading. Most foreigns, including Germans, were mixed.

PHILIPPINES TO VALUE IMPORTS ON GOLD BASIS

MANILA, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Disregarding protests of Japanese and other importers voiced at hearings, the Philippine legislature has enacted a measure providing for the gold basis valuation of imports from countries which have depreciated currencies.

Governor General Theodore Roosevelt favored the bill. Its advocates asserted that although it means doubling the duties on such articles as Japanese canvas shoes, these still will be offered under prices existing before the gold embargo.

Opponents charged that only American imports, which were duty free, would be benefitted and Filipinos would pay higher prices. They asserted also that China, Japan and Spain might retaliate. An anti-dumping bill and a measure repealing the statute limiting duties to 100 per cent, both of which are favored by Roosevelt, also are expected to pass the legislature.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 4.—Additional deposits of bonds have been received by the St. Louis-San Francisco railway reorganization managers in favor of the readjustment plan, since the receivership on Tuesday, but not in sufficient volume to affect the percentage greatly, E. N. Brown, chairman, said today.

More than 64 per cent of the out standing bonds have accepted the proposal, Mr. Brown said, pointing out that it requires $2,600,000 bonds to make 1 per cent of the total.

He expressed hope that when the acceptances have been raised considerably the group of institutions holding 4 or 5 per cent of the bonds, so far nonassenters, will deposit. They have not communicated with the road since the receivership.

COTTON CO-OP. REPORTS CROP OF HIGH GRADE

New Orleans, La., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The American Cotton Coöperative association said today the bulk of the cotton crop has been ginned and showed 93.1 per cent of it to be ⅞ inch staple or better, which is the same per cent as last season, when the staple averaged the best in ten years.

The association asserted that cotton exports this year have exceeded the total of leading manufactured products, which last year doubled the cotton export.

The association also reported that total receipts this season have passed the half million bale mark and that 15,000 new members have been enrolled.

Two Chain Systems Have Seasonal Sales Gains

Seasonal gains were reported yesterday by the two leading chain store organizations for the month of October. Sales of F. W. Woolworth company during October amounted to $22,473,183, a seasonal increase over September's total of $19,463,169. October sales of S. S. Kresge company were the biggest for any month this year and exceeded September by $1,075,510, or 11.4 per cent. Sales in October totaled $10,505,762, compared with $12,498,549 in October, 1931. The best previous month this year was March, when sales totaled $10,383,401.

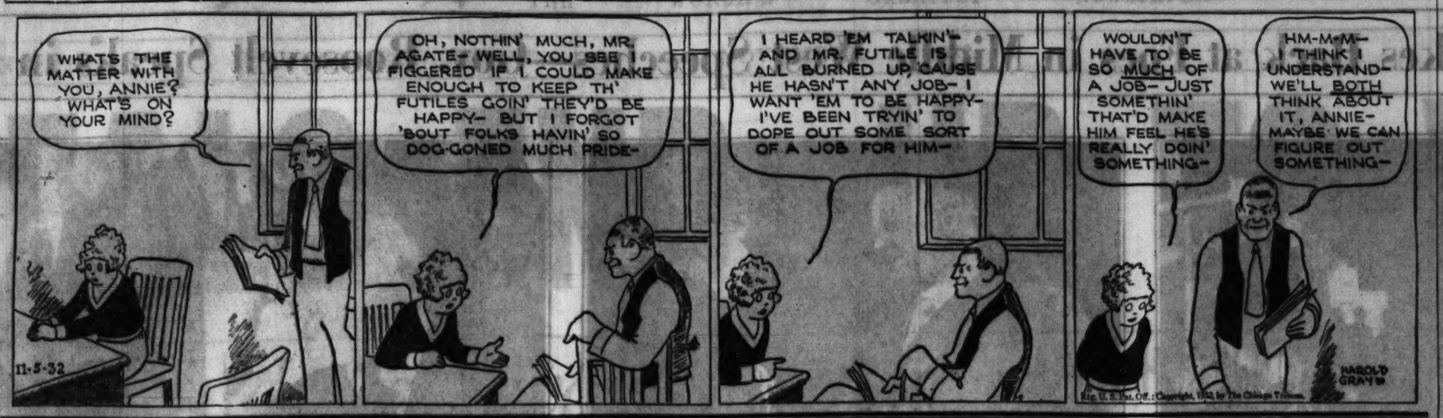
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Problem



SOLUTION TO CLASS DAY

"Beak" addressed the letter to himself and put Kilinsky's name and address in the upper left hand corner. The letter was delivered to Kilinsky with the notation, RETURN TO SENDER FOR POSTAGE. Do you see it? The postoffice department naturally presumed that Kilinsky was the sender of the letter because it carried his name in the place for "return postage address." Therefore in delivering it to him the department thought it was RETURNING it. POOR UNCLE SAM!
